A New Pocket Edition

OF THE WORKS OF

William Shakespeare

For convenience, serviceability, and beauty of appearance this latest handy volume set of Shakespeare is unrivalled. The Cambridge text of William Aldis Wright has been reproduced with scrupulous exactness, and the introductions and notes are by Israel Gollancz, the scholarly editor of the Temple Shakespeare. This is the cheapest large-type edition of the world's great dramatist on the market, and the quality of paper and binding, as well as typography, contribute to make the edition thoroughly unique. A list of artists whose works appear in the flexible leather style includes L Alma Tadema, R.A., R.W.S., P. H. Calderon, R.A., F. Goodall, R.A., V. C. Prinsep, A.R.A., P. R. Morris, A.R.A., F. W. W. The volumes are forty in number, thirty-seven being devoted to the plays and three to the poems and sonnets. The format is very dainty, but the small size is well adapted to all practical uses in library, home, and school.

FRENCH, GERMAN, AND OTHER FOREIGN LANGUAGES

The French and German methods are modern, and are used in many of the most progressive schools and colleges throughout the country. The general stock of imported books is very large, for we supply not only our own publications but those of all publishers at home and abroad. Our Roman Cheisis, Contes Cheisis, and other series, tastefully printed and low priced, contain masterpieces of French, Spanish and Italian authors. They are used extensively for class reading, many having notes in English. A complete catalogue of all publications, also of imported books, will be sent when requested.

SIMPLE GRAMMAIRE FRANCAISE

Par PAUL BERCY, B.L., L.D., et GEORGES CASTEGNIER, B. ès-L., B. ès-S. Accompagnée d'un Questionnaire et Basée sur la Réforme de la Syntaxe. 12mo, cloth, 220 pages, $1.00.

The SIMPLE GRAMMAIRE FRANCAISE presents several advantages. First, it is in French; the difficult words and sentences are translated into English and placed in parentheses. Second, the rules and exceptions are based upon the "Reform of the Syntax" in accordance with the decree of the Minister of Public Instruction. Third, the English exercises to be translated into French are invaluable. Fourth, the "Questionnaire" will be of great assistance both to teachers and pupils; it can be used for conversation, as the questions and the answers are written in simple form; aim has been made to avoid pedagogy. Fifth, the chapter on the distinction between masculine and feminine nouns will be much appreciated.

READY SEPTEMBER 7

The New Novel by ANTHONY HOPE, author of "Quisante," "Phroso," "The Prisoner of Zenda," etc.

A SERVANT of the PUBLIC

This story, in Mr. Hope's happiest vein, promises to be his most successful recent novel. It is a sympathetic study of the private life and feelings of a famous actress —of how her profession influenced her actions and made her what she was. While about an actress it is not about the stage, and holds nothing in common with the conventional novel of the theater.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, after August 5, will have full control of the books of Richardson, Smith & Co.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish September 7 "A Servant of the Public," a new novel by Anthony Hope, the story of an actress, but of her private life, not about the stage; and on September 14 they will have ready "The Speculations of John Steele," by Robert Barr, with illustrations by F. R. Gruger.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish on the 15th inst. a new novel by Harry Leon Wilson, the author of "The Spenders," etc., entitled "The Boss of Little Arcady." It is a story of village life in the mid-West, with two heroes, one the editor of a weekly paper, the other his staunch friend, though his rival in love. The story is told by the friend, who left the village at the call to arms in 1860 to return a major and to resume his law practice. The story is well told and abounds in kindly, humorous and pathetic touches.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish next month Professor Ettore Pais's work on "Ancient Legends of Roman History," translated from the manuscript by Maris E. Cosenza, of the College of the City of New York. The book treats of the legends of early Rome, and is furnished with new explanations of such primitive fables as those of the Horatii, Acca Larentia, Servius Tullius, etc. It will contain many illustrations in half-tone and in the text. The author is one of the faculty of the University of Naples, and is the author of histories of Sicily and Rome, etc. They have in preparation a new edition of Tennyson's "Maud," with illustrations and decorations by Margaret and Helen Maitland Armstrong.

DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready "What to Have for Dinner," by Fannie Merritt Farmer, illustrated with many colored plates; "Chronicles of the Little Tot," in the well-known child verse of Edmund Vance Cooke, which promises to be a leading holiday book in its season; "Games for Everybody," by M. E. Hofmann, dealing only with indoor games; "Euterpe," the first volume of a collection of madrigal and other music of the 16th and 17th centuries, edited by Charles Kennedy Scott; "Wandering Willie's Tale," by Sir Walter Scott, in the Little Prose Masterpieces series; and in the King's Classics series "The Nun's Rule," being the "Ancien Ricole," modernized by James Morton and edited by Professor Gallancz.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have recently brought out a volume entitled "Mary, Queen of Scots: Her Life Story," by A. H. Millar, who tells in a straightforward way the story of the romantic and picturesque events in the life of one of the most interesting women in history. They have just published in the World's Epoch Makers a scholarly study of "Socrates," by the Rev. J. T. Forbes, who not only treats of Socrates as a man and one of the greatest of epoch makers, but also treats of the religious and moral thought of Greece as voiced in the works of the great Greek tragedians; also, a new and attractive life of William Hogarth, by G. Baldwin Brown, in which the great artist is treated not merely as a satirist, but in a broader way as one of the makers of British art, because he was one of the first outstanding personalities of the English school of painting.

E. V. Harrington, whose memoirs are here presented, stands for a certain class of American business men of the present day—uncultured, unscrupulous and ambitious—eager to make money quickly, not questioning the methods. He came to Chicago in 1877 a penniless boy, found a situation to drive a butcher's wagon, and gradually rose to be a man of prominence and the moving spirit of the great Meat Products Company, finally representing Illinois in the U. S. Senate. A glimpse is given of the days of the Haymarket riot and the trial that followed; also of the great World's Fair. While the people and incidents are commonplace, Mr. Herrick pictures phases of American life successfully.

Hadley owes its existence to a religious controversy in the churches of Hartford and Wethersfield. It grew so hot that Governor John Webster and his friends decided to seek a new home where they could be at peace. Consequently in 1659 a company of sixty colonists journeyed fifty miles through the wilderness and laid the foundation of the present town of Hadley in the Connecticut Valley. Sylvester Judd's "History" of this enterprise was published in 1863. It has long been out of print and the demand for a new edition has led to this republication. A biographical sketch of Judd is included.

Hadji Khan, calling himself "Haji Raz," is a devout Mohammedan who has been educated in England. Like all sincere followers of the Prophet he determines to undertake the pilgrimage to Mecca, the highest act of devotion in the Mohammedan faith. The concluding chapters relate especially to Meccan scenes and customs. The greater part of this work appeared first in the London Morning Post.—Index.

Tells the story of the men of General Joe Shelby's command who refused to surrender after the fall of the Confederacy and then offered their services to Maximilian, the French-imposed emperor of Mexico. Their messenger to convey this offer is John Dinwiddie Driscoll, a dare-devil, chivalrous young Missourian, who immediately on entering Mexico becomes involved in thrilling adventures in which he takes upon himself the protection of a fascinating French woman, sent as a secret emissary of Napoleon III. to deliver Mexico into his hands. Maximilian figures prominently in the story in anything but heroic light. After bitter struggling between her love for France and her love for the Missourian, even allowing herself to be lightly spoken of rather than betray her secret mission, Jacqueline at last stands clear before the world, free to make a choice.

The question of nutrition is of basic importance if we would have individual and national health. An examination of statistics, such as the author has conducted, shows that there is an alarming disregard among modern nations for the vital matter of food. Mr. Russell cites the opinions of scientists on the proper diet of man; tabulates the values of foods; outlines the diets of ancient peoples and gives in detail that of various modern countries; examines the effects of narcotics and stimulants, and notes the relation between diet and disease. His personal bias is in favor of a non-flesh diet.

The first edition of this work, published in 1877, contained the results of the author's six years' residence in Russia. Since then he has spent almost two years in the European and Central Asian provinces and has kept closely in touch with the progress of events. Determined at first to write an entirely new work on Russia, Wallace found upon investigation that the changes during the last quarter century had been all along the old lines; everywhere he perceived "continuity and evolution." So instead of writing an entirely new book, the author has prepared a much extended and amplified edition of the old one, reviewing, rearranging and supplementing the old material in the light of subsequent events. Five new chapters have been added, three on the revolutionary movement, one on the industrial progress, and another on the main lines of the present situation. The book has long been considered a standard work.

Then in glaring contrast the author describes the trial of Jesus, and shows wherein it was contrary to all accepted Hebrew laws, and, therefore, must have been simply the result of mob rule.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 5, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE LONDON TIMES' BOOKSTORES AND CIRCULATING LIBRARIES.

IT is reported that the London Times is contemplating the establishing of a circulating library and of a large bookshop in the West End of London for the accommodation of its annual subscribers only. This leads one of our English contemporaries to foresee the possibility of "The Thunderer's" also invading the publishing field. "Many works the property of the Times," says the London Publisher and Bookseller, "have by arrangement been issued for them by publishers. It seems feasible, therefore, that, while developing this library and bookstore scheme, they will more specifically become independent publishers, and may even enter actively into competition with publishers for the rights of important books. For example, it would be no matter for surprise if the official 'Life of Beaconsfield,' when it appears, were to carry the Times imprint. This would be a distinct departure, and if so, why not many other important books? They could certainly bring them to very great prominence, with the prospect of extensive sales."

It is no secret that many department stores make it a practice to sell certain articles, notably those of which the price is generally well known, at close to cost price, in fact, when forced to do so by other competitors, to sell them below actual cost. This is done not in the expectation of developing the departments in which such goods are slaughtered into profitable or self-supporting sections of the main business, as to lead the public to believe that the same pseudo-philanthropic policy fixes the prices of all the goods sold in the establishment, which, notoriously, is not the fact. We imagine, therefore, that the Times has figured out the problem of running a circulating library and bookstore not so much with a prospect of immediate profit on these two ventures as in the hopes that they may aid in raising its circulation, which, we understand, has of late years fallen away considerably. As for invading the publishing field, the Times very likely is not insensible to the fact that in having antagonized the retail book-trade by its present ventures, it would be obliged to overcome too many difficulties in finding or creating profitable sources of distribution to make the game worth the candle. It must be clear to the Times that it cannot expect the hearty support of men hitherto its faithful coadjutors, when it is taking steps to cut away the business of those men for its own benefit.

ACCORDING to a leading Melbourne bookseller, American novels are steadily winning favor with Australian readers. The outlook seems to be that American books in a short time will be a considerable slice of the book-trade in "the bush." In the meantime how many American publishers, in arranging for foreign markets, are keeping Australia in view? A country with upwards of five million English readers might be worth while cultivating. A few houses have tried the experiment with entire satisfaction with the results.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL for 1905 will contain the catalogues and shorter lists of 321 publishers. Every bookseller knows its value. After its long and successful existence even its publishers can think of no new word to say of its merits as a time-saving trade-tool and reliable trade promoter. The volume is now in the bindery and will be ready for shipping within ten days. As heretofore, its price is $2, but any orders, accompanied by remittance, received before the day of publication will be filled at $1.50, according to long established custom.

THE INTERNATIONAL BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY REPUDIATED.

NATHAN HASKELL DOLE writes from Ogunquit, Me., to The Nation in regard to the International Bibliophile Society as follows:

"My attention has been called to a publication calling itself 'The Bibliophile Library of Literature, Art, and Rare Manuscripts,' and bearing the imprint of 'The International Bibliophile Society.' My name is used as one of the editors.

"I wish to state emphatically that I have never been engaged by any International Bibliophile Society to edit any such 'Library.' I have the honor of being president of the Bibliophile Society, the publications of which are distributed only to members. It is not in any way a mercantile association; it consists of five hundred of the most enthusiastic book-lovers in the country. On its Council are men like the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge and Professor William P. Trent, of Columbia University. Through the courtesy and unselfish zeal of one of its Western members, it has been enabled to issue an unprecedentedly valuable series of books of literary and historical interest, such as 'Major André's Journal,' Marat's 'Lettres Polonaises,' and the like. The so-called International Bibliophile Society is apparently trying to trade on the reputation which our society has legitimately won. Its methods, as frequently brought to my notice by friends, are fraudulent and outrageous, and I have been advised to bring a legal injunction against their persistent use of my name, the only shadow of an excuse for which is the fact that, some years ago, I outlined a plan and helped to compile the 'International Library of Literature,' which was published by Merrill & Baker. The plan, embodying a combination of topical and chronological arrangements, thoroughly educational in character, was at one time attributed to Dr. Garnett, who promptly repudiated its authorship, and joined with me in a protest against having his name in any way associated with this same pseudo-International Bibliophile Society, though he is an enthusiastic member of the genuine society."

DEMAND FOR STEVENSON'S WORKS.

THE sales of individual books in the new Biographical edition of the works of Robert Louis Stevenson give an interesting indication of the comparative popularity of his various writings. The most remarkable fact is the evenness of the sales of his better known stories. Among the first books published in this edition were "Kidnapped," "David Balfour" and "New Arabian Nights." The sale of those three books has kept up at about the same rate, with "Kidnapped" slightly in the lead. Of the later volumes, which include "Treasure Island," "Prince Otto," "Island Night's Entertainment," "The Black Arrow," "The Master of Ballantrae," "An Inland Voyage," and "Travels with a Donkey," the one that easily heads the list is "Treasure Island," which promises soon to outdo in point of sales all the other books in the series.

SHAKESPEARE QUARTOS SOLD.

THE last sale of the season at Sotheby's, on July 29, will always be of historic interest, as it included five early Shakespeare quartos—the property of George Carrington, of Great Missenden, Eng. The total realized for the five books was $14,250, the prices of the separate books being as follows: "Second Part of the History of Henry the Fourth," 1605, (with the autograph of William Penn, probably the father of the founder of Pennsylvania, whose quarto copy of "King Richard the Third" was sold on July 12,) $2500; "True Chronicle History of the Life and Death of King Lear," 1608, $4500; "Tragedie of King Richard the Second," 1605, $1250; "Historie of King Henry the Fourth," with the Battle of Shrewsburie, 1608, $5000; "The Most Excellent Historie of the Merchant of Venice," etc., 1652, $1000. It is stated that the first four were bought for American collectors.

A STUPENDOUS COPYRIGHT FRAUD.

CHARLES MALHERBE, librarian of the Paris Opéra, has, according to the London Telegraph, made a strange discovery regarding Donizetti's copyrights in France. He met in Italy some time ago the grandnephews of the composer, Gaetano and Joseph Donizetti. In conversation he happened to say that he supposed the performances of their grand-uncle's operas in France brought in a fair sum to his heirs. The two Donizettis looked surprised, and answered that they had never been paid royalties on any French representations. M. Malherbe has made inquiries, and now believes this statement to be correct. Donizetti died in 1848, and the copyright of his works, according to French law, remained in force in France until 1898. The Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers undertakes to levy all royalties on all French performances. But by some extraordinary accident it is stated that this has not been done in the case of Donizetti's rightful heirs since 1870.

"It appears that in that year the composer's heirs heard from some one, believed to be a clerk of the society, that 'copyright royalties were no longer paid in France,' and were satisfied with this statement, troubling no more about the question afterward. Nevertheless, these royalties were regularly paid by the society. The conclusion is that they were drawn by the clerk in question. The latter, if this story be true, has therefore been thriving for twenty-eight years, until the copyright lapsed, on the proceeds of the performances of Donizetti's operas in France. The sum he is alleged to have thus pocketed amounts to tens of thousands of pounds. One can readily imagine that the author's royalties of about 5 per cent. on every representation of 'La Favorita,' 'Lucia di Lammermoor,' 'La Figlia di Regimento,' etc., from 1870 to 1898 in France, must reach a large total. The heirs of the writers of the libretti of the operas have duly received their share of the rights, whereas the heirs of the composer have, it is alleged, been frustrated of their due all that time."

COMMUNICATIONS.

CHEAP EDITIONS OF RECENT FICTION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

THE season is close at hand when publishers will commence to advertise their new fall publications. We will get many calls for these books from customers who have read the reviews and criticisms.

In consideration of the fact that so many rebind editions are made of recent copyright fiction, would it not be well for the publisher to insert the line in his advertising "not published in any other edition," or "not published in cheaper editions?"

Our varied experience has taught us that over fifty per cent. of our customers on being shown new or protected fiction will ask for a cheaper or rebind edition, as they have been educated somewhat in this direction on account of so many publishers putting out a line of rebinds of their passé copyrights. Nevertheless, I am strongly in favor of rebinds, as it gives the masses a splendid chance for up-to-date good reading for a small outlay, and also gives the publisher and jobber a chance for a considerable profit in that a great number are sold in the course of a year, our business alone in this direction amounting to thousands of dollars, thanks to the enterprising firm who are pre-eminent in this line.

However, before putting out a line of rebinds or consenting to allow a cheaper edition to be made, the publisher should have some consideration for the retail dealer, who often suffers material loss when a cheap edition is thrust on the market without notice, in that he is nearly always caught with a considerable remainder of these titles on hand in the original edition, which he finds next to impossible to unload at a profit or even for cost when the cheaper edition is put on the market. I am of the opinion that it would be entirely proper to allow him the privilege of exchanging his remainder of the titles for the cheaper edition, dollar for dollar, provided, of course, that his unsold copies are in good, clean condition; or, better still, grant a rebate of a differential amount between the cost of the cheap editions and original editions.

Every retailer is aware of the fact that the greatest shrinkages in values occur in copyright or recent fiction. (I make this confession with apologies to the author of "Confessions of a Publisher.") Previous sales of any book by a certain author being no criterion as to the amount of sale of any forthcoming book by the same author, consequently I do not consider it an exorbitant request to ask the author to rebate the royalty to the publisher on all unsold copies of the original edition when a cheaper edition is put upon the market.

The publisher, jobber and retailer have expended their time and money in pushing the work, and I think it nothing more than right that the author should stand a little of the shrinkage in cases like the above.

Just one question before I close, and I ask it in all good faith; but before putting the said question, I desire to place myself on record to the extent that I am now, always have been, and always will be in favor of a uniform bottom price set for the sale of copyright fiction, for many reasons so well known to the exclusive booksellers it would be superfluous to mention them here. I have always adhered rigidly to the Association's provisions, and would like to see them "win out" in their several legal entanglements which are now in "lis pendens" before the New York courts.

A few weeks ago a copy of "Stingaree" was found in a store "under the ban" in Philadelphia, which had been sold originally by our jobber to us. Ten copies was all we had ever bought; seven copies we accounted for, as they were sold to customers with whom we had a personal acquaintance, yet we found on investigation this same store had on hand at that time twenty-five additional copies. Where did they come from? This question ought to be easily answered, as each book is supposed to contain a private number and a record of their disposition kept by the publisher and jobber.

I don't care a "rap" about these price-cutters. I can sell just as many books to my "constituency" for $1.08 as "my friend the enemy" can to his at 98 cents. But let us stand by our signatures rigidly; so I would like to ask of the "powers that be" this question, viz: If the source of supply of one or two books can be located, why not the source of supply of the thousands that are now piled up on the counters of those who are the complainants in the action of Macy & Co. vs. The American Publishers' Association. Let us be diligent in the search, and when the guilty party is found

"Lay on Macduff
And damned be he who first cries
Hold, enough!"

R. E. SHERWOOD.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE F. FULLER, a well-known writer of the past generation, died at Montvale, N. J., on July 4, aged eighty-five. Mr. Fuller's contributions to the Louisville Courier-Journal under the pseudonym of "Mahlstick" may still be remembered by older readers. He was likewise known as a landscape painter and as a theatrical manager, in which latter capacity fifty years ago he acted as agent for many stars and companies.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Burlington Magazine, for July, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, contains a number of articles of a practical nature. The leading paper is on "English Architectural Leadwork," the first of a series by Lawrence Weaver, showing some fine specimens of heads for water pipes and leaders. A short account of a seventeenth century wall paper is full of suggestion for the modern designer. An article on Sutton Place by Guildford, the famous Tudor manor, is of great practical interest to architects. There are besides notes on art abroad and in this country, the usual departments, etc. The frontispiece is a photogravure reproduction of a portrait of Mr. Vestries, by Gainsborough.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. ELISABETH WILLARD BROOKS, the author of "As the World Goes By," one of the new novels published by Little, Brown & Co., was married late in June to Professor Maximilian L. Kellner, of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. The bride was the widow of Rev. Arthur Brooks, late rector of the Church of the Incarnation, New York, a brother of Phillips Brooks. She is well-known in social circles in New York and Cambridge.

SIDNEY L. GULICK, whose two books on Japan, "The Evolution of the Japanese" and "The White Peril," have won him the admiration of both Americans and Japanese, has been appointed to the Chair of Systematic Theology in Doshisho, (the Christian University of Japan.) In preparation for his new duties, he has just completed a tour of visitation of the leading divinity schools of this country, and has now sailed for Germany to make a careful study of the methods of the leading German theological schools, and will spend next winter doing the same among the English and Scottish institutions.

IDA M. TARBELL, now that she has finished her character study of John D. Rockefeller, which begins in the current number of McClure's and will be concluded in August, is at work upon the story of the Standard Oil in Kansas. Miss Tarbell spent some time in the Kansas and adjacent oil fields in the early spring, but dropped the subject reluctantly to write her estimate of John D. Rockefeller's character, which was made a vital national question by the great tainted-money controversy. The Kansas situation is to be treated in two papers: "What Standard Oil Did to Kansas," "What Kansas did to Standard Oil." The titles indicate pretty clearly how the battle has progressed.

REUBEN GOLD THWAITES, the author of "France in America," just off the Harper press, the comprehensive edition of the "Journals of the Lewis and Clark Expedition," now published by Dodd, Mead & Co., and a number of other important historical works, was born in Dorchester, Mass., and received his education at the public schools there. Being ambitious, he studied collegiate courses by himself, and in 1874 took a post-graduate course at Yale. He was at this time but twenty-one years of age. He then became managing editor of the Wisconsin State Journal until 1886, at which time he resigned to become secretary and superintendent of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and lecturer on American history at the University of Wisconsin. He is a member of the Wisconsin Free Library Commission, and was formerly president of the American Library Association, and chairman of the American Historical Manuscript Commission. He has published a number of historical works since 1888, besides many monographs on the history of New France and the Middle West. He has also edited many important works. "France in America," his latest book, covers a field to which the author has always given special study, and is volume VII. in the American Nation series, edited by Professor A. B. Hart, of Harvard University.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation a novel of New England rural life by Miss Alice Brown, entitled "Paradise."

W. A. WILDE & Co. have in press two interesting volumes by Miss Mary Hazelton. The first will inaugurate a new series to be known as Uncle Sam's Old Time Stories, the narratives being put into the mouth of an old-fashioned patriotic American. The book will be entitled "The Coming of the White Men," and will be illustrated by Sears Gallagher.

J. ARCHIBALD MURRAY, of New York City, trustee in bankruptcy, is now prepared to offer for sale as an entirety the business, goodwill and assets of Merrill & Baker, or to offer in parcels the stock in trade and publications of that corporation. He has prepared a detailed catalogue which can be examined at the trustee's office, or which will be sent upon request for inspection. The trustee will receive offers for the purchase of this property up to and including August 31. He reserves the right to reject any and all bids that may be made.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have received from Ella Middleton Tybout, author of the successful volume of short stories entitled "Poketown People," the manuscript of her first novel, which is to be called "The Wife of the Secretary of State," and will be issued early in the autumn. In October this house will bring out a new novel by Mrs. A. Maynard Barbour, author of "That Mainwaring Affair," but the title is still being discussed. A special holiday edition of "Miss Cherry Blossom," with many illustrations and a rich Japanese binding, is also in preparation.

A. N. MARQUIS & Co., Chicago, have just brought out "The Book of Chicagoans," a biographical dictionary of leading living men of the city of Chicago, edited by John W. Leonard, who has done such good editorial work on "Who is Who in America." The new book is modelled on the plan of the latter book. It confines itself to people of good standing and reputable vocation, and therefore some names prominently before the public in the daily press will be missed from its pages. It is planned from time to time to revise this compilation and corrections and new matter will always be appreciated.

MRS. THURSTON'S "The Masquerader," (Harper,) published in England as "John Chilcote, M.P.," has gone into a sixpenny edition in that country, and editions in translation have been arranged for, for Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Quite recently the Harpers received one order for this book covering 6000 copies, and it will probably get a new lease of life when it appears on the stage as promised in the fall. "The Marriage of William Ashe," which the same publishers are fortunate enough to control in this country, is also being dramatized by arrangement between William A. Brady and Mrs. Ward.

THE MONARCH BOOK COMPANY, long known as one of the largest subscription book publishing concerns in the West, has established a trade book department under the management of Andrew Hamming, who brings to the position an ample experience that makes him well fitted to bring up his department. They announce an "Official History of the Russian-Japanese War," by J. Martin Miller, fully illustrated; "The Blue Ribbon Cook Book," by Annie R. Gregory, who has been assisted by many practical housewives; "A Bundle of Sunshine," a book of cheer by Press Woodruff; also, a drawing book for the little folks.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY are again preparing for the holidays a new volume in the series of gorgeous color books Mortimer Menpes and his talented daughter Dorothy are devoting their lives to. This book is on "Brittany," for which the father furnishes seventy-five paintings from which the illustrations to the volume are made and for which the almost equally colored text is prepared by the daughter. A new volume is added to the Cambridge Geographical Series by G. Le Strange, devoted to "The Lands of the Eastern Caliphate: Mesopotamia, Persia and Central Asia from the Moslem Conquest to the Time of Timur," which will be an important addition to the world's knowledge of the Orient. The early autumn will bring Emerson Hough's new novel, "Heart's Desire," and Eden Phillpotts's volume of short stories, entitled "Knock On a Venture."

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING CO. have two attractive juveniles on their summer lists. "Flower Babies," by Elizabeth May, with pictures by Ida May Rockwell, shows one hundred of our common flowers in natural colors, accompanied by bright verses which describe the colored illustrations of children at play. "Jim Crow Tales" contains a wealth of field lore, describing in fiction form wild life, frolics and work of the denizens of the forest. The author, Burton Stoner, is said to have gathered the bulk of his material during a long stay in northern lumber-camps. This house also has in preparation a most useful work by Dr. Benjamin F. Weaver, entitled "The Lightning Doctor," wherein are fully described various diseases and the best known remedies. There are many illustrations showing where pains may be located and the diseases of which each one is a symptom.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish shortly the first volume of J. E. Wessely's "Pocket Dictionary of the English and French Languages," rewritten, improved and much enlarged by Edward Latham; a new illustrated edition of Captain Mayne Reid's stories, "The Flag of Distress," "The Death Shot," and "The White Chief," with illustrations by F. C. Tilney; "An Alphabet of Athletics," by Eustace Miles, in the Fitness Series, giving instructions for the correct positions in the different games, some physical exercises, etc.; "Studies of Great Composers," by C. Hubert I. Parry, dealing with Handel, Bach, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Weber, Schubert, Schumann, Wagner and others; also, in the Photogravure Series, a new authorized edition of Andrew Lang's well-known translation of "Aucassin and Nicolette," with illustrations, in photogravure, from the drawings by Gilbert James.

THE GRAFTON PRESS appeal to a large public of Princeton graduates and students as well as to townspeople in publishing their "Handbook of Princeton." The author, John Rogers Williams, knows whereof he writes, as he is connected with an administrative department of the university. He tells the history of the college, describes its grounds and buildings, and pays special attention to the Theological Seminary, Lawrenceville School and Princeton town. President Woodrow Wilson has contributed an introduction, and there are numerous engraved illustrations taken especially for this book, while both paper and binding are excellent. The Grafton Press also announce that they have secured for publication in America a number of genealogical and historical publications of T. C. & E. C. Jack, of London. The list includes such works as Fox-Davies's "Armorial Families," the Marquis of Ruvigny and Raineval's "The Jacobite Peerage," "The Blood Royal of Britain," etc.

FOX, DUFFIELD & Co. announce for early publication a story by Clarence S. Darrow, of Chicago, entitled "An Eye for an Eye." Mr. Darrow, who is special counsel for Mayor Dunne, of Chicago, in the matter of municipal ownerships and also counsel for the Teamsters' Union, has been in the very thick of recent sociological developments in the city on Lake Michigan. "An Eye for an Eye," which is only the second book he has ever published, tells the story of a murder and the murderer's expiation of his crime, the narrative taking the form of a long talk between the murderer and a friend who visits him in prison the night before the hanging. They have in preparation an illustrated edition of Kenyon Cox's "Old Masters and New;" also a book on the history of those English "miracles" and "moralities," of which "Everyman" is now so familiar, prepared by Professor Charles Mills Gayley, author of "The Star of Bethlehem," who is United States delegate to the International Congress on the Reproduction of Manuscripts to meet at Brussels this summer.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY, the Bodley Head, have just brought out a volume entitled "Thought Forms," by Annie Besant and C. W. Leadbeater, in which the authors, from a theosophical standpoint, are putting before students a little more plainly that has hitherto been done some of the facts in nature which they think will render more intelligible the results at which Dr. Baraduc, of Paris, is arriving in his experiments of photographing the subtle forces invisible to the eye. In the present volume the drawing and painting of the thought forms observed by the authors has been done by John Varley, Mr. Prince and Miss Macfarlane. The drawings, for the most part in color, are reproduced in their original tones in fifty-eight illustrations. The forms shown, it is claimed, are not imaginary, but are drawn from life, being representations of forms actually observed, and reproduced with all possible care and fidelity by those who have seen them or with the help of artists to whom the seers have described them.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. The attention of State libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries is especially called to this publication, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State, and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry, for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

PARISIANS OUT-OF-DOORS

By F. BERKELEY SMITH

Author of "How Paris Amuses Itself" and "The Real Latin Quarter."

If you read this bright and breezy book you will go with the author everywhere out of doors with Parisians, at play within the sparkling city itself, among the merry-makers of the Bois, in cozy café terraces, and in all the corners of unroofed Paris; out of Paris, in sylvan nooks and kingly forests, over smooth highways sentineled by lofty poplars, through fields gay in poppies; at the seashore resorts, on the sunny sands at Trouville, in the flower scented Riviera; in quaint inns and villages of Normandy—yes, everywhere where Parisians amuse themselves out of doors.

FREDERIC REMINGTON says: "Smith's delightfully sympathetic Paris ['Parisians Out of Doors'] would make a wooden Indian part with his cigars."

"It is a kaleidoscopic miscellany of anecdote, grave and gay; brief bits of biography and impressionistic portrayal of types, charming glimpses into Parisian life and character, and, above all, descriptions of the city's chief, and, to outward view, sole occupation—the art of enjoying oneself. Tourists have learned that Mr. Smith is able to initiate them into many mysteries uncatalogued or only guardedly hinted at by more staidly respectable and professional guides."—The Globe, New York.

"Mr. Smith holds the world of Paris in the hollow of his hand. This is an ideal book for summer reading."—New York Press.

"As bright and entertaining as either of his predecessors."—New York Times.

"Altogether delightful in its wanderings and its chattiness and its drawings."—New York World.

"His descriptions of life in Paris are fascinating."—Standard Union, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"In a breezy, informal style, the author pictures every form of out-of-door amusement in and about the capital of the world's fun."—Nashville American.

12mo, cloth, illustrated with drawings by the author and several French artists, and water-color frontispiece by F. Hopkinson Smith. $1.50 net; by mail, $1.64

First and Second Editions Sold Out. Third Edition in Press

"It is replete with anecdotes, and observations relating to the humorous side of life, intimate bits of interesting personalia, and bright and witty chat concerning things in general."—Pittsburg Leader.

THE SUNNY SIDE of the STREET

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

In the irresistible pages of this merry book you will find a wealth of interesting personalia about prominent men the author has known. You will find innumerable amusing and entertaining experiences, stories and anecdodes, and in order that Mr. Wilder's feast may not be all sauce, there are many little bits of pathos that cannot help but warm your heart.

President Theodore Roosevelt: "His stories are excellent" | Ex-President Grover Cleveland: "The prince of entertainers."

"Reading this book is like listening to a humorous lecture by Marshall P. Wilder, full of wit and brightness, and it will cheer and comfort the most morose man or woman just to read it."—Baltimore American.

Illustrated with humorous drawings. 12mo, cloth, ornamental cover. Frontispiece portrait of the author. 350 pp.

The New Novel by ANTHONY HOPE, author of "Quisante," "Phroso," "The Prisoner of Zenda," etc.

A SERVANT of the PUBLIC

This story, in Mr. Hope's happiest vein, promises to be his most successful recent novel. It is a sympathetic study of the private life and feelings of a famous actress —of how her profession influenced her actions and made her what she was. While about an actress it is not about the stage, and holds nothing in common with the conventional novel of the theater.

Mr. Robert Herrick's The Memoirs of an American Citizen

A FOOL FOR LOVE

THE NEW POCKET BOOK

Drawn by George Brehm for "A Fool for Love"

Everybody who reads fiction read "The Grafters," and knows that nobody can tell a tale of railroad life like Francis Lynde.

In his new novelette he has combined a thrilling right-of-way war between two Colorado railroads and a love story of peculiar charm and power.

The plot moves with the rapidity of those drumming wheels that resound through the pages.

NOTES IN SEASON.

IN the Educational List, 1905, the publications of W. R. Jenkins should be marked with a dagger (†), indicating that these books are at ordinary retail prices, postage included, instead of with an asterisk (*). We regret this error, as especial pains were taken to obtain correct information regarding prices in the recent revision, even to the extent of sending registered letters to all publishers who did not respond to our earlier inquiries.

BOBBS-MERRILL CO. have just ready two novels of typical American life. "The Man of the Hour," by Octave Thanet, describes the son of a self-made man and a Russian princess who put Tolstoyan theories to practical test in dealing with the labor conditions in the Middle West in the time of the great Pullman strike, fifteen years back. "A Fool for Love," by Francis Lynde, tells of the building of a "rival road" to a mining camp just beyond Denver, and of the young engineer's perplexities in fighting the uncle of the girl who strove to make him "a fool for love." The latter story is one of the pretty little Pocket Books that are all devoted to crisp, original, well-told tales.

THOMAS B. MOSHER, Portland, Me., has just ready a second and augmented edition of "The Poetical Works of Oscar Wilde," including the entire text of the following separate works: "Ravenna," (The Newdigate Prize Poem of 1878;) "The Poems," (as issued in 1881;) "The Sphinx," (1894;) "The Ballad of Reading Gaol," (1898;) together with eight heretofore uncollected poems, viz: Le Jardin des Tuileries; With a copy of "A House of Pomegranates;" The True Knowledge; On the Recent Sale by Auction of Keats' Love Letters; The New Remorse; The Harlot's House; Under the Balcony; Wasted Days. This edition has for frontispiece the London portrait of Wilde, taken by Ellis and Walery in 1892, and reproduced by the Bierstadt process in albertype.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY will publish August 26 "A Daughter of the South," by George Cary Eggleston, a romance of the end of the Civil War, of which the scene is the lower Mississippi River; and "The Little Green Door," by Mary E. Stone Bassett, a story of the time of Louis XIII., to whose garden the little door leads. For "The Daughter of the South" and for "The Boss of Little Arcady," by Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders," the publishers have received large advance orders from Australia. The fourth impression is needed of "Lalitha Cumi," Annie J. Holland's Christian Science novel, published last fall. In the early spring of 1906 Dwight Tilton will have a novel ready entitled "The Golden Greyhound," fully up to date with the latest discoveries in wireless telegraphy.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish September 16 "Rose o' the River," by Kate Douglas Wiggin, illustrated in color by George Wright. It is a charming story of the Saco River, Maine, with its wild beauty, its exciting log-driving, its heroism and romance, all described by the magic pen that drew for us the portrait of "Rebecca." In October there is promised an exquisite holiday edition of "Her Letter," one of the three classic poems that made "the love-suit on Poverty Flat," for which Arthur I. Keller has made nine full-page colored illustrations and over thirty full-page sketches in tint, many head and tail pieces and a decorative cover. This bids fair to rank among the most artistic and pleasing holiday books of the coming season. Just ready is "The Green Shay," by George S. Wassin, a story of one of those Maine coast villages which the decline of the fishing industry has left to perish slowly, deserted by the young and hopeful element.

The 2500 living artists whose names are included in this book, have all had works accepted for public exhibition by recognized art juries in our prominent art museums, institutes or clubs, etc.; or (if they have never made a practice of appearing in exhibitions), they have been prominently brought before the public, through illustrations and designs of a meritorious character in our large, influential magazines and publications. They are all Americans by birth or citizenship. The plan followed is that of "Who's Who?" The artist's specialty and his medium of production immediately follows the name, then the facts of his career are grouped as compactly as possible.

This revision was undertaken by Harvard University because of an unaccountable discrepancy which appeared in the composition of a sample of very pure sodic bromide as compared with the results of Jean Servais Stas in his classical work on the subject. Regretfully the writers admit that a critical study of the work of Stas upon sodium in particular reveals several possibilities of error and at least one inconsistency. Twelve very important points revealed by the investigation are given in the summary of the treatise.

"Johnny-Ivan" Winslow's father was a self-made man, hard-headed but just in his dealings with his employees in the big plough works. His mother was a Russian princess, imbued with Socialistic theories, beautiful and passionate, who had married the American in order to escape from Russian tyranny. Naturally the marriage was a failure and when "Johnny-Ivan" was ten years old, his parents separated, the boy remaining with his father. An introspective, loving, winning child, he grew to manhood torn between loyalty to his adored mother and duty to his father, whom he learned too late to appreciate. After leaving Harvard, he proceeded to put into practice his Tolstoyan theories, throwing in his lot with Chicago working men, contributing his fortune to the Pullman strike, of which there are many glimpses, and, finally, supporting himself and three orphaned children as a steel worker. The labor conditions in the Middle West of fifteen years ago are worked into the plot.

The author of "The Spenders" here tells the story of a little village community in an ideal spot in the Middle West. The boss at first was an importer. He was killed; his wife appeared and taught the village many things. Then came a Southern woman of great charm, then the character who so humorously tells the story, then his love. In turn each was a "boss" and the village grew and learned under each influence. The village paper and its editor were also live forces in the little town just "after the war was over."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 12, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION'S STATEMENTS.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION, in the two statements, respectively to the booktrade and to the public, which we reprint elsewhere, makes a strong presentation of the present legal status of the reform movement, as so far determined in what are known as the Macy suits, and of its position in the matter. The essential points are these three:

1. The copyright proprietor is assured under the constitution and copyright law an absolute monopoly in his book. This principle is laid down in numerous patent, as well as in copyright cases, by the United States Supreme Court, and by the New York Court of Appeals, represented by Judge Parker in 1901.

2. The decision as to how far this power extends is yet to be finally decided. In the patent case of the Victor Talking Machine, the Federal Court of Appeals in Illinois held that the right of a proprietor to control prices extends to the ultimate buyer, while Judge Ray, of the Federal Circuit Court of New York, a court one degree lower than the other, has held that the final control of price cannot be implied under the copyright law by a notice on the part of the seller, and must be a question of contractual relation between the publisher and the retailer.

3. The American Publishers' Association does not "fix prices," and it is not a trust. It was decided in the New York Court of Appeals that it could not protect prices on non-copyright books, and the Association has withdrawn from that field, and modified its plans accordingly; but this opinion of Judge Parker and his associates specifically indicated that the Association had a right to protect the prices of copyright books under its plan, and the obiter dictum of Judge Ray to the contrrary is of less authority than the former decision.

The Association has its strong belief that the opinion of Judge Parker, and not that of Judge Ray, will prevail when the question is finally tested in the courts of last resort. In the face of numerous mistakes, the booktrade should feel assured, and should assure customers, that the citadel of the reform plan has not been successfully attacked, and in every essential point it is likely to be upheld and fulfilled.

IT is gratifying to note that the citizens of Norway and those of the United States will hereafter be reciprocally protected as to their literary property, in their respective countries, as declared in the proclamation of the President, recently promulgated by the Copyright Office. Norway has, perhaps, the most important literature of any of the smaller nations, a literature which is essentially in vogue in the United States, and American books are more or less in demand in Norway. It is with especial gratification that Americans will hail this act of justice to Björnson, Ibsen, Grieg and their associates.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION ON JUDGE RAY'S DECISION.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION has just addressed the following circular to the trade:

Much confusion has lately arisen from newspaper articles apparently inspired by the undersellers stating that the recent decision of Judge Ray of the United States Circuit Court was in effect to declare the American Publishers' Association illegal.

This is not so. His decision in no way affects the American Publishers' Association, which has already been declared entirely legal and within its rights in maintaining prices on copyrighted books, by the New York Court of Appeals. The decision of Judge Ray is merely one of a lower court, denying the application of Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons and The Bobbs-Merrill Company, two individual publishers, for an injunction restraining the undersellers, R. H. Macy & Company, from cutting prices on their copyrighted books.

Briefly stated, the present situation is as follows: The American Publishers' Association has been upheld in their position as above stated by the New York Court of Appeals in Straus vs. American Publishers' Association. Following this decision, two individual publishers, Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons and The Bobbs-Merrill Company, attempted to go a step farther, and establish their right to the aid of the courts, in preventing the undersellers, R. H. Macy & Company, from cutting the prices on their books. To do this, they followed the reasoning of the United States Supreme Court in cases on copyright and patent, where it has been repeatedly held that, "The very object of these laws is monopoly" —in other words, that when the government grants a patent or a copyright protecting the owner from competition for a certain number of years, he is given a monopoly of the strongest sort and protected in it by the Constitution of the United States. In patent cases (Victor Talking Machine) it has already been held that this monopoly gives to the owner of it the right to fix his price and to restrain anyone from selling at less. The two publishers above mentioned, feeling as does the American Publishers' Association, that the two kinds of monopoly, copyright and patent, were essentially similar, placed notices, one on their bills, the other in their books, stating the price below which they would not allow the books sold. When these prices were broken by the undersellers, they then entered suit, stating that they had been injured in their monopoly in the same manner in which the owners of patent articles were injured in theirs, and asking for the same sort of relief, namely, an injunction restraining the undersellers from continuing.

This application is that which Judge Ray, sitting in the lowest United States Court, has just denied on two very technical grounds: First, he doubted whether the rule in patent cases would apply because of certain verbal differences between the patent and the copyright laws; second, he was of the opinion that the language of the notices was not sufficiently precise.

Of course, these views are entitled to the respect due to Judge Ray's position and experience, but whether this narrow and technical application of the copyright law will be sustained by the Federal Courts of Appeals remains to be seen. The learned Judge having thus disposed of the one point raised by the publishers, then proceeded to consider quite a different question, namely, whether these concerns were not open to criticism as being parties to an illegal combination existing for the purpose of controlling the trade and monopolizing interstate commerce. Judge Lacombe, of the United States Circuit Court, had previously decided that allegations made by Macy & Company to the effect that we were an illegal combination, were "impertinent," or in other words that they had nothing to do with the case. Nevertheless, Judge Ray, in spite of this decision of the Circuit Judge went on to express himself at great length, and with great freedom and considerable rhetorical emphasis upon the question of the validity of the American Publishers' Association.

As stated above, this has already been decided in our favor by the highest court of the state, the Court of Appeals, and was not in any way on trial in the present case.

Everyone who has any acquaintance with the workings of the American Publishers' Association, knows very well that it is in no sense a "trust" or combination of the kind which the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was intended to suppress. It is an Association merely for the regulation and correction of certain abuses in the trade.

In conclusion, we wish to assure our members and the trade that it is the intention of Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons and The Bobbs-Merrill Company to continue their efforts in securing a reversal of this opinion of a lower court. An appeal from Judge Ray's decision is to be taken as soon as possible, and we are confident that the higher court may be relied upon not to fall into the very patent error into which Judge Ray has inadvertently been led, and which has obviously vitiated all his conclusions.

Permit us to say further that no attention should be given to the many rumors circulated and mis-statements inspired with the evident intention of discrediting our Association. There has never been a time in the history of the present movement when the Association was in better condition, and we feel more than ever convinced of the ultimate success of our plan.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.
F. C. J. Tessaro, Manager.

The association with a view of counteracting the wrong impression circulated through the advertisements of Macy & Co., has also addressed the following circular to the public which has been printed in the more important newspapers throughout the country:

In view of the statements recently made about the American Publishers' Association by a Department Store with which we have been having a legal controversy, there is danger of confusion in the public mind as to the exact character of this Association.

In the first place it should be clearly understood that it is not a "Trust" in any sense of the word. It has no capital stock; there is no combination or merger of interests of any kind; its members conduct their several businesses quite independently of each other. The terms, "Publishers' Trust," and "Book Trust," can no more properly be applied to it than to the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which it very much resembles, being an association of publishers who have simply come together to endeavor to correct certain abuses of the trade; and similar associations exist in many other branches of business.

One of the most flagrant of these abuses has been the practice of certain stores of advertising and selling at cost or even less certain publications of which the prices were well known in order to attract customers to their stores and sell them other articles on which a handsome profit could be made. One store prominent in New York had for years been accustomed to sell a popular thirty-five cent magazine at twenty-four or twenty-five cents a copy, although the store regularly purchased it in large quantities at twenty-eight cents a copy—an actual loss of three or four cents being sustained on each copy sold. New copyrighted books were sold in the same manner, and for the same purpose, accompanied by the advertisement that "the saving on books to our patrons is much less than the saving of all other lines of merchandise." To persons acquainted with the facts the object of this advertising is apparent. It is intended to attract the public to this store in order to sell at a profit other lines of merchandise of which the legitimate price is not generally known. Profits realized on the latter class of goods must of necessity more than counterbalance the loss sustained by the former class, since it is evident that no store can sell all goods at cost and not become bankrupt.

While not directly affecting the publishers who receive their wholesale prices for all books sold, the effect of this cut-throat business in the trade was demoralizing and disastrous. One cut of the kind led to others in self defence or retaliation, until every holiday season saw half the dealers of the country selling certain books at practically no profit or even at a loss. Very few of the booksellers or department stores, however, themselves believed in this questionable practise or desired its continuance, and with very few exceptions they were prepared to co-operate, and they have done so most cordially, with the American Publishers' Association in its endeavors to stop this manifest abuse and enable all dealers to make a living profit, instead of treating books simply as an advertising medium.

But we have not endeavored to accomplish our object by a "Trust," or by any combination or regulations to which there can be any legal or reasonable objection. We do not fix prices, as has been erroneously reported. On the contrary, every publisher fixes his own prices and manages his own business, the efforts of the Association being merely to help him maintain the price which he has fixed.

One large department store has, however, from the beginning, steadily opposed the movement, and its proprietors at once began a suit against the Association on the ground that it was a combination in restraint of trade. This case was duly carried up to the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, which, in a decision handed down in February, 1904, by Judge Parker, declared that we were entirely within our rights in endeavoring thus to maintain the prices of copyrighted books published by our members. Indeed it was held by this court that "public policy commends the conduct of business in such a way as to serve all consumers alike."

The recent decision by Judge Ray in the Circuit Court was on the application of two individual publishers who were endeavoring to go a step further, to obtain an injunction legally restraining the underseller from selling copyrighted books at cut rates. This, it should be noted, the Association has never attempted to do. The most its members have ever done has been simply to decline to sell to dealers who will not maintain prices, which under the decision above quoted, publishers have a clear right to do. The question as to the right of the publisher of a copyrighted book to regulate its price, or Judge Ray's decision on this point, has therefore nothing to do with the status of the American Publishers' Association. We may say, however, that this matter has not as yet been by any means definitely decided. We learn that it is the intention of the individual publishers at once to appeal the case, and since it has been repeatedly held that copyrights are upon practically the same basis as patents, and as the right of the owners of patents thus to control prices has been definitely affirmed by the United States Court, we are quite positive that this same Court will yet decide this question in the publishers' favor.

COPYRIGHT TREATY WITH NORWAY.

We waited for authoritative copy from the Copyright Office and are a little late in giving the full text of the proclamation of the President issued July 1 of this year, extending to citizens of Norway the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis that that country grants to citizens of the United States:

Whereas, it is provided by section 13 of the act of Congress of March 3, 1891, entitled "An Act to amend title sixty, chapter three, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to copyrights," that said act "shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation when such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may, at its pleasure, become a party to such agreement:"

And whereas it is also provided by said section that "the existence of either of the conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation made from time to time as the purposes of this act may require:"

And whereas satisfactory official assurances have been given that in Norway the law permits to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to the citizens of that country:

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do declare and proclaim that the first of the conditions specified in section 13 of the act of March 3, 1891, is now fulfilled in respect to the subjects of Norway.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this first day of July, in the year of our Lord one one thousand nine hundred and five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-ninth.

[SEAL]

By the President: Theodore Roosevelt.

Herbert H. D. Peirce,
Acting Secretary of State.

THE BRITISH IMPERIAL COPYRIGHT ACT IN FORCE IN CANADA.

ACCORDING to the Canadian Bookseller, a cable has been received from London advising that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has affirmed the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in the case of Adam and Charles Black vs. the Imperial Book Company.

"The case involved the British copyright in the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.' A. and C. Black, of Edinburgh, are the owners of the Imperial copyright in this work, and they brought action in Toronto to restrain the Imperial Book Company importing into Canada cheap reprints of the 'Encyclopædia.' The principal defence of the Imperial Book Company was that the British Copyright Act of 1842 is not in force in Canada.

"Judge Street, who tried the case originally, held that the Imperial Acts were in force in Canada, and were unaffected by the terms of the British North America Act, which created only a local or strictly Canadian copyright, leaving unaffected the rights acquired or existing under the Imperial statute. This decision was affirmed by the Court of Appeals for Ontario, and by the Supreme Court of Canada. The Imperial Book Company applied to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for leave to appeal from this judgment, and the application has been refused with costs.

"This decision sets at rest a contention which has frequently been made in late discussions in the press that the Imperial Act was not in force in this country."

WOOD PULP DUTY AFFIRMED.

THE United States Treasury Department won an important victory on August 4, when the Federal Circuit Court for the Northern District of New York handed down a decision affirming the action of the Board of General Appraisers in levying a countervailing duty on wood pulp made from wood cut on the crown lands of Canada.

The differences between the United States and Canada regarding the countervailing duty have been the subject of considerable customs litigation. The International Paper Company and other large paper interests have evinced much interest in the outcome of the fight. The test case just decided stood in the name of the F. W. Myers Company. The importers contended that the American Government has no right to impose a countervailing duty upon pulp imported from any part of the Dominion of Canada, and that in any event the extra duty cannot be imposed upon pulp manufactured in Ontario from wood cut on crown lands in the Province of Quebec. Another point insisted upon by the importers was that the countervailing duty was not leviable on pulp imported from Quebec except as to the extent that it is made from wood cut from crown lands, and upon which there has been a reduction of the stumpage dues.

Judge Ray in his decision denies the allegations of the protestants, and says the pulp cannot escape the countervailing duty because the tax is called an export duty in the United States and a "licence" in Canada.

GROSVENOR'S "BOOK OF THE PRESIDENTS."

GROSVENOR'S "Book of the Presidents," concerning the sale of which we made note in our issue of February 20, 1904, has been purchased by the Bureau of History and Biography, of which the address is Colorado Building, Suite 804, Washington, D. C. The same concern also publishes a steel finish engraving entitled "Theodore Roosevelt, his career in pictures," containing ten separate scenes of the life of the President, namely, as a Boy of Ten Years, as a College Student, as a Rancher, as a Hunter in Hunting Costume, as Assistant Secretary of the United States, at the Battle of San Juan, as Governor of New York, as Vice-President of the United States, as President of the United States, and the President and His Family.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE E. LANE, who formerly kept a book and stationery store at St. Albans, Vt., it is reported, committed suicide at Saugus, Mass., last week, by drowning. Mr. Lane, a short time ago, went through bankruptcy proceedings at St. Albans, but settled every cent of his indebtedness by paying his creditors one hundred cents on the dollar.

ALEXANDER MELVILLE BELL died in Washington, D. C., on Monday, August 7. Professor Bell, like his father, Alexander Bell, was notable for developing the art of instructing the deaf and dumb in methods of communication. He was born in Edinburgh, March 1, 1819, and taught in the University of Edinburgh from 1843 to 1865. He came to Canada in 1870 as professor of elocution at Queen's College, Kingston. In 1881 he went to Washington, and has since devoted himself to literary work, especially treating of orthoepy, phonetics, stenography and elocution. He was at one time connected with the school of vocal physiology established in Boston by his son, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the telephone inventor. For three generations the members of this family have done marvellous work in the study of sound.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Critic for August contains an article full of information by Cyrus Townsend Brady on "Magazine Circulation and Advertising;" also the address entitled "Literature as a Pursuit," delivered by Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson before the Harvard Ethical Society; and a paper by William Elliot Griffis on "The New World of Books in Japan," which contains a description of the Imperial Library.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

WILFRID WARD has been entrusted by the literary executors of the late Cardinal Newman with the task of writing the Cardinal's biography.

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM has agreed to produce two novels a year hereafter, and will have all his work published in this country bear the imprint of Little, Brown & Co.

WILLIAM LE QUEUX has completed his new novel, "Behind the Throne," which is based on the intrigues supposed to have gone on at the Quirinal in the later years of King Humbert's reign.

THE REV. W. H. KENT, a son of the well-known journalist and friend of Charles Dickens, Charles Kent, has been commissioned by the last surviving executor of Cardinal Manning to write a new life of the Cardinal. Mr. Kent was a member of the religious community at Bayswater founded by Cardinal Manning. Much new material, according to the London Athenæum, is at the biographer's disposal, including an affecting diary kept by Manning at Lavington during his wife's fatal illness; also that subject of many rumors, the paper on the Jesuits, suppressed by Mr. Purcell; and the important early correspondence with Gladstone, which that statesman, on Mr. Purcell's mistaken authority, believed and complained that Manning had destroyed. The volume will be ready for issue by Burns & Oates at the end of the year."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

R. A. BOICE, formerly of the Scientific American, now represents the advertising department of the Colver Publishing House.

JAMES L. CROWDER, formerly with A. C. McClurg & Co., succeeds Edwin W. Hall as representative of Charles Scribner's Sons.

"CAMERON OF LOCHIEL," by P. A. de Gaspe, recently published by L. C. Page & Co., was published by D. Appleton & Co. in 1890 under the title "The Canadians of Old."

RAND, MCNALLY & Co. have just issued a story full of the spirit of mediæval romance by Gordon Hall Gerould, who christens his tale "Sir Guy of Warwick." The book specially appeals to young readers.

THE publishing business of the Cambridge University Press has been removed from Ave Maria Lane to Nos. 133-137 Fetter Lane, (St. Dunstan's House,) London, the premises recently acquired by the university.

THE next volumes to be published by Charles Scribner's Sons, in the Biographical edition of Robert Louis Stevenson's works, are "The Ebb-Tide," "The Merry Men," "Across the Plains," and "The Silverado Squatters," which contains "The Amateur Emigrant."

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, will publish shortly "Letters of a Self-Made President," by James J. Neville, a well-known newspaper man. The book deals with the political, social and military questions of the present time. The letters are said to be very funny.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will have ready shortly "The Flight of Georgiana," a romance of the days of the Young Pretender by Robert Neilson Stephens; and "The Grapple," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, a striking new American novel of the struggle between employer and employee in the Illinois coal fields.

BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have in preparation a new book by Edwin L. Sabin, entitled "When You Were a Boy." The greater part of the contents has already appeared serially in the Century Magazine. The volume will contain over fifty illustrations by Frederic Dorr Steele.

THE ART LEAGUE PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION have issued "The Artists' Year Book," compiled by Arthur Nicholas Hosking on the plan of "Who's Who," which gives a biographical directory of about 2500 artists, chiefly American, and is attractively printed and bound in keeping with the matter handled.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published "The Early Associations of Archbishop Temple," by F. J. Snell, with a fine portrait of the late prelate; and has in preparation for the fall "The Preacher's Guide," by the Rev. Gilbert Monks; and "The Life and Work of the Rev. A. W. Momerie," the famous English theologian of the Broad School. He also has in preparation a work on "The Pastoral Use of the Prayer Book," by Bishop Paret, of Maryland. The work consists of a series of plain talks addressed more particularly to the clergy and to divinity students.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation a work on "The Czar and the Autocracy," by an anoymous writer supposed to be a member of the Imperial Court of St. Petersburg. The book covers the "inside" history of the recent events. Some of the chapters in the book have already seen light in the London Quarterly and the National Review, where they created some attention.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready "The Psychic Treatment of Nervous Disorders," by Dr. Paul DuBois, of the University of Berne, an excellent translation by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe and Dr. William A. White; and "Superstition in Medicine," by Dr. Hugo Magnus, translated by Dr. Julius L. Salinger, which presents the erroneous and fanciful beliefs regarding sickness and its cure that have prevailed in the world from the days of ancient Rome to the present hour.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY expect to publish at once a book by Professor H. P. Willis, of Washington and Lee University, on "Our Philippine Problem." The trend of the author's discussion may be inferred from the fact that he was at one time editorial writer on the New York Evening Post, and later

Washington correspondent of the Springfield Republican. His frank discussion of the actual working of our colonial administration is based, however, on personal observation in the Philippines.

THE GRAFTON PRESS have just ready the "Postal Dictionary," formerly published by the New York Evening Post. The compilation is still in the hands of Edward St. John, who in this ninth edition has revised the work down to April, 1905. He gives in short paragraphs, alphabetically arranged, not only the elementary information sought for by the inquirer, but many important facts that are only found elsewhere tucked away in not easily accessible government publications. While not itself an official publication, many postmasters find the volume useful for ready reference in their offices.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish at once the eighth volume of the American Nation series, which is entitled "Preliminaries of the Revolution," by Professor Elliott Howard, of the University of Nebraska. The author aims to show what the issue between England and the colonies really was, and why people who had lived under one general government for a century and a half could no longer get on together. He points out the long antecedent causes leading to independence, and shows how for many years the colonists had been unconsciously preparing for their larger freedom. The period covered is from about 1763 to 1775.

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston, will shortly publish "Jay Gould Harmon," by George Selwyn Kimball, a tale of Maine life among the pines that promises to rival "Quincy Adams Sawyer" in interest and popularity; and "Lords of the Soil," a story of the life of the white settlers and the Indians of Long Island and Shelter Island in the 17th century. The authors are Mrs. Lydia A. Jocelyn, a direct descendant of Major Gordon, one of the first settlers of Long Island, and Nathan J. Cuffee, a full-blooded Indian who became totally blind in a railroad accident some time ago. He is descended from the Montauk chieftain who suffered so much from the pale faces, according to the story.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO. have just issued "Webster's Little Gem Dictionary," abridged from Webster's "International Dictionary," which gives about 23,500 words in its main alphabet, selected with remarkable insight into the daily needs of average business, up-to-date Americans. It includes a "Gazetteer" including all places in the United States of more than 10,000 inhabitants and all foreign places of more than 40,000 inhabitants; and a surprisingly complete list of foreign words and phrases. It also gives names of presidents and vice-presidents, postal rates, weights and measures, legal holidays, rules for pronunciation and capitalization, etc., giving in all about 28,000 entries to a most useful and neat looking book.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have on their fall list a new collection of poems by Dr. Minot J. Savage, entitled "America to England," from the poem read at the banquet to Whitelaw Reid on the eve of his departure as Ambassador to England; "Money Inflation in the United States," a study in social pathology by Dr. Murray Shipley Wildman, who greatly deprecates the demand for radical changes in our monetary system; and the second volume of "Portraits of the Eighteenth Century," for which they have secured the skilled services of George Burnham Ives, known for his brilliant translations of the masterpieces of Dumas, Daudet, Balzac, George Sand and others. Dmitri Merejkowski's novel about "Peter and Alexis" has been translated by Herbert Trench, and is said to present a strong picture of the giant Tsar Peter; and a very attractively bound little cook book by Olive Green will be called "What Shall We Have for Breakfast."

H. M. CALDWELL COMPANY have just brought out "In Bohemia," by James Clarence Harvey, the well-known author and after-dinner speaker. The book is alive with wit and clever ideas, some of them with a touch of pathos, and its pages are enlivened with Bohemian sketches in color and in black and white by Mucha, the renowned French poster artist, Outcault, of "Buster Brown" fame, and Francis P. Sagerson. The book is bound in three distinct styles—in cloth, full limp chamois and in full silk in a novel box matching the bindings. They have also just ready a companion volume to the "Reflections of the Morning After," entitled "The Log of the Water Wagon, or, the Cruise of the Good Ship Lithia," by Bert Leston Taylor and W. C. Gibson, both on the staff of Puck. The book is decidedly original in conception, giving the rules and regulations of the "Water Wagon," as well as dealing with the cruise of the Lithia until she foundered on the sixth day out in a terrific dust storm. The illustrations and border designs by M. L. Glackens and the eccentric cover add much to the general effect. There will be two editions—the Blue Ribbon and the Extra Dry.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. BEN

The Story of a Plainsman

With Illustrations in full Color

By MAYNARD DIXON

The trade will seldom be asked by a publisher to join forces with him on a more promising novel than "Ben Blair." When the book is displayed on your counter the attention of your customers will be first attracted by the strong, effective cover design.

Then they will be interested in the striking pictures in color — they are the kind that compel attention.

Then you can tell them it is one of the best stories of the West ever written, by a man who knows Dakota thoroughly.

BLAIR

By Will Lillibridge

To be Published October 14
PRICE, $1.50

This striking head is taken from the cover of the book, and will be used extensively in exploiting the story, as it typifies perfectly the courage and strength of the cowboy hero.

The story concerns a career that is hampered by the greatest handicap a man can have, and contains just the right elements of love, adventure, and stern fighting.

It is a long time since any modern story has described so game a struggle against tremendous odds, and certainly a more dramatic example of the survival of the fittest than the outcome of Ben Blair's love-story cannot readily be recalled.

Although the work of a new author, we believe it is likely to create a sensation by its vivid Western atmosphere and unusual plot.

The author has chosen the highly dramatic period of Pontiac's Conspiracy. He takes his hero into a network of danger and intrigue that secures the most absorbed attention from the reader, who will be delighted with the prompt ingenuity displayed by the dashing Frenchman. THE LOST VIOL

By M. P. SHIEL

Ready September 8th

It is a series of flash-light exposures of four intense natures drawn together in Fate's drag-net.

The story grips all the way. Woven through its queer plot—I might say plotting—is a strangely vivid character study. Not cold, psychological analysis, but quick, almost lightning-like flashes revealing the heights and depths of a passionate nature.

NOTES IN SEASON.

EDWARD J. CLODE, New York City, will have ready September 8 "The Lost Viol," by M. P. Shiel, in which four intense natures act out a rather intense plot, showing imagination and psychology in the making.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY publish this week three humorous books that are already assured a popular favor—"Get Next," by the author of "John Henry;" "Real Boys," by the author of "The Real Diary of a Real Boy;" and "Representing John Marshall & Co., being confessions of a commercial drummer." The nine titles of John Henry books have reached a sale of 450,000 copies.

DANA ESTES & COMPANY have just ready "Mrs. Tree's Will," by Mrs. Laura E. Richards, a charming novelette forming a sequel to "Mrs. Tree," already so sure of her place in the affections of readers. It would be unkind to give away the unusual plot, but it will only enhance expectation to say that it is one of Mrs. Richards's best New England sketches, full of humor, pathos and convincing description.

DODGE PUBLISHING CO. will publish August 25 "What God Hath (not) Joined," by Orr Kenyon, which has been read in manuscript by several clergymen, who all pronounce it a valuable addition to the discussion of a burning question. In the form of fiction many important truths on marriage and divorce are stated, and the characters of the story appear in typical situations and act their parts with truth in always interesting manner.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have a book sure of popularity in Octave Thanet's "The Man of the Hour." The labor conditions in the Middle West of fifteen years ago are worked into a well-thought-out plot. The hero is the son of a self-made, hard-working American man and an aristocratic, poetic Russian princess imbued with socialistic principles learned from Tolstoy. Loyalty to his adored mother and mental admiration for his father after the parents have agreed to separate make the boy's young life unhappy. After leaving Harvard he throws in his lot with Chicago working men during the great Pullman strike and takes upon himself the support of three orphaned children. The characters hold opinions on labor suited to their natures and the author stays in the background and works their development most artistically.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have in preparation for the fall two novels which they confidently expect will be two of the leading novels of the season. One of these is "Ben Blair," a story of Western life, by Will Lillibridge, a new writer, who is said to have absorbed the ranch atmosphere so thoroughly that his story is full of the most effective realism. Four striking illustrations in color and a strong cover design have been prepared by Maynard Dixon, the California artist, whose Western pictures are now attracting wide attention. The other novel, "A Sword of the Old Frontier," is by Randall Parrish, well known as the author of "When Wilderness Was King," now in its sixth edition, and "My Lady of the North," now in its eighth. Mr. Parrish has chosen the highly dramatic period of Pontiac's conspiracy in 1763, and takes his hero through an especially exciting series of thrilling adventures and narrow escapes from savage cruelty. The pictures for this book are printed in two colors from paintings by F. C. Yohn, who is generally admitted to be the foremost American illustrator of historical types.

The dramatic and sensational story of "Genevieve de Brabant" is told for the evident purpose of proving that retribution is a powerful force in human life. Genevieve was reared in simplicity in southern France, her life therefore was uneventful until she was brought into association, in Paris, with a man who enacts the part of villain in her remarkable history. The scenes are varied.

In a little western town a young physician confided to a friend that a man he could not respect had saved his life and the claim upon him of this fact was irksome. Later he came to New York and met a woman with whom fate threw him closely. They travelled to England for her father's health and met the distrusted life saver. The girl's father asked the doctor of the other man's character and the claims of gratitude and the counter-claims of love brought many moments when it was difficult to be just, generous and true to all.

The following renderings, says Richard Le Gallienne, have been made on the basis of two literal translations of the poet, first, the prose translation, by Colonel Wilberforce Clarke, Calcutta, 1891, and second the verse translation in accordance with the original forms, by Mr. John Payne, London, 1901. The aim of both has been exact verbal literalness at any cost rather than literary transmutation. They virtually corroborate each other. A few notes here and there explain certain orientalisms in the text. The hundred odes translated are numerically less than a sixth of the whole "Divan." Hafiz was born in Shiraz, early in the fourteenth century; the exact date of his birth or death is unknown, as is also his family name. Hafiz is similar to a college degree; it signifies one who can recite the Koran.

A working over of the sketches that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post into a novel holding up by satirical comment the sordid, unnatural and un-American conditions that obtain among the rich people of New York City. The scene is chiefly the Waldorf-Astoria where the Southern Colonel and his adopted son meet a widow and her niece who still have the attributes of old-fashioned, lovable, womanly women. The book is full of epigrammatic comment on the superficiality and lack of individuality of present day New Yorkers.

Read, Opie P., ["Arkansaw Traveller," pseud.] The son of the swordmaker: a romance. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1905.] c. 3-333 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a soldier of Rome in the time of Christ. Life among the Druids is vividly described, as a Druid princess is the heroine. The secret thoughts and ambitions and judgments of a common soldier and his early adventures among the Gauls and Britons are contrasted with the cold, hopeless philosophy of the Romans.

These lectures are to be delivered annually by the best scholars in Europe and America, in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and other cities in the United States. The titles of the lectures contained are The Egyptian religion in the earliest times, The development of the Egyptian religion, Temples and ceremonies, Magic art—The life after death, Graves and burials—The Egyptian religion outside Egypt. In the last lecture both the Jewish and Christian idea of a resurrection is traced to the ancient Egyptian conception. Index.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 19, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CONSIDERATION FOR THE RETAIL BOOKSELLER.

THE Toronto Bookseller and Stationer, in a recent editorial, critcising Canadian publishers for ignoring the existence of booksellers whenever they advertise to the consumer, closed its remarks with the following graceful and deserved compliment to one of our publishing houses: "Among the publishers who are doing the fair thing to the booksellers, let us name one firm, which, being out of Canada, need not raise any questionings here. It is the Frederick A. Stokes Co., of New York. On a pamphlet which they have just gotten out to send to consumers of books of outdoor life they place the words prominently, 'When possible order directly from your bookseller.' We understand that whenever possible this firm makes it a point to direct purchasers first to the bookseller."

Aside from any other consideration, it were desirable that every publisher should emulate the example set by the Stokes Company. In far too many cases publishers, after inducing the bookseller to stock up with their books, invade the bookseller's field, and by every device known to their clever advertising agents fish for the retail bookseller's trade. It is a short-sighted policy, to say the least, and has in many cases reacted disastrously upon the offenders, either by wiping out a certain number of booksellers altogether, or by making those who remain in the field shy of stocking up with the books of the publishers who are too keen after retail trade.

In all endeavors on the part of the publisher to develop and increase the sale of his books, the retail bookseller should have the first consideration. To divide the field with the retail bookseller not only weakens and breaks down the natural medium of distribution, but demoralizes the whole trade. Manufacturers in other lines have recognized this fact long ago, and refuse, under all circumstances, to have any commercial relations with the public, referring all inquiries and orders, even large orders accompanied with remittances, back to one of their agents, a dealer in the neighborhood from whence the order comes. It is only by encouraging and strengthening the retail distributing machinery that the booktrade as a whole can hope to attain to that efficiency of which, at present, it often falls short.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PUBLISHERS.

THE provisional programme for the International Congress of Publishers to be held in Milan, from June 6 to 10, 1906, just issued by the International Membership Committee announces that the Congress is restricted to book publishers, music publishers, art publishers, and publishers of periodicals (reviews, magazines, illustrated papers) of all countries. The membership fee is twenty francs.

Discussions can be in Italian, French, German and English. Interpreters for these languages will be present at all the sittings.

The Congress will be divided into two sections.

Section A: Authors' Rights and Publishers' Rights.

Section B: Book, Art, Music and Periodical Trade.

The discussions will be arranged in three sub-sections of the Sections A and B, formed as follows:

1. Books and periodicals.
2. Music.
3. Works of Art (engravings, prints, photographs).

Reports or papers for the Congress will be published in French; the motions in connection with the papers may be made in Italian, French, German and English. For discussion and resolution in the General Assembly only such questions can be admitted as have been dealt with in one of the sub-sections and referred by it to the General Assembly.

Finally, the papers or reports must deal with new questions of international importance which have not already been presented to former congresses and dealt with by them. Those who propose to contribute papers to the congress are requested to send particulars to the committee in care of the German Publishers' Association, at 7 Gutenbergstrasse, Leipzig.

THE STATIONERS' NATIONAL CONVENTION.

THE committee having charge of the details are at work to make the convention of the Stationers' National Association, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., October 10 to 12, a splendid success. The convention promises to be the largest and most representative gathering of stationers and of firms who are manufacturing goods used by stationers that has ever been gathered at one time, and the advantages to be derived from commingling with this assembly, aside from the pleasure to be afforded by the entertainment which will be provided, must strongly appeal to the stationers and manufacturers of the entire country.

Any one attending the convention, whether as delegate, alternate or visitor, if he is in any way affiliated with the stationery business, will be welcome to take part in any of the features of the convention, including all of the entertainments, and to have a voice in the business proceedings, except when it comes to decisive action upon any question, when the vote will be confined to the delegates.

Any information desired on the matter will be cheerfully furnished by Charles A. Stevens, the secretary of the association, 143 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

THE GOODWIN BOOK CONTRACTS VALID.

THE Goodwin incident was brought to a close on August 14, when Judge Greenbaum, of the New York Supreme Court, dismissed the suit brought by J. G. E. Cassatt, of Philadelphia, Goodwin's employers, to recover some of the embezzled money paid for subscription books to George D. Sproul, of New York. Our readers will recall the excitement caused by the slaughter of the library collected by Howard T. Goodwin, who shortly before had committed suicide. Cassatt alleged that Goodwin had stolen the money from him while in his employ in 1901. Goodwin paid to Sproul $73,000 on a contract for the purchase of rare sets of Shakespeare and Dickens. He later committed suicide, and Goodwin's employers sought to prove that the money paid to Sproul by Goodwin was some of the funds which Goodwin had embezzled.

In the opinion Justice Greenbaum says: "The court is prepared to hold that it has been sufficiently established that one Howard T. Goodwin was employed by the plaintiffs as their confidential manager; that said Goodwin committed suicide on or about the 3d day of December, 1902; that thereafter the plaintiffs discovered that said Goodwin had embezzled and misapplied to his own use large sums of moneys belonging to them, of which he had the custody or control as their agent, and that of the moneys so embezzled many thousands of dollars had been paid over to the defendant under contracts entered into between him and the deceased Goodwin. The gravamen of the complaint is that the defendant Sproul holds the said moneys so wrongfully and fraudulently paid to him by the said Goodwin subject to the duty of accounting to them (plaintiffs) for so much of the same as he has received with notice, actual or constructive, of the said Goodwin's misappropriation, or which he has received without consideration.

"The plaintiff failed to prove any knowledge whatever on defendant's part of Goodwin's misappropriations, and upon the trial the learned counsel for the plaintiff conceded that he had no proof of any knowledge on defendant's part of Goodwin's means or the sources from which he had obtained the moneys paid to him by Goodwin. Upon his brief the counsel for the plaintiffs states that 'the plaintiffs proceed upon the theory that Goodwin embezzled their funds and paid them over to the defendant Sproul, who gave him no consideration whatever for them.'

"The case is therefore narrowed down to an inquiry into the transactions between the defendant and Goodwin. It appears that Goodwin was the purchaser of rare and valuable books, and that at the time of his death he was possessed of a considerable library of scarce and costly editions, apparently purchased with the funds embezzled from his employers. Among other written contracts made with the defendant was one for a 'St. Dunstan illuminated edition of the complete works of Charles Dickens,' consisting of 105 volumes, at $1000 per volume, to be paid as follows: $2500 upon the signing of the contract, receipt whereof was acknowledged, and thereafter $1000 a month until the entire amount is paid.

"The contract appears to be a unilateral one, and no obligation is expressed by the defendants as to the time of the delivery of the books in question."

There was a similar contract for the works of Shakespeare, to consist of 100 parts at $1800 a part, payable in installments of $1000 a month. The court says that Goodwin entered into contracts with Sproul for more than $300,000 in eighteen months; that in that time he paid to the defendants more than $73,000, for which he had received publications of the agreed value of upward of $50,000.

"The court may not in this action," continues Justice Greenbaum, "inquire into the folly of Goodwin in making such contracts or the preposterousness or unfairness of the contracts. Until set aside they must be recognized as valid and binding, no matter how extraordinary they may be shown to be. The argument fails altogether to take into account the doctrine well established that money has no earmarks. The purchaser of a chattel in action may by inquiry in most cases ascertain the right of the person from whom he takes the title. But it is generally impracticable to trace the source from which the possessor of money has derived it. It would introduce great confusion into commercial dealings if the creditor who receives money in payment of a debt is subject to the risk of accounting therefor to a third person who may be able to show that the debtor obtained it from him by felony or fraud. If the consideration is good as between the parties it is good as to all the world."

MUSIC TRADEMARK IN DISPUTE.

A HEARING in a case of interest to publishers of music was had before Magistrate Breen in the Tombs Court, New York City, on August 15, when the complaint was heard of Carl Fischer, a music publisher and instrument dealer of 48 Cooper Square, New York City, against Garrett J. Couchois, a composer of music of Rutherford, N. J., with offices at 41 West Twenty-eighth Street, New York City, and Louis Eggers, proprietor of the Calumet Press, at 1 West Nineteenth Street, New York City. They were defendants because of an alleged infringement of the trade-mark law.

Fischer charges that the defendants reproduced by photography sheets of music bearing his trade-mark. These, he says, included "The Holy City," "Teasing," and others which have enjoyed a vogue. He alleges that in six months the profits accruing to the two defendants have reached $25,000, and that thousands of the songs have been so reproduced and sold.

Testimony was not taken in the case on account of the opposition of George Gordon Battle and William W. Cantwell, counsel for the defense. Mr. Battle argued that the court did not have jurisdiction under the trademark law, while Mr. Cantwell held that under the copyright law the federal courts have jurisdiction. He declared that as the penalty for such infringement as is complained of is a fine of $1 for every copy of such song so reproduced the magnitude of the possible penalty alone would take it out of the jurisdiction of a city magistrate.

He argued from the case of Rudyard Kipling against G. P. Putnam's Sons, adjudicated against the author, bearing on the alleged infringement of copyright in the matter of the Brushwood edition of his works. These all carried the trade-mark of the elephant's head, on infringement of which the alleged damage lay.

HOW JAPANESE "HAND-MADE" PAPER IS MADE.

JAMES COMPTON & BROTHERS, of London, contribute the following interesting account of how Japanese "hand-made" paper is made to Paper Making:

"Most persons are familiar with the peculiar character of Japanese paper, which is made from the inner bark of the mulberry tree. It is seldom bleached, but made as clean as possible; hence its peculiar color. It is made in small villages, where all the inhabitants are paper-makers. The sons of paper-makers follow the profession of their fathers, unless adopted into a family pursuing some other vocation. The paper mulberry tree, of which it is made, is propagated by cuttings from the roots, which are planted on the borders of rice fields, and they mature in about five years. In November the reeds are cut and sold to the paper-makers; and the roots are left to send up new shoots. The shoots are cut in pieces two feet long, piled up and allowed to ferment, which loosens the bark so that it can be stripped off, after which they are dried in the open air, or scraped at once. The scraping removes the brown epidermis, which is used for inferior wrapping paper. About thirty-three pounds of the bark is boiled for two hours in a strong lye of wood ashes. It is then put in bags and left in a running stream until the alkali is completely removed. It is next beaten, two pounds or three pounds at a time, on a wooden block, with heavy sticks for fifteen or twenty minutes. This pulp is mixed with a little rice paste, or a paste from a species of mallow. A thin pulp is obtained by stirring one-quarter of a pound of this mass into forty or fifty gallons of water.

"The web or mat on which the pulp is collected is made of slender strips of bamboo, only the thirty-sixth part of an inch in diameter; several hundred of these are bound together with silk thread; the rods all run lengthwise of the sheet, and hence the mats can be rolled or folded up in one direction. For coarse paper, reed mats are employed. The process of manufacture is essentially the same as in making hand-made paper. A woman sits in front of the tank and stirs it vigorously, then dips a mat and frame into the vat, takes up some of the pulp and shakes it, so as to felt the fibres together. A single dip makes a very thin tissue paper; most paper is made by dipping twice and draining each time. After the second dipping the mat is placed on end by the side of the tank to drain, the frame put on a second mat which also receives its first dipping. While the second sheet is draining for the first time the mat with the first sheet is laid face down on a pile of finished sheets, with a rice straw between them. While the second sheet is draining for a second time, the mat is taken off from the first sheet, so that only two mats are necessary. When 500 or 600 sheets, which form a day's work, are completed, they are pressed for a while with heavy weights, then taken up one at a time by means of the rice straw, and placed on smooth boards to dry in the sun. When dry the sheets are stripped from the board by a sharp knife, with the blade at right angles to the handle, like a sickle. The finished paper weighs about one-half as much as the bark employed.

"Copying paper is collected by the middlemen from the numerous small paper-makers in the villages of the paper districts, a few reams from each house, and sold to the wholesale dealers; hence the considerable variations in the quality, which it is impossible to avoid in paper produced by such a variety of hands.

"The uses to which the Japanese put paper are various in the extreme. Almost everything that is not subjected to any severe usage is manufactured from paper prepared by several chemical processes, many of which are exceedingly ingenious."

THE SALE OF SHAKESPEARE'S WORKS.

JOSEPH SHAYLOR, of the firm of Simpkin, Marshall & Co., London, in a recent contribution to the Cornhill Magazine, entitled "Reprints and Their Readers," said:

The real triumph of the classics in a handsome "get-up" may be said to have commenced some ten years ago by the issue of the Temple Shakespeare. Sidney Lee, in his life of Shakespeare, remarks that: "From the accession of Queen Anne to the present day, the tide of Shakespeare's reputation, both on the stage and among critics, has flowed onward almost uninterruptedly." He might have added that the issue of editions of his plays has also flowed on in the same satisfactory manner. Apparently we have reached high-water mark in the variety of the editions of Shakespeare's works.

The Temple Shakespeare, which was begun in 1894, has had a quite remarkable sale. It has been made known that annually it sells to the number of 250,000 volumes, while it has had a great success in America, and some 100,000 volumes are sent there every year. The success of the Temple Shakespeare has encouraged others to go and do likewise. There have been editions in the most varied styles and at all prices, from the facsimile reprint of the first Four Folios to the Ellen Terry Midget edition, in forty volumes. The publishers of this edition recently received an order for 10,000 volumes—a fact which shows the marvellous vitality of England's greatest classic. Further Shakespeare editions—some seventeen of them—are either just completed or in course of issue, several of them running to forty volumes. Here are the titles of a number: The Hampstead edition, The Chiswick edition, The Arden, The Little Quarto, The Waistcoat Pocket edition, The Bijou, The Pocket-Book Classics, The Red-Letter Library, The National Library edition, The Stratford Town edition—of which fifteen copies are being printed on vellum at one hundred guineas each—The Stage, The Oxford Miniature, The Favourite Classics, The Universal Library edition, The Thin Paper Classics, The Old English Spelling edition, and The Variorum edition.

MARSDEN J. PERRY GETS SHAKESPEARE QUARTOS.

IT appears that the collector for whom A. Jackson, the London bookseller, "bid in" the famous Shakespeare quartos noted in our issues for July 15 and August 5, is Marsden J. Perry, of Providence, R. I., the owner of one of the finest libraries in this country. The total for the six books was $21,000.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE English booktrade has lost an interesting personality by the death, on July 29, of Henry Sotheran, the well-known English bookseller. Mr. Sotheran was born May 29, 1820, at No. 2 Little Tower Street, London, where his father, Thomas Sotheran, in 1816, established himself in the book and stationery business. In 1832, owing to his father's illness, Henry Sotheran was recalled from school to take an active part in his father's business. So rapidly did it grow that Thomas Sotheran decided to relinquish the stationery business in favor of a former employee, John Draper. In 1841 Thomas Sotheran took his son into partnership. In 1851 Mr. Stibbs, whose shop faced Somerset House, was retiring from business. Henry Sotheran secured this, and purchased the stock and goodwill. In 1856 Smith & Son were removing from 136 Strand to their present premises, and Sotheran secured from them the lease of this handsome house, with its splendid frontage, for the display of books. Sotheran then entered into partnership with George Willis, the well-known bookseller, at the Piazza in Covent Garden. The partnership lasted only ten years, and the business again became the sole property of Henry Sotheran. In 1872 the business in Piccadilly was added, and the entire building, with the exception of the top floor, was soon crowded with books. This he kept for his own use, and from the windows, with the aid of a field-glass, he could see his home on Beulah Hill. At the end of June, 1893, he retired from business, being succeeded by his son, Henry Cecil, and Charles Buckland and Alexander Balderston Railton, both of whom died before him. Although Mr. Sotheran had long retired from the firm, he took an active interest in it to the last. No record of Sotheran can be complete without reference to his enterprise in securing the copyright of the ornithological works of John Gould. For these he gave, including the plant and lithographic stones, £5000, and he at the same time secured the services of Gould's staff of colorists, and was in this way able to complete under the direction of Dr. Bowdler Sharpe the works left unpublished.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

FOR some time Robert Grier Cooke, publisher in America of The Burlington Magazine, of London, has announced an American section. The August number of this magazine officially gives out the name of Mr. Frank J. Mather, Jr., of the New York Evening Post, as the editor of this department.

NEW YORK CITY.—In order to take care of their great increase in business the Dodge Publishing Company has leased over 3000 square feet of floor space in the new building 40 and 42 East Nineteenth Street. This with their present location will enable them to take care of their growing trade. It is their intention to use the new space for their shipping department during the fall, but they will probably remove their executive offices to 40-42 East Nineteenth Street early next year.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judge Amend, of the Supreme Court, has appointed Frederick A. Mills receiver of the business carried on under the name of the Theatrical Music Supply Company, at 44 West Twenty-eighth Street, in a suit brought by Mary Dowling Sutton against Frederick W. Helmick and George L. Standen to recover possession of a music publishing business formerly owned by her and $5000 cash which she put into a partnership with Mr. Helmick a year ago. Mrs. Sutton, it is alleged, signed some papers, the purport of which she says she did not know, and later found that the Theatrical Music Supply Company had been incorporated, had taken the business and she was ousted. The company was incorporated September 14, 1904, with a capital stock of $15,000.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD is shortly to pay a visit to America in order to study American life and customs, and to get in touch with the American atmosphere. There is a prospect that this material may be used in the preparation of Mrs. Ward's next novel which the Harpers have contracted for.

INQUIRY has arisen as to how the name of the author of "Bruvver Jim's Baby" and "The Ultimate Passion," Philip Verrill Mighels, is pronounced. According to Mr. Mighels's own statement, this should be pronounced Mig-els, with the eye sound of i, and the accent on the first syllable. Throughout the New England States, however, Mr. Mighels says, it is customary to pronounce the name as if it were spelled Miles.

AN appeal, according to the London Academy, is being made by the "Bret Harte Assistance Fund" on behalf of Bret Harte's daughter, Ethel. Bret Harte died in poor circumstances, leaving his daughter totally unprovided for. Miss Bret Harte finds the struggle for a livelihood very hard. Her health has broken down at a time when she has been striving to earn her living on the concert platform and the stage. Any sums however small would be acceptable, and the names of the committee, which includes George Meredith, Sir George Newnes, Sir Francis Burnand, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and others guarantee the genuineness of the appeal. Subscriptions may be sent to the honorary secretary of the fund, Dr. L. C. Alexander, of Holly Lodge, Upper Parkfields, Putney, S. W., London, or to the London and County Bank, Putney Branch.

DR. JOSEPH SPENCER KENNARD, who for years has lived in Florence, Italy, where he has met with great success in writing novels in Italian, although he is an American, has returned to America to live. He will take up his abode on the Rockwell property at Tarrytown, N. Y. Dr. Kennard was born in Bridgeton, N. J., and came to New York when he was fifteen. He got a place as night clerk at the post-office, and studied law at Columbia by day. He was graduated from Columbia and from Hamilton College. Then he went to Chicago, where he soon succeeded as a lawyer. After several years, however, he went to Florence, partly for his wife's health and partly because he was attracted by the arts. He was graduated from the Royal Academy of Arts in Florence, where he has been painting "studio pictures" ever since. These have obtained medals and honors at several exhibitions. He has written a number of works in Italian and English, among them "Studi-Danteschi," "Entro un Cerdrio di Ferro," "De Deo Lapso Commentarius," "Some Early Printers and Their Colophons," "The Friar in Fiction," etc.

A GREAT deal has been said and written lately about "the decline of Kipling," but his publishers, Doubleday, Page & Co., say that the stock orders for his books, (and this includes such old ones as "Barrack Room Ballads," "Under the Deodars," etc.,) are larger than they have been for several years.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will publish on September 1 "Pipetown Sandy," a new story by John Philip Sousa, the "March King." "Pipetown Sandy" is a tale of Sousa's own city, Washington, in the sixties, combining adventure, humor, the tenderness of boyhood, and an original love plot. The book has been illustrated by C. L. Hinton.

DODD, MEAD & Co. announce for the fall a new book of travel by William Edgar Gell, author of "A Yankee on the Yangtse," to be entitled "A Yankee in Pigmy Land." It is a narrative of a journey across Africa, from Mombasa through the great pigmy forest to Banana. The book will be illustrated with 100 reproductions from photographs taken by the author.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY call attention to an error in the American Catalogue, 1900-1905, in which the price of Wilkinson's Foreign Classics in six volumes is given as $6. It should be $9. The books appeared in 1900 and the title is correctly given in the catalogue for that year, which is included in the second volume of the American Catalogue, 1900-1905, to be published early in September.

CUPPLES & LEON, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York, have just ready the following four artistic books for little folks: "The Mis-Adventures of a Gingerbread Man" and "Tumbletoes and Ted," both by Olivia R. HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., Boston, announce that "Broke of Covenden" is now in its third edition, and "Science and a Future Life," by Professor James H. Hyslop, the fourth vice-president of the English and American Society for Psychical Research, is just going in its second edition and is moving rapidly. "Storm of London," by F. Dickberry, in which London is portrayed without clothes, is having a brisk sale.

JOHN JOSEPH MCVEY, 39 North Thirteenth Street, Philadelphia, will publish on September 20 Dr. M. F. Wadsworth's new work on Christolography, the full title of which has not yet been decided upon. Mr. McVey has bought the plates and copyrights of the Rev. Matthew P. O'Brien's book, "An Easy Method of Learning to Read, Write and Speak the Latin Language," of which a third edition, revised, is just ready.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co. have just put on the market the "Holman New Black Face Type Teachers' Bible," which is in the popular minion 8° size, but has large black face type, thus removing the only objection to the size that has given such satisfaction. The book is thin, compact and easy to handle. It includes every possible improvement in Bible making and is an especially graceful looking volume. The binding is absolutely flexible and the leather is durable.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just brought out the "Publishers' Trade List Annual," for 1905. The volume contains the latest catalogues and lists of three hundred and twenty-one publishers, and an index, by author, title and subject catch-word, to the lists of one hundred and seventy of the contributors whose lists are too small to be included as separate catalogues. The volume, as heretofore, is substantially bound in cloth and thumb-indexed.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY, San Francisco, Cal., will publish shortly a "Joke Book Note Book," by Ethel Watts Mumford, the author of the "Cynic's Calendar of Revised Wisdom," which is again on the press for 1906 under the title of the "Complete Cynic's Calendar." It is to include all of the material, text and illustrations of both the first and second series. The advance sale has added another 20,000 copies to the credit of this successful nonsense volume.

THE publishing of G. Bernard Shaw's "Irrational Knot" has been somewhat delayed, owing to the fact that the author, upon rereading his proofs, decided to add a postscript to his preface, which was already of some length. The preface and postscript together now make up about twenty pages, and it has been pronounced by those who have read it one of the most characteristic of all Mr. Shaw's introductions. The publishers, Brentano's, expect to have the book ready about September 1.

LEA BROTHERS & Co., Philadelphia, have just ready a new edition of "Hall's Physiology," thoroughly revised and largely rewritten. They will bring out on the 15th inst. a new American, from the 15th English, edition of "Gray's Anatomy," revised by Dr. J. Chalmers Da Costa and a corps of specially selected assistants. On September 1 they will publish "The National Standard Dispensatory," by Dr. A. Hare, Charles Caspari, Jr., and Dr. H. H. Rush, fully illustrated and provided with a thumb index.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish early next month "A Servant of the Public," the new Anthony Hope novel, which promises something new in the literature of the stage. It is announced that "while it is about the stage as a profession it is not about the theatre." It deals with the private life and feelings of a famous popular actress, her relations with her friends and acquaintances, and the necessary influence that her work and her temperament had upon her life and actions. It is an intimate study of the personal side of a public character.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish next month a book for little men and little women, entitled "Christmas With Santa Claus," by Frances Trego Montgomery, author of the "Billy Whiskers" stories. The book tells of the experiences of a small boy and girl who are carried by old Santa into his domain just a few days before Christmas, how they are entertained by Mrs. Santa, and of the wonderful things they saw and did while there. It is illustrated by Ruth Mary Hallock, who has won wide notice through her charming pictures of child life.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation a volume of poems by Mrs. Payne Whitney, daughter of the late John Hay. Mrs. Whitney is already well known as the author of several charming volumes, among them "The Little Boy Book" and "The Rose of Dawn." The new collection will contain twenty-six love sonnets and other poems, all of which are said to be notable for their beauty of conception and charm of expression. They are preparing a new edition of Thomas Hardy's novels, complete in twenty volumes, to be known as the Wessex edition, which is primarily intended to be sold by subscription.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, The Bodley Head, has just ready the sixth volume in the series of Living Masters of Music, which is devoted to "Joseph Joachim" and written by J. A. Fuller Maitland; "Musical Studies," essays by Ernest Newman; "What is Philosophy?" an essay by Edmund Holmes, which deals with philosophy as "a search for the optimistic interpretation of life;" and two volumes of poetry, one "Poems of Ernest Dowson," with a memoir by Arthur Symons, four illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley and portrait by William Rothenstein; and "Peace, and Other Poems," by Arthur Christopher Benson, collected from various periodicals and very neatly put into book form.

BRUNO HESSLING Co. have just ready the first volume of "Old Paris: its historical buildings and their details," which covers the Romanesque-Gothic period. The text is German and there are ninety plates in portfolio binding; "The Styles in Ornament," a handbook for architects, painters, sculptors, carvers and self-instruction by Alexander Speltz, with German text and 300 plates; "The Historic Styles of Ornament," translated from the German of H. Dolmetsch and furnished with 100 plates, chiefly in gold and colors; and "Le Palais du Louvre," published under the direction of Henry Guedy, with sixty plates. The Hesslings are also sole agents in this country for the new edition of Schoy's "Art of the Epoch of Louis XVI.," published in two volumes with French text and 300 plates.

THE CONSOLIDATED RETAIL BOOKSELLERS, New York, will publish in October a story for young people by Bingham Thoburn Wilson entitled "The Village of Hide and Seek: the Home of the Dolls." It is a fairy story of the wholesome kind, laid in the wild, weird and romantic country about historic Harper's Ferry, describing the journey of two orphan children into the village of Hide and Seek, which is hidden high up in the mountains and which proves to be the home of all the dolls, a city of tiny play houses ruled over by the sister of Santa Claus, who is also queen of the dolls. Aside from the absorbing interest of the unusual story itself, the author has interjected a number of jingles about the well-known characters of nursery tales; and the illustrator, W. Herbert Dunton, has transferred the spirit of the story into eight full-page colored pictures that are well conceived, and which have been reproduced in full colors.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have among their newest books the sixth and final volume of "The Diary and Letters of Mme. D'Arblay;" "The Life of Wagner," by John F. Runciman, in Bell's Miniature Series of Musicians; and a résume of "Russian History," by A. S. Rappoport. In descriptive works there are a volume on "Abbotsford," by Rev. W. S. Crockett, with many illustrations; "The English Lakes," painted by A. Heaton Cooper and described by William Palmer; "The Geology of South Africa," by F. H. Hatch and G. S. Corstorphine; and volume 3 of Dr. H. M. Ward's work on "Trees." Early in the autumn will appear a novel by Beulah Marie Dix, which as yet is not christened; "Sporting Sketches," by Edwyn Sandys; a volume on "Colonial Administration," by Paul S. Reinsch, who concludes a series of three important works on this subject with this book; and volume 4 of Herbert Paul's "History of Modern England."

H. M. CALDWELL & COMPANY, Boston, will publish this fall a novelty in bookmaking. It is entitled "Love's Garland," compiled by Charles Welsh, who describes it in his foreword as "all compact of the sweet flowers of song which have blossomed in the garden of love, with them entwined some almost forgotten gems in the shape of ancient posies for rings, etc." The book is shaped in the form of a garland, and the cover, which is in color, represents a garland of roses in which is embossed a plain gold ring. It is a unique and attractive present which will never be out of season so long as the course of true love runs, whether smoothly or not. They will also publish this fall "Automobilia," an original and attractive novelty, designed and compiled by Charles Welsh. It is a collection of the things wise and otherwise which have been said or sung by, or about, motors, motorists and motoring. The book is in the shape of an automobile, and the cover is printed in colors to represent the real thing. It is sure to be a popular gift book among the thousands of automobilists and their friends all over the country.

D. VAN NOSTRAND COMPANY, of New York, have arranged with the English publishers, Gurney & Jackson, for the American sale of the English translation of the well-known German work, "Technical Methods of Chemical Analysis," which Dr. Georg Lunge, Professor of Technical Chemistry, Zurich, assisted by a large number of specialists, has just revised for his German publishers. The translation is being undertaken by Charles A. Keane, principal and head of the Department of Chemistry and Metallurgy at the Sir John Cass Technical Institute, London. Where our industrial processes, methods of analysis, etc., differ from those prevailing abroad, the work will be thoroughly adapted to the English conditions of manufacture. A special feature will be the including of full references to English literature and a bibliography, which will be appended to each section. Dr. Lunge has undertaken to revise the work for the press and to make such additions as are necessary to bring the information up to the latest dates. It will be published in three volumes, the first of which will be ready the latter part of this year.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on September 21 Eleanor Hoyt's new book, "Concerning Belinda," a group of animated tales, all with the same heroine, who is a worthy sister of "Nancy." Incidentally it is interesting to announce that "Concerning Belinda" will appear as the work of Eleanor Hoyt Brainard, the author having married a New York lawyer. They will also bring out next month, by arrangement with the English publishers, "The Golden Heart," a new novel by Mrs. Violet Jacob, author of "The Interloper;" "A Southern Girl in '61," by Mrs. D. Giraud Wright, daughter of Senator Wigfall, of Texas, who was in close contact with the great soldier and statesman of the South, a spirited narrative of the social life of the Confederacy, in which the author describes her own life in the great tragic events in which her girlhood was passed. In October will be issued "Sons o' Men," a volume of short stories by G. B. Lancaster, who has already been compared with Kipling and Conrad; and later will follow "The Colonel's Dream," by Charles W. Chesnutt; also, "Avesha," by H. Rider Haggard. Part IV. of "The Dog Book," by James Watson, which will be brought out in a fortnight, will be devoted to pointers. Among the illustrations will be reproductions of some very rare old English and Flemish hunting prints.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have just ready two important additions to their Music Lovers' Library—"Siegfried," by S. Baring-Gould, and "Lohengrin," by Bernard Capes. These two volumes, with "The Valkyries," by E. F. Benson, published recently, are novels based on the plots of the Wagner operas of the same name. The plots of the operas are rarely entirely understood even by those who are perfectly familiar with the music, and the books make clear much that is left unexplained by the regular opera scores; while to those who do not know the operas the books will make a strong appeal as interesting works of fiction and romances of a quite unusual order. They have also just published "From the Book of Valentines," the fifth volume in The Pipes of Pan series, by Bliss Carman; "The Rival Campers," by Ruel P. Smith, a splendid story of adventure for boys, the scene of which is laid on an easily recognized island off the coast of Maine; and three books in their Leicester Library—"The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," by Oliver Wendell Holmes; "The Cloister and the Hearth," by Charles Reade, and Boccaccio's "Decameron." They will publish shortly "Among French Inns," by Charles Gibson, author of "Two Gentlemen in Touraine," a companion volume to Miss Tozier's charming work, "Among English Inns," which purports to be chiefly a book of travel to awaken still more the interest in the rural portions of the delightful provinces of France.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish next month, in the Story of the Nations series, a volume on "Mohammed and the Rise of Islam," by the Rev. David Samuel Margoliouth, of Oxford, who regards Mohammed as a great man, who solved a political problem of appalling difficulty—the construction of a state and an empire out of the Arab tribes; a metrical translation, by Ralph Davidson, of Julius Wolff's masterpiece, "The Wild Huntsman," with illustrations by Woldemar Friedrich; a study of the works of Henry James, by Miss Elizabeth Luther Cary, with a bibliography by Frederick A. King; "Sex and Character," by Otto Weininger, an anti-feminist who committed suicide at the age of twenty-three; also, the "Life of Charles and Mary Lamb," by E. V. Lucas, an authority on the Lambs, who has used much new material that has come to light since Talfourd's "Final Memorials" were published. They have in active preparation a volume of essays entitled "The Companionship of Books," by Dr. Frederick Rowland Marvin, who was for a number of years the pastor of the First Congregational Church at Great Barrington, Mass., the early home of William Cullen Bryant; a third volume of "Shelburne Essays," by Paul Elmer More, of the New York Evening Post; "The Upton Letters," by an anonymous writer, a collection of real letters issued in the form of a story; also, the "Journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia, 1773-1776," recently brought out in a limited letterpress edition by the Virginia State Library, of Richmond; a volume entitled "Irenic Theology," by Dr. Charles Marsh Mead, author of "The Soul Here and Hereafter," a treatise on orthodox Christianity, in which the author is said to present clearly a particularly forcible argument concerning the divinity of Christ; also, a treatise entitled "The Religion of Christ in the Twentieth Century," by an anonymous writer, who takes his text from a saying of Lessing's, to the effect that the Christian religion has been followed for nineteen centuries, but the religion of Christ remains to be tried, which will be included in the Crown Theological Library. They are also planning to bring out shortly the English novel, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," by the Baroness Orczy. The book has been successful in London, where it has also been staged.

Webster's Little Gem Dictionary

A POCKET REFERENCE MANUAL
NEEDED BY EVERYBODY

THE BEST, MOST CONCISE AND MOST COMPLETE OF ITS KIND

THE Little Gem CONTAINS

A DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE — abridged from Webster's International Dictionary. It gives the most authoritative spellings and pronunciations, brief definitions and synonyms; also common derivative and compounds of primitive words. It indicates doubtful verb formations and plurals. The vocabulary is larger than that of any other pronouncing dictionary of its class.

GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD—giving the most standard spelling, pronunciation and latest census figures for each entry; area and capital of states and foreign countries; a more extensive list than any other of its character.

FOREIGN WORDS AND PHRASES. ABBREVIATIONS.—Both tables are very inclusive and not only exceed in size and comprehensiveness those in similar books, but compare well with much more pretentious works.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES. COINS.—These tables include the Metric System, also foreign weights and measures with equivalents in both United States and metric units. The list of coins gives the values in U. S. money, the denominations coined of each unit, etc.

OTHER VALUABLE TABLES INCLUDED.—Lists of presidents and vice-presidents, postal rates and regulations, rules for punctuation and capitalization, legal holidays, wedding anniversaries, birth stones, forms of address, etc.

COLORED MAPS—of the United States, its Colonial Possessions, and Cuba; also Panama and the Canal Commission's Plan of Excavation; Eastern Asia including China, Japan, Korea, and Manchuria.

MRS. RICHARDS' BEST BOOK

MRS. TREE'S WILL

By LAURA E. RICHARDS

AUTHOR OF "GEOFFREY STRONG," "MRS. TREE," ETC.

THE admirers of "Mrs. Tree," to which this charming novelette is a sequel, will be delighted to learn more about the heroine of that book. Without giving away the unusual plot, it is perhaps enough to say of it that it is brimming over with rare humor, delicate pathos, and convincing description of life in a small New England village. "Mrs. Tree's Will" can hardly fail to establish the author's place in the upper rank of American novelists, and to attain a sale which will surpass even that of its popular predecessors. Mrs. Richards' former books have sold nearly 600,000 copies; of this notable list, which numbers over 35 titles, the publishers are confident that "Mrs. Tree's Will" takes its place as the most brilliant and finished piece of work which has yet come from the pen of this gifted author

THE GIRL AND THE DEAL

A DELIGHTFUL LOVE-STORY—THE GIRL AND THE DEAL, BY KARL EDWIN HARRIMAN.

¶ A few years ago we were suffering from a plague of College Tales. Post's Harvard Stories started it—stories which, unlike Flandrau's Harvard Episodes, were of a Cambridge that never was. The book succeeded in spite of its falseness. Then others followed. There were Yale Yarns and Princeton ones, until at last it seemed as if the scourge would end only when the last freshwater college had been enshrined in sentimental twaddle. Then, suddenly, there came a real book among the host of imitation ones. It bore the plague-spot in its title, but whoso read a dozen pages of it saw at once that it was of a stuff far above its fellows, and Karl Edwin Harriman, the author of Ann Arbor Tales, was marked down in the critics' memorandum-books as an author with a future.

Mr. Harriman is, however, a conscientious writer. He wrote slowly, and some years passed before he again awoke attention—and this time, controversy—with A Lad's Love. Now, after another silence sufficient to serve as model for our many novelists of the too-ready pen, he again appears with The Girl and the Deal (George W. Jacobs & Co.).

The wait was worth while, for The Girl and the Deal is so altogether charming a story that it becomes, offhand, difficult to say which portion of its delicately-woven mesh—the girl or the deal—lends the larger share of interest to a tale so thoroughly entertaining. At any rate, the two factors of love and business so excellently combined unite to make a really novel novel. To tell the plot were treason, but to say that the scheme involves financial strategy and a campaign of the heart, in an action which takes place almost entirely on a ride from Boston to San Francisco, is to give only a slight hint of what, with the aid of some first-rate dialogue, becomes, as one progresses with it, at least quite the best love-story which, so far, the season has produced. Mr. Harriman, too, is growing—and that is much in a poor world where so many men who begin as authors of promise lose all their future through sordid default.

With a circulation of upwards of 850,000 you know what a notice like this means. HOW IS YOUR STOCK?

THE COMING OF BILLY

By MARGARET WESTRUP

Author of "Elizabeth's Children," etc.

A delightfully humorous story with Billy as the hero, all unconscious of his honors. Billy is every inch a gentleman, but a boy to the core. He comes from India to live with his four maiden aunts in a small English village. His arrival throws the genteel old maids into a flutter, their only knowledge of boys being based upon their uncertain recollections of a generation ago. The resulting complications, including a charming romance, are various and delightful. A second "Helen's Babies."

Preliminarios of the Revolution

(Volume VIII. American Nation Series)

By Professor GEORGE ELLIOTT HOWARD

University of Nebraska

This volume covers the constant struggle of the colonists with England for their legislative and commercial rights, and their continual efforts to throw off the trammels of British power—the long resistance which developed their ultimate strength. Professor Howard aims to show what the issue really was, and why people who had lived under one general government for a century and a half could no longer get on together. He points out the long antecedent causes tending to independence, showing how the colonists had been unconsciously preparing for their larger freedom. The volume gives the history of the Stamp Act, Writs of Assistance, etc., and covers the years between 1763 and 1775.

The book will be uniform in style with the author's popular "Lavender and Old Lace."

FOX, DUFFIELD & CO. have ready a new book by Wallace Irwin, entitled "At the Sign of the Dollar," illustrated by E. W. Kemble. This is a book of racy American verse, containing "Niagara Be Dammed," "To the Pure All Food is Pure," with many other already popular poems and others sure of equal popularity. Later the house will issue "Verses for Jock and Joan," by Helen Hay; "Double-darling and the Dream Spinner," stories for children, by Mrs. Candace Wheeler; "More Adventures of the Happy Hearts Family," by Virginia Gerson; "More Misrepresentative Men," consisting of new verses on celebrities by Captain Harry Graham; and a new and larger edition of "The Fusser's Book," by Anna Archbald and Georgina Jones.

THE REV. DR. JOSEPH H. BAUSMAN, Rochester, Pa., has just brought out his "History of Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and its Centennial Celebration." The work is in two volumes, fully illustrated with portraits, pictures of historic places, maps, facsimiles of historic documents, etc., and is a distinct contribution to the history of Western Pennsylvania. Beaver County lay in the track of the earliest of the French and English explorers of the Mississippi Valley, and was the scene of the heroic labors of the early missionaries —Jesuit and Moravian—who built their stations on the Beaver River, and is full of historic interest. Dr. Bausman spent years in preparing the work and dug deep for his information. It is brought out in two editions —in cloth and in full morocco.

A story of school life and football. The young hero is a typical American boy, who has lived abroad with his parents for several years, and while proficient in modern languages, is almost entirely ignorant of the classics. His place in the school he enters, therefore, brings him into contact with both the upper and lower classes, and he makes odd friendships. The broadening of his character under his experiences with his schoolmates is well illustrated. The leading arguments for and against football are introduced.

The text itself is, however, designed to indicate a general method of presentation, variable in detail at the will of the individual teacher. Each chapter, it will be evident, presents not the material for any fixed number of class recitations, but rather a single subject, divisible according to the available time, the capacity of the students, and other practical considerations."

Vigorous and truthful pictures are given of the present Czar, and his ancestors, and of all the leading men of Russia. A minute analysis of Baron de Witte's character and career is rich in interest.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUGUSTA, GA.—The Richards & Shaver Company has sold its stock of books, stationery, etc., to Julia B. Richards and Etta B. Smith. The Richards & Shaver Company will continue its business of lithographing, book binding and the manufacture of rubber stamps. The Richards Stationery Company, which succeeds to the book and stationery business of the Richards & Shaver Company, has filed articles of incorporation with a capital stock of $10,000, all paid in, and with rights to increase this to $25,000.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Edward J. O'Malley, who has been with Henry Malkan for several years, has opened a bookstore at 81 Broadway. He would deem it a favor to have the trade forward catalogues.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.—A. H. Waterman & Co., booksellers, have been succeeded by Holmes & Holmes.

EL RENO, OKLA.—L. C. Van Ness has sold his book business to W. M. Stolz.

MOULTRIE, GA.—F. M. Welch, bookseller, has been succeeded by H. D. Woolard.

PITTSBURG, PA.—The Joseph Horner Book Company, an adjunct of the Pittsburg Methodist Book Company, has been dissolved. The company was organized in 1900 for the purpose of selling miscellaneous literature, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church having made a rule that the church depositories should sell nothing but Methodist Episcopal literature. The Horner Book Company was in charge of Joseph Horner, J. O. Young and J. T. Horner. As few other depositories followed the rule it was deemed inexpedient to continue this branch.

PRINCETON, N. J.—The business of the University Bookstore, Princeton, has been taken over by a new concern which is to be incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with the firm name of "The Princeton University Store." The business, which will be under the management of R. C. McNamara, formerly with Hinds & Noble, of New York, will be run on a strictly co-operative basis, and will serve as a general supply store for the entire university.

WAYNE, NEB.—F. E. Jones, bookseller, has been succeeded by Jones & Felder.

YORK, PA.—Edward H. Keller, head clerk for a number of years at the Barnhart Book and Stationery Store, will shortly open a first-class book and stationery store on South George Street.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

KARSLAKE & CO., Hampstead, London, have brought out Part 3 of the second volume of their "Book Auction Records," from April 1 to June 30, 1905, containing 5615 records.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & CO., Philadelphia, have just brought out a classified catalogue of books on Chemical Technology and General Chemistry, which has been prepared with great care and brought down to date of issue, August 15. The work will be found useful to the trade and to libraries. (15 p. 16°.)

THE BOSTON BOOK COMPANY, 83 Francis Street, Back Bay, Boston, has reprinted from their Bulletin of Bibliography Alexander J. Rudolph's "Material for a Bibliography of Dr. Edmond Halley, (1656-1742.) Mr. Rudolph in preparing this interesting bibliography of the eminent English astronomer, known to his contemporaries as the "Southern Tycho," was assisted by Eugene Fairfield McPike. (13 p. 16°, Bulletin of Bibliography Pamphlets, No. 14.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 26, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

FAKE "TRUST COMPANIES" AS BOOK AGENTS.

WHEN the State of Delaware, under the demoralization of Addicks politics, undertook to bid against New Jersey for the organization of new corporations and the resulting fees, it so overdid the matter in placing the management of the stockholders' affairs under these new laws beyond control or investigation by stockholders as to cause suspicion to be thrown a priori upon any corporation organized under this Delaware legislation. As one result, a number of "fake" corporations have been organized in Delaware, two or more of which are taking a hand in the book business in a manner which can scarcely be complimented as "questionable," replacing the proverbial real estate agent who "in the course of his business," etc., etc., had some books "thrown on his hands, which he was prepared to dispose of at less than half-price."

Bookbuyers, newspaper men and others have recently received letters or circulars from the "Shipley Surety and Trust Co.," of Wilmington, and the "Colonial Trust Co.," also of Wilmington—the letters personally signed in both cases as by Philip L. Garrett, secretary and treasurer. Both these "trust companies" have their offices, and, so far as we have been able to learn, their entire outfit in the desk of this gentleman, in the Church Building, Wilmington. Mr. Garrett is reported to be a young lawyer, hitherto reputable, somewhat interested in politics, and deputy judge of the municipal court. Of the "Shipley Surety and Trust Co.," Charles N. Thompson is named on the letterheads as president and Francis D. Baldwin as vice-president, while on the letterheads of the "Colonial Trust Co." Mr. Baldwin is named as president and Mr. Thompson as vice-president. Neither of these names appear, we are informed, in the Wilmington city or telephone directories. Mr. Baldwin is a resident of a rural district adjacent to Wilmington, not known to be in active business, but interested in politics, and recently a candidate for Insurance Commissioner; of Mr. Thompson's standing we have been unable to learn anything.

The "Shipley Surety and Trust Co." first sent out a seemingly personal letter, signed as by Mr. Garrett, to the effect that this company had been obliged to take over as security a valuable private library, from which it was selling books at a sacrifice, and of which a catalogue would be sent on receipt of a signed postal card. The signing of this postal card brought back, not the promised catalogue, but a local subscription book agent, who apologized that the library had already been sold—"for $80,000"—but offered to sell at half-price from a typewritten list of rare and special books, which he said were the property of the "Aetna Company of Boston," of which we have been able to learn nothing, placed in the hands of the trust company as receiver. The list included a few editions of which Anthony Comstock is chronically in search, some high-priced sets of standard authors, and such books as the King Edward Prayer Book, issued by the so-called "Cambridge Society," and "The Great Operas" and "The Drama," King Edward Edition, of which last we have more to say further on. This job lot of "unlimited numbers of limited editions" was offered at half-price, in great secrecy, "so that the publishers should not be informed of the sacrifice."

The "Colonial Trust Co.," which, "in order to secure a claim has been compelled to accept 52 sets" of our ancient friend, the "Makers of History," does business by a slightly different method, and the autograph signature of P. L. Garrett is varied accordingly. It will sell these 52 sets in the familiar fashion of one dollar after examination and two dollars a month for nine months, and is less insidious than its twin-brother corporation. Both these so-called corporations are evidently a new variation of old methods of subscription book houses to get a hearing, and if Mr. Garrett desires to keep reputation as a reputable lawyer he can scarcely afford to have himself used as a stool-pigeon in such business.

We publish these facts in response to inquiries, and as a warning to the honest book-trade and its customers against this latest of the Protean wiles of the book agent.

"The Great Operas" and "The Drama," referred to above, were originally exploited as coming from a society which was to use the profits to lobby through Congress a bill for the National Opera, and have since been published by the "Athenian Society, London," the "Société Universelle Lyrique, London, Paris, Berlin, Philadelphia," and under various publishing noms de plume. The prospectus for these works belongs in the humors of the book-trade; the "list of notable contributors" includes a wide range from Æschylus and Terence to Irving and Longfellow, and from Gluck and Beethoven to Humperdinck and Puccini, whose shades or selves would be rather surprised at the nature of their contributions, the books being simply the stories of the operas and dramas, lavishly illustrated, prefaced by biographical notices. Unfortunately, autograph certificates of good character had been obtained from several American ambassadors abroad, including Andrew D. White, Horace Porter and W. F. Draper, as well as from musicians and dramatists, by J. W. Buel, the projector of the work, probably in connection with a presentation copy, which illustrates a petty weakness of great men from which diplomatic representatives of the United States should certainly except themselves. It would be impossible to do justice to the diction of this work, as illustrated in the prospectus, by any description of our own, but incidentally it may be mentioned in quotations that "by these beautiful tales the great Queen Semiramis seems to come out of her golden tomb arrayed in the purple glories of her majesty to greet the modern world; the Queen of Sheba, that wonderful potentate of Ethiopia, sweeps into Solomon's Temple bearing treasure gifts, and the splendor and opulence of Juda's Palace is revealed" (sic). For further particulars reference may be made to the "Shipley Surety and Trust Co.," but the half-price terms should be mentioned only confidentially lest the feelings of the publishers of these works should be hurt. The list price, by the way, is only $400.

THE COMPLETE BOOKSELLER.

Because a man has shop to mind,
In time or place, since soul must live,
Needs spirit lack, all life behind,
All stray thoughts, fancies fugitive,
All loves except what trade can give?

In quoting the above a writer in the London Daily Chronicle answers:

"No! most emphatically no! The complete bookseller has the dual personality of, let us say, Pierpont Morgan and Charles Lamb. He can discourse shrewdly upon the state of trade and the advantages of the net system, or handle a first edition with the mute reverence of the true bibliophile.

"As a tradesman he occupies a unique position. He is sometimes a poet or essayist, always a philosopher. The one thing to be urged against him is that he does not, as a rule, keep a diary or write his reminiscences. His tact and diplomacy are supreme.

PERSONALITY.

"Brought into a close personal relation with his customers, ('clients' seems a more fitting word,) he has opportunities denied to those of other trades. Personality, with him, counts for everything. In inspired moments he can forget he has 'shop to mind,' and will tell you of loves other than those 'trade can bring.'

"The real bookseller is both guide and friend, and it must be understood I always refer to the man of culture, who loves books for their own sake. He possesses a fine discrimination, and advises with a proper appreciation of the individual requirements of those who defer to his judgment. To recommend a wrong book is a grave offence, sometimes never forgiven. The man whose leisure is diverted by 'Ouida' is apt to resent, as a personal affront, the suggestion that he should try something by 'Ian Maclaren.'

"The decay of the bookseller is said to have set in. Mr. Hyde has killed Dr. Jekyll. The kindly being who once beamed at us through a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles is no more. In his place is a shrewd-visaged, bullet-headed little man who sells a book as if it were a bun. Never was there a greater error! The statement is one of those arrows of libel shot haphazard into the air. It would be as reasonable to accuse the Cabinet of thinking of remodelling the War Office on the lines of the Salvation Army headquarters.

THE ASSISTANT.

"There is said to be always a grain of truth in the most far-fetched statement. In this case the bookseller's assistant is the grain. His alleged enormities would fill volumes. He is well-meaning and desirous of pleasing, and his errors should be viewed with compassion. As a matter of fact they are treated with contumely. The opinion of the bookbuying public about the average assistant is uncomplimentary in the extreme. He not unfrequently knows little beyond titles, authors and prices—and not always these. There are, of course, the inevitable exceptions, existing apparently for the sole purpose of proving the rule, whatever that may mean.

"The reason for this mediocrity is obvious. Booksellers' profits are small; the salaries they pay are still smaller. Again, the old-fashioned apprenticeship has almost ceased to exist. The result is that the rank and file are now recruited from what is, educationally, a less well-endowed class. Even if a young man shows special adaptability for his work, he must be prepared to labor many years for a ridiculously inadequate wage before he can hope to obtain an important position in one of the larger houses. Thoughtful parents naturally think twice before placing their sons in a sphere of activity so unpromising."

OBITUARY NOTES.

ADOLPH GUILLAUME BOUGUEREAU, the famous French painter, died on August 20, at La Rochelle, where he was born on November 30, 1825.

MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE, the editor of St. Nicholas Magazine since its foundation in 1873, died August 21, at her summer home at Onteora Park, Tannersville, N. Y., at the age of seventy-four. Born in New York City in 1831, the daughter of Professor James J. Mapes, the well-known promoter of scientific farming in the United States, Mrs. Dodge spent all her life in a literary atmosphere. She was very talented for music, drawing and modelling, and also early displayed a keen taste for writing children's stories. While quite young she married William Dodge, a lawyer, but he died suddenly after a short time and left her two boys to bring up. In her first executive position she was associate editor of Hearth and Home, and came in touch with Harriet Beecher Stowe, "Ik Marvel" and other celebrated writers of their day who wrote for that magazine. She wrote for the periodical and her ability was soon recognized, and she was called to edit St. Nicholas with great public approval. Under her management St. Nicholas became famous in many lands and a great educational feature in the lives of the young people of the last generation. Mrs. Dodge was author of "The Irvington Stories," "Hans Brinker," the most successful juvenile of its day, which has been translated into Dutch, French, German, Russian and Italian; "Donald and Dorothy," "A Few Friends and How They Amused Themselves;" and "Theophilus and Others," and she did almost equally good editor's work on "Rhymes and Jingles," "Baby Days" and "Baby World." Mrs. Dodge also wrote for grown people and has contributed to all our best magazines. One of her immensely popular sketches contributed to Scribner's in 1870 was "Mrs. Malony on the Chinese Question," which was used for recitation for years from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mrs. Dodge attended strictly to work until within a few months. Her name was a household word among the children for many, many years.

COPYRIGHT IN RUSSIA.

THE question of copyright in Russia is being agitated in that country although the war is in progress, because one of the conditions of the Russo-German Commercial Treaty is that within a limited period negotiations with respect to the mutual protection of the rights of authors, artists, etc., are to be entered into. "It is contended by Russia," according to the London Academy, "that she is relatively by no means so great a sinner as represented by her neighbors, and that up till recently all Western Europe enjoyed the same literary freedom as Russia does now. France and Germany particularly take piratical liberties as publishers of foreign works. As a young people the Russians say that they have need of the support of their elders; but on the other hand France, whilst publishing vocal music with translations for English, Italians, Germans, and even Spanish, has none for Russian, except that now 'Carmen' is being printed in Paris with a Russian text. In Germany there are translations into English; but no Russian, except 'Tristan' for the pianoforte, which has been in existence for about five years. It must be concluded, says one writer sarcastically, that the Russians know all languages, and that a Russian translation is 'wasted money.' It is all one: Russians can sing in English if necessary. There is a dread that Russia may be tempted to enter into some treaties without a comprehensive understanding with all countries interested, for it is pointed out that the Berne convention was not adhered to without reserve by the various signatories, England for example, when she joined in 1887, having declined to recognize any retrospective action for the convention. That Russia must be at least as careful as the other nations interested is the view taken."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

KARL FR. PFAU, Leipzig, has begun the publication of a polyglot journal, the English title of which is The Booksellers' Guide of Correspondence. The first issue, edited by Mr. Pfau and E. Schirmer, is in German, English and French, and contains chiefly notices of new firms, changes in firms, and other similar business notices. The next issue will be in German, Italian and Russian, and other languages, we understand, will be used in future issues. The translations of the German text, while they may give the sense of the original, are not always happy, though they are funny. The price for each issue is 10 cents.

THE current supplement of the International Studio, just published by John Lane Company, The Bodley Head, New York, is entitled "Art in Photography," and is devoted to the best work in this country and abroad at the present day. The reproductions are of the high degree of merit for which the special supplements of the International Studio are well known. Each plate has been treated separately by such process as has seemed best suited to its peculiar needs. Some are printed in tint and there are one or two specimens of color work direct from nature. The prints are presented on full pages separately and number considerably more than one hundred. The notes accompanying the selection of reproductions from different countries are written by men whose knowledge of the progress of photography and whose interest in the work is well known. Charles H. Caffin writes on the "Development of Photography in the United States;" Clive Holland writes of the English, French and Belgian sections; the Austrian and German work is treated by A. Horsley Hinton, and the Italian by Dr. Enrico Thovez.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE father of Mrs. Pearl Mary Teresa Richards Craigie, ("John Oliver Hobbes,") has developed literary abilities in his grandpaternal days. He is about to publish a book which he calls "With John Bull and Jonathan." He describes this work as "a jubilee romance." John Morgan Richards is an American, the son of Rev. Dr. James Richards, of New York City, who has lived in London for many years.

JAMES DOUGLAS, president of the Copper Queen Co., New York City, is a well-known writer on scientific themes. Last year John Wiley & Son published his "Untechnical Addresses on Technical Subjects." As a native of Quebec, the seat of French rule in Canada, he has taken a lifelong interest in the events which ended with the victory of Wolfe. These he has pictured in a history entitled "Old France in the New World," to be issued in October by the Burrows Brothers Co., Cleveland. As the story proceeds it is clear why the land tenure and the colonization methods of France led to failure. Throughout the volume is displayed the constant strife betwixt authorities ecclesiastical and civil, a strife all the fiercer for the smallness of its theatre. Incidentally Mr. Douglas shows how the Church of Rome laid in Canada the foundations of an influence unshaken to this day, not only in the Province of Quebec, but in the wider arena of Dominion politics, where that Province holds the balance of power. Quebec in the old days was the focus not only of religious and military life, but the centre of trade, of exploration, of social festivity. All these come into Mr. Douglas's canvas to form a picture faithfully recalling scenes as picturesque and actors as forceful as are known to the history of America.

THERE has recently been published privately at Washington a loving "Memorial of John Henry Boner," compiled and edited by Marcus Benjamin. Boner, one of the "sweet singers" of the South, was born in 1845 at Salem, N. C. He became a printer and then journalist, and was connected with the newspaper of his native town and with that of Asheville. After the war he identified himself with the Republican party, and for a time was chief clerk of the North Carolina House of Representatives. He next went to Washington, where he served in the Government Printing Office first as compositor and then as proofreader. When the Democrats returned to power Boner was among the first to be discharged on the ground of offensive partisanship. While in Washington he published his first volume of poems, "Whispering Pines," which met with instant favor. This was followed by another volume, "City Sonnets." After his dismissal from the Government service he became a member of the "Century Dictionary" staff, serving for a time also as literary editor of the New York World. During the years 1892-4 he was connected with the editorial staff of the "Standard Dictionary," and when that neared completion took charge of The Literary Digest. Ill health obliged him in 1897 to seek a change of climate, and he returned to Washington, where, in 1900, through the influence of some of his friends, he secured his old position in the Government Printing Office. But it was not for long. In 1903 he was laid away to rest first in a cemetery in Washington and finally in the old Moravian God's acre in his beloved Salem. The "memorial" is handsomely printed and contains several portraits of Boner and other illustrations.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WE regret that by a slip of the pen undetected in proofreading in the Educational Catalogue "Brown's First Lessons in Language and Grammar" appeared as published by W.P., instead of W.O., which is the proper abbreviation for William Wood & Co.

THE success of May Sinclair's "The Divine Fire" has called attention to her first book, "Two Sides of a Question," published by J. F. Taylor & Co. This latter book presents the author in a different light, but contains the finish and life so noticeable in her later work.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, The Bodley Head, New York City, have just issued in their Crown Library "Memoirs of Lady Fanshawe," wife of Sir Richard Fanshawe, ambassador of Charles II. of England to the Courts of Portugal and Spain, edited by Beatrice Marshall. A note on the illustrations is contributed by Allan Fea, an authority on the period of Charles II.

PETER G. EMMETT, a soldier now stationed at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, has in his possession volumes V. and VI. of that very rare old publication, "Letters of a Turkish Spy." Of the letters but seven volumes are now in existence—three in the British Museum, two in the Congressional Library and Mr. Emmett has the remaining two. The book was published in London in 1694.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in preparation a volume on "The Art of Italian Garden Design," by H. Inigo Triggs, with 100 full-page plates from drawings by the author and from photographs taken by Mrs. Aubrey Le Blond, as well as smaller illustrations and sketches; also, the last volume of the Abbé Constant Fouard's series of The Beginnings of the Church, entitled "St. John and the End of the Apostolic Age."

At a meeting of the Chicago Typothetæ it was decided unanimously not to make any contracts on the eight-hour-day basis. As a result a strike of printers in the job offices represented by the association is expected. If a strike is declared about 600 printers will be directly affected, and if the trouble involves employees in other branches of the job printing trade, between 3000 and 4000 persons may be thrown out of work.

A. S. Barnes & Co. publish this week "Minerva's Manœuvres," by Charles Battell Loomis, illustrated by F. R. Cruger; in the week of September 1 they will have ready "The Heart of a Girl," by Mrs. Ruth Kimball Gardiner, illustrated by Charles L. Hinton; and in the week of September 8 they will issue "Lodgings in Town," by Arthur Henry, the third of the trilogy, which includes besides "An Island Cabin" and "The House in the Woods."

J. B. Lippincott Company have just issued a fifth revised edition of John Bigelow's "Life of Benjamin Franklin" in three volumes, for which has been gathered a surprising amount of new material, for it is only six years since the fourth revision appeared, which seemed to show exhaustive research to date of publication. Paul Leicester Ford was the discoverer of the most important new material added to the work—a letter written by Franklin before he retired from the editorial profession, which the author believes to be the original of the "rattlesnake story," and a satirical "Address from the Throne on the Repeal of the Stamp Act."

Laird & Lee elsewhere call attention to their series of dictionaries for libraries, homes, offices and schools and colleges, including the Library edition of "Webster's New Standard Dictionary," the High School and Collegiate edition of "Webster's New Standard Dictionary," and the Intermediate School edition and the Elementary School edition of "Webster's Modern Dictionary." These editions contain a key of pronunciation at the foot of each page, diacritical marks, illustrations, etc. They have just brought out a new novel by Opie Read, entitled "The Son of a Swordmaker." The author relates the life of a soldier of Rome in the time of Christ, and also gives a vivid picture of life among the Druids two thousand years ago, the heroine being a Druid princess.

L. C. Page & Company have just brought out two delightful little books by Annie Fellows Johnston—"In the Desert of Waiting," a legend of Camelback Mountain, and "The Three Weavers, a Fairy Tale for Fathers and Mothers as well as for their Daughters." Both of these stories originally appeared in the "Little Colonel" books, but they became such favorites that their separate publication was necessary. Two more charming and dainty stories it would be hard to find. Each is a piece of delicate imagery. They have just acquired from the Bobbs-Merrill Company the publishing rights of "Huldah," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, and will shortly bring out a new edition of this susccessful novel. This transfer gives the Messrs. Page the exclusive control of all the books by Alice MacGowan and Grace MacGowan Cooke, namely, "The Last Word," "Huldah," "Return," and "The Grapple," the latter to be issued in the fall. As is perhaps already known, the entire literary output of these two sisters is collaborative, without regard to whose name finally appears on the title-page—a literary partnership which has been altogether successful.

Henry Holt & Co. have just published "Our Philippine Problem," by Professor H. P. Willis, of Washington and Lee University, and well known as an editorial writer and newspaper correspondent, who discusses frankly and fully the questions of our colonial administration; and "Russia from Within," a work of timeliness and great interest, by an anonymous writer, revealing vividly the secrets and weaknesses of Russian autocracy. The demand for Arthur Colton's romance, "The Belted Seas," and for Mrs. Fraser's "A Maid of Japan," has led to the reprinting of both these recent books. Henry Holt & Co. have also in press a new "French Reader," by Professor Rambeau, which is based upon the Passy-Rambeau "Chrestomathie Française," but is not like the larger work in phonetic characters. The matter of the new book is more vivacious and interesting in style than that of the traditional French reader, and includes selections in both prose and verse. The brevity of the book is in accord with the present tendency not to tarry long on a reader. Messrs. Holt & Co.'s eleventh volume devoted to Goethe will be a new edition of his "Iphigenie auf Tauris," edited by Professor Winckler, of the University of Michigan.

The Macmillan Company's fall announcement list promises for issue before Christmas the following, among a large number of books of importance and interest: William Garrott Brown's "Life of Oliver Ellsworth;" the "Memoir of Archbishop Temple;" "Andrew Marvell," by Augustine Birrell, in the English Men of Letters series; Dr. Emil Reich's "General History;" "Vikings of the Pacific," by Agnes C. Laut; "Napoleon and His Times," the new volume in the Cambridge Modern History; the "Recollections" of William O'Brien, the lively and original M. P. for Cork; "Pre-Raphaelitism and the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood," by W. Holman-Hunt; "Venice," by F. Marion Crawford, illustrated by Joseph Pennell; the new and enlarged edition of Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's "Reminiscences of Peace and War;" "The Blackmore Country," by F. J. Snell; "A Wanderer in Holland," by E. V. Lucas; "India," by Flora Annie Steel, illustrated in colors by Mortimer Menpes; a richly illustrated edition of "The Garden That I Love."

by Alfred Austin; "The History of American Painting," by Samuel Isham; Vol. II. of the enlarged edition of Sir George Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians;" "A Self-Supporting Home," by Kate V. Saint Maur; "The Far East and the Great War," by B. L. Putnam Weale; "New Creations in Plant Life," an account of Luther Burbank's life and work, by W. S. Harwood; "Persia, Past and Present," by A. V. Williams Jackson; "Sporting Sketches," by Edwyn Sandys; a limited large paper edition of the works of Maurice Hewlett; an entirely new edition of "The Works of Benjamin Franklin," containing very much new material; "Nero," by Stephen Phillips; "Jesus Christ and the Christian Character," by Francis Greenwood Peabody; and a "History of Education," by Professor Paul Monroe.

THE WILLIAM COLLINS COMPANY, whose American branch is established at 27 East Twenty-first Street, New York, have prepared for the fall a large line of their Clear-Type Bibles. These are all printed from clear, readable types, whether in pearl or larger type, and are supplied with explanatory and other critical apparatus, colored illustrations, maps, etc. They are printed on India paper and on opaque white paper, and are bound in a variety of styles. They have also prepared several editions of the complete works of Shakespeare. One of these has an essay on Shakespeare and Bacon by Sir Henry Irving and a biographical introduction. This is illustrated with photo engravings and attractively bound in cloth, morocco limp and morocco padded, with round corners, red under gold edges. They have also an India paper edition less than one inch in thickness, bound in a variety of styles. A very attractive edition is their Illustrated Stage Shakespeare, in forty volumes of a handy size, with half-tone illustrations, bound in cloth and leather. Another neat edition is their Gem Shakespeare, printed on India paper and fully illustrated. This edition may be had in cloth or in crushed morocco, suitably boxed. In their New Standard Library they have eight books by popular authors, with from eight to sixteen full-page colored plates. Their Herriot Library numbers twenty-four popular novels by George Eliot, Cooper, Kingsley, Charles Reade, Dickens and others equally well known, printed from new clear heavy-faced type and adequately illustrated. In their series of Illustrated Poets they have the complete works of Burns, Longfellow, Milton, Tennyson and Wordsworth in three styles, ranging in price from $1.50 to $2.50. For the young people they have thirty titles in their Forward Series; twelve titles in their Young Peoples Library; fourteen new books in their series of Children's Toy Books; "Robinson Crusoe" and "Pilgrim's Progress" in their Juvenile Series; thirteen titles in their Happy Hour Series; and ten new books. These books are attractively printed and illustrated in colors.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on September 21 Mrs. Bayard Taylor's book, "On Two Continents," in which the author, the daughter of Hansen, the noted mathematician and astronomer and the wife of one of the foremost literary figures in his day, describes vividly the life of a German girl during the first half of the last century, her meeting with Bayard Taylor and their wedding, the arrival in America, the delightful home at "Cedarcroft," the St. Petersburg embassy, and so on. Many famous figures appear in these recollections of over half a century—the Brownings, Thackeray, the Stoddards, George William Curtis, Boker, Aldrich, the Warner and Cary sisters, Horace Greeley, Bryant, Stedman, Swinburne, Freytag, Bismarck, General Grant, and so on; and the book naturally contains the most intimate picture yet published of Bayard Taylor and his work. They will publish on the same date a new book by Max Müller, entitled "Life and Religion," which will contain much unpublished matter on two great ideas. The book has been prepared under the direction of Dr. Müller's wife. They will also publish next month "The Tree Book," by Julia E. Rogers, which will enable a novice to identify the trees, and also will cover the vast subjects of the uses of trees and how to grow and care for them. It combines in a most unusual way the practical with the imaginative point of view. It is a thoroughly useful, accurate, exhaustive manual, but it is written by one whose interest in trees is guided and increased by love. The preservation of our forests, the planting of new forests to replace those so ruthlessly destroyed, the part that every land owner can take in this process, and the best methods of taking his part competently—such are among the chief questions discussed fully. The illustrations have been photographed by A. Radcliffe Dugmore during a period of two years, and they form the most helpful series ever made of important details as well as of complete trees. The bark, the leaf, the flower, the fruit, the winter bud —all the distinguished features have been thus portrayed with photographic exactness.

PRAYER DIDN'T HELP.—A clever woman asked an English bookseller for a volume of Robert Browning's works. "I haven't got it, madam," replied the bookseller. "I make it a rule never to stock any books I can't understand, and I can't make head or tail of Mr. Browning. Can you?" Scarcely knowing whether to be amused or annoyed, but prepared to take another volume, the lady said, "Have you Praed, then?" "Yes, madam," quoth the bookseller, "I've prayed, and that don't help me."

Chronicles of the Little Tot

Mr. Edmund Vance Cooke's new book is being very enthusiastically received everywhere it has been shown. There is a humor, deep philosophy and pathos about his verses so intensely human that they appeal at once to the heart. His poems show a wonderful insight into child life and character.

A prominent editor said in reference to one of the poems: "I know of nothing better in American literature, and I have never said this before to any other writer."

You may be certain that many of your customers will want this book during the holidays. It is beautifully illustrated with many charming pictures in color by Bessie Collins Pease.

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS THE RECKONING

Illustrated. 12mo. Ornamental Cloth, $1.50

The historical setting of this novel, the fourth chronologically in Mr. Chambers' series concerning early American history, of which the first two are "Cardigan" and "The Maid-at-Arms," serves only as a setting for one of the author's prettiest love stories. It is impossible not to sympathize with the hero, and we have all met and loved the heroine. This is Mr. Chambers' latest, most mature, and best work.

D. APPLETON AND COMPANY, Publishers, New York

OCTAVE THANET'S

THE MAN OF THE HOUR, Octave Thanet's new novel, is an indirect picture of a class not so often depicted—our American gentry. It is the same at root whether in the South, the East or the West, it is essentially provincial (although Boston and Baltimore and Philadelphia still have it and New York once had it, it only has a "smart set" now which is quite different) and it is essentially sane.

Foreigners don't realize that there is a class in America with traditions of race, with education and with the inherited power to rule which makes poverty only a temporary eclipse and keeps certain families prominent generation after generation.

Another thing: in the book is the strength and tenderness of a father's love. It is amazing how little chance "the old man" gets in fiction. The author shows how a father yearns after the heart of his son, even when he fumbles and loses his hold on it.

The author has also pictured a decent labor leader and some of his difficulties. Finally, while it is a book for grown up men and women, it is equally attractive to young people.

THE TRIDENT AND THE NET

A Novel

By the author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress"

With the publication of this novel the anonymous and widely popular author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress" enters a new literary field. Her powers of vivid description and narration, which lifted her former books above the ordinary class of biographies, in this volume have freer scope than ever before.

The scene is laid in New York, in Paris, and in Brittany—but a Brittany wholly new to the American reader—and the story of the contest between the good and evil in the nature of a man born to high rank and fortune, and of the influences by which that nature is alternately swayed, is so vibrant with life and emotion, its situations are altogether so novel and dramatic, that it may be described as a rare and triumphant piece of literary art.

A Proposal Under Difficulties — By John Kendrick Bangs

This is one of the most amusing of Mr. Bangs's little farces, full of sparkling dialogue, quick turns of speech, and humorous complications. It is exceedingly laughable when read aloud, and adapted to amateur theatricals.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers, New York

THE trade will recall that two large editions of "MY LADY OF THE NORTH" (published October 15, 1904) were exhausted long before publication.

¶ This was indeed a good start.

¶ There has since been a steady demand for it. Seven editions have now been published, and the eighth is on the press.

¶ The sales have exceeded those of any but the biggest and best sellers.

¶ What is quite as significant,—there has been a constant influx of re-orders—lately an increasing number—from all directions, not only for a few copies to "fill in," but repeated duplications of original stock orders. The wide-awake bookseller cannot be unmindful of this argument.

¶ "MY LADY OF THE NORTH" has those "popular" qualities that insure a good sale through the months. It is just as salable now as ever. You cannot afford to have to refuse on it.

A BOOKBUYER'S BOOK

PAM

By BETTINA VON HUTTEN

The sales of PAM show that it is popular among the best class of bookbuyers. It does not have to be advertised, nor boomed, nor talked up.

The sort of people who have an account at their booksellers, and who are the mainstay of the bookselling business, like this book, and talk about it to their friends.

The result is that PAM is the fad; it is considered the proper thing by clever people. It is just the book to carry in stock.

According to the August Bookman is ROBERT HICHENS' great masterpiece of the Sahara

The GARDEN of ALLAH

The remarkable selling qualities of this book—VITAL HUMAN INTEREST and TRUE LITERARY MERIT—will keep it in this place for a long time to come. See that you are well stocked for the Autumn trade.

SOME RECENT REMARKABLE REVIEWS

"It is an effective story from any point of view, written with a swing of the imagination and a depth of feeling that are entrancing."—ROBERT BRIDGES in Collier's Weekly.

"These are the elements, we venture to say, of a tragic situation which the greatest novelist might approach with hesitation. It is Mr. Hichens' peculiar triumph that he carries it through to a masterly issue."—Everybody's Magazine.

"It is discouragingly seldom that a book comes to the reviewers' hands, which, by its virility and its honest merit as literature, in the old and true sense of the word, rises as high above the average as does 'THE GARDEN OF ALLAH.'"—Ainslee's Magazine.

"Neither the desert nor its denizens seem to have any secrets from him, and he records for us the soul of both with penetrating observation and subtle phrase. In all the three essentials of invention, style, and thought, this performance is highly commendable, and entitles Mr. Hichens to serious consideration."—The Dial (Chicago).

NOTES IN SEASON.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish on the 7th inst. Anthony Hope's big and clever new novel, "A Servant of the Public."

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston, have just brought out "The Baronet Ragpicker," a novel by Charles S. Coom.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish at once a new story by Holman F. Day, entitled "Squire Phin," the central figure of which is a shrewd, humorous, and original country lawyer of the best type.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on the 16th inst. George Barr McCutcheon's new novel, "Nedra," the romantic story of an elopement, with a dash of adventure, which will have full-page illustrations in color by Harrison Fisher. Baroness von Hutten's remarkable novel, "Pam," is now in its ninth edition.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish towards the close of this month Robert W. Chambers's new novel, "The Reckoning"—the fourth, chronologically, in the author's series concerning early American history. The historical atmosphere of this novel, however, serves only as the setting for one of the author's prettiest love stories. The volume will be illustrated.

FOX, DUFFIELD & Co. announce a book of racy, witty American verse by Wallace Irwin, entitled "At the Sign of the Dollar," containing "Niagara Be Dammed," "To the Pure All Food is Pure," etc., with illustrations by E. W. Kemble; also, "An Eye for an Eye," by Clarence S. Darrow, counsel to Mayor Dunne, of Chicago, special counsel for the Teamster's Union, etc., the story of a murder and the murderer's expiation of his crime told to a friend who sits up with him in prison the night before the hanging.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will bring out shortly "McAllister and His Double," by Arthur Train, an amusing book of the adventures of a clubman and occasional detective and his valet, who resembles him in a most remarkable manner. The book has been illustrated by F. C. Yohn. They will also publish at an early date "Mrs. Radigan," by Nelson Lloyd, a very clever satire of society, telling in the best humor possible of the struggles, humiliations, and triumphs of an original and determined "climber."

THE CENTURY CO. will issue on the 27th instant a new volume of verse by Richard Watson Gilder, entitled, "In the Heights"; L. Frank Tooker's "Under Rocking Skies," a novel of the sea; a new novel by Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid," entitled "Sabina," a study of Amish life; and three books for young people—"Queen Zixi of Ix," by L. Frank Baum; "Captain Myles Standish," by Tudor Jenks; "Pinkey Perkins: Just a Boy," by Captain Harold Hammond, U. S. A.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "The Coming of Billy," by Margaret Westrup, author of "Elizabeth's Children" and "Helen Alliston." Billy is a small boy, whose father in India has consigned him to the care of a group of maiden aunts in England. Their only data on the rearing of lively small boys date back a generation, and are correspondingly vague. The resulting complications are exceedingly amusing. They have also just ready "Sonnets and Songs," by Helen Hay Whitney, and "Preliminaries of the Revolution," by Professor George Elliott Howard, of the University of Nebraska, the eighth volume in "The American Nation" series.

She is the Minerva of the story. She hates the darkness and silence of the country, fears every sound, longs for companionship and is utterly ignorant of everything in nature, animate and inanimate. She is always on the point of returning to New York, and it is her master and mistress's attempts at amusing and conciliating her that make the fun of the book.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

ARE THE ENGLISH RAILWAY BOOKSTALLS DOOMED?

FOLLOWING closely upon the interest excited by the development of the London Times's library scheme, comes the rumor that W. H. Smith & Son's monopoly of the British railway bookstalls — a veritable "British institution" — is threatened. It seems that two of the leading English railway companies have decided to throw their bookstalls open to competition, and a big stir, naturally, has been created among the newspaper publishers by a report that Alfred Harmsworth was forming a company to take over the contract. Harmsworth denies the intention attributed to him, probably having come to the realization that no owner of a newspaper or magazine, nor a publisher of books, could hope to have the support of his competitors in conducting a general distributing agency. Besides, newspapers represent only a portion of the bookstall business, the book and magazine departments forming quite the most important and profitable part, and the publishers of these would also require a guarantee from a competitor that their interests would be protected.

The animus of the railway companies in throwing the bookstalls open to competition, however, is to be sought elsewhere than in their desire to limit the monopoly so long held by Smith & Son. For some time, owing to the development of electric traction and the extension of tramway traffic, the receipts of a large number of the old railway bookstalls have fallen off greatly, and many of these are not now even self-supporting; and the prospects are that, as electric railway traffic is bound to increase, these conditions will also grow worse. Hence, when the railway companies revised their rentals the Messrs. Smith & Son were not overanxious to incur an increase of rent. Naturally enough, the railroads, considering that Smith & Son were operating a gold mine on their lines, thought that nothing would be easier than to let the franchise to other dealers; and no doubt, at first blush, some dealers thought the offer tempting enough to seriously consider it. But what occurred to J. S. R. Phillips, the editor of the Yorkshire Post, must also have occurred to others, namely, that if Smith & Son took away their wholesale business from the bookstalls, a substantial source of the present revenue would have to be deducted in any calculations of their successors; and that, if the increased rentals sought by the railroads is an obstacle to Smith & Son, the bookstalls are not likely to prove profitable to any other company. As the London Publisher and Bookseller pertinently states it: "An old-established organization, with every department worked on the best system that long experience has taught [W. H. Smith & Sons have conducted this business for sixty-five years], must be at a better advantage in continuing a vast undertaking than a new firm. If, therefore, the terms of renewal are such that the firm prefer to retire from the field and adapt their business to other conditions, the only deduction to be drawn is that the limit has been reached at which the bookstalls can be made to pay."

"SYMBOLISM OF FORM" IN PRINTING.

THE significance of borders and devices used in printing has never been so well defined as by Henry Turner Bailey in the September number of The Printing Art. Mr. Bailey says: "Symbolism charms wherever it appears. It enriches and dignifies whatever it is allowed to touch. It transforms the common things of every day, puts soul into the clod, charges dead matter with spiritual force. Nowhere is this power of symbolism more attractively manifest than in the realm of printing, and in no realm is there a more cheering prospect of fresh manifestations of that power. The printer who would have his work prized, who has an ambition to make every piece of work a bit of fine art, cannot ignore symbolism. In fact, symbolism is one of the master-keys to the thousand problems of the profession."

THE NEWSDEALERS' CONVENTION.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF NEWSDEALERS, BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS began the first session of its twenty-sixth annual convention at the Boys' Industrial Association Hall, Wilkes-Barré, Pa., on the morning of August 29, Samuel Stratton, of Paterson, N. J., the president, in the chair. There were present delegates representing about 10,000 newsdealers in the United States. The first day was devoted to reports of committees, the appointment of committees, etc. Addresses were also made and discussed upon measures for further protecting the members and for more closely affiliating the newsboys and the newsdealers, and a suggestion was made that the newsboys be formed into an organization or taken in as a portion of the association.

The second day was largely taken up with the discussion of various subjects brought before the convention and the election of officers, which resulted in the following choice: President, Samuel Stratton, Paterson; first vice-president, William H. Kessler, Wilkes-Barré; second vice-president, A. D. Mynden, Albany; secretary, M. E. Golde, New York, anl treasurer, D. Brophy, New York. Niagara Falls was chosen for the place of meeting next year.

The delegates were entertained by the Wilkes-Barré Press Club to "A Night in Bohemia." They were also treated to a nineteen-mile trolley ride around the mountains and to a visit in the mines.

WESTERN PRINTERS TO STRIKE.

LEADERS of the compositors' strike against book and job printing houses in Chicago this week renewed their canvass of firms in the Chicago Typothetæ, threatening to call out union printers wherever proprietors refused to support the union in its struggle for the eight-hour work day. By aiming to have a general strike of job printers in all the big cities near Chicago, from Ohio to Missouri and Minnesota, local unionists plan to halt the importation of non-union compositors from St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Cleveland and other cities where the Chicago Typothetæ have been advertising for men to work under "open shop" rules. With these cities themselves in the throes of a strike members of Typographical Union, No. 16, believe there would be no surplus of printers to be sent to Chicago.

Several of the large printing houses are said to be converting upper rooms of their buildings into barracks for strikebreakers. The employers anticipate a long and bitter fight.

In view of the fact that the strike is likely to extend also to the East, a meeting of the Periodical Publishers' Association was held on the afternoon of August 16 at the rooms of the Aldine Association. George H. Ellis, William Green and Isaac H. Blanchard, representing the United Typothetæ, and John H. Eggers, chairman of the Executive Committee of the New York Typothetæ, were present to address the members on the subject of the proposed strike for a shorter workday on the part of the typographical union, January 1, 1906. A general discussion of the question by the members followed the addresses, resulting in the passage of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the periodical publishers of America should pledge their moral and financial support to the United Typothetæ in their determination to resist the present adoption of the proposed eight-hour rule of the typographical unions.

Resolved, That the Executive Committee be instructed to present to the members at the next monthly meeting recommendations of plans, together with forms of agreement ready for signature, by which the above resolution may be best carried into effect.

As we go to press nearly one thousand men have struck.

A SUNDAY NEWSPAPER SECTION NOT A MAGAZINE.

JUDGE HOLT, in the United States Circuit Court on August 30, denied an application of the Star Publishing Co., (William R. Hearst,) for an injunction to restrain the publishers of The American Illustrated Magazine, formerly Leslie's Monthly, from issuing their publication under a title containing any combination of the words "American" and "Magazine." Mr. Hearst's contention was that the special article section of his newspaper, issued on Sunday, was an American magazine having the only right to that title.

Archibald Cox, representing The American Illustrated Magazine, argued that the supplement of the Hearst newspapers, though billed to dealers as "Hearst's Sunday Magazine," was in no sense a magazine, but an integral part of a Sunday newspaper, never sold independently, and with pages numbered as a mere section of the newspaper issue. Mr. Cox contended that if Mr. Hearst's claims were true his paper has defrauded the post-office by sending a magazine through the mails at newspaper rates.

Judge Holt held that Mr. Hearst's American magazine supplement was purely an integral part of his Sunday newspaper and not in any sense a magazine.

AUXILIARY AIDS TO BOOKSELLING.

MR. FOOTE, of Syracuse, N. Y., recently contributed his quota to a general discussion by the American Booksellers' Association, at their convention last May, on the relation of the circulating library to the booktrade. It had been objected that the tendency was to diminish the individual sales by making one book go very far. "On the contrary," said Mr. Foote, "the circulating library and the women's clubs are valuable auxiliary aids. Suppose some novel is being talked about. One of the women reads it as it comes her way, and speaks of it to her friends, who, not to be behindhand, purchase the volume at once, rather than wait their turns for it. In their clubs, too, the women like to be up to date, and keep pretty well abreast of the new books so that they can take their part in any discussion that may arise. A novel in which there is any distinct situation is sure to be made the basis for papers and discussion in the women's clubs, and not to be 'up' in the latest book or fad is considered a dreadful thing in suburban circles."

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM TECUMSEH SMITH.

WILLIAM TECUMSEH SMITH, one of the best-known booksellers of Central New York, died on August 18, at Utica, N. Y., in the house, at 9 Summit Place, where he had lived for the last eighteen years. Though Mr. Smith had been ill for eight years, suffering from a nasal catarrh that degenerated into tuberculosis, he attended to business up to the day of his death. Returning to his home he settled down to read a newspaper; a few minutes later he laid his head back in the chair and peacefully breathed his last.

Mr. Smith was born in New Hartford, Oneida County, N. Y., January 1, 1857. While yet a child his parents removed to Ackrington, England, where young Smith's boyhood days were spent. At the age of twelve he returned to this country, settling in Utica, and soon after entered the employ of N. Hollister, bookseller, where he was engaged in delivering newspapers and periodicals. He afterward became a salesman and obtained a thorough knowledge of the business. Later he obtained a position in the wholesale dry goods house of John C. Hieber as bookkeeper. In 1877 he associated himself with Henry M. Bristol and formed the firm of Bristol & Smith, buying up the book and stationery stocks of Whipple and Alfred Hollister. The firm established itself at 149 Genesee Street and did business there for some time. In the meantime Mr. Bristol went to St. Paul, Minn., establishing the bookselling and stationery firm of Bristol, Smith & Freeman. At the end of about a year Mr. Smith, who had not left Utica, sold out his interest in the St. Paul business, but continued his Utica store at 169 Genesee Street. John L. Grant, who had been in Mr. Smith's employ, had gone to Syracuse, but returned to Utica, and in 1888, with Fred. W. Luker, formed the present firm of W. T. Smith & Co. For the past fifteen or sixteen years the firm has been doing a large retail and wholesale business in books, stationery and wall paper at 145 Genesee Street, in the Arcade Building. It is one of the largest concerns of this kind in that section of the State. Mr. Smith was one of the organizers and directors of the Liberty Wall Paper Company, which does business at Schuylerville, Tompkins County, N. Y. It is one of the largest concerns in the wall paper line in this country and has been very successful. Mr. Smith was one of the directors at the time of his death. Mr. Smith was also a director in the Utica Heater Company, which was organized in 1889 for the manufacture of hot air furnaces.

The Utica Daily Press, to which we are indebted for the material of this sketch, paid the following tribute to Mr. Smith: "Mr. Smith stood high in the ranks of Utica business men. He had begun at the lowest round of the ladder and by hard work and tireless energy had risen to prominence. He was a man of foresight and great executive ability and a most indomitable worker. In the ranks of our business men it would be hard to find one who equalled him in diligence and close attention to his business. He had a high sense of honor and his integrity was never questioned. In his dealings he was frank and straightforward, and his yes meant yes and his no, no. The financial institutions of Utica had unbounded confidence in him. He was a man of cheerful disposition and pleasing address."

Mr. Smith was a member of Faxton Lodge, F. and A. M., of the Royal Arcanum, the Utica Chamber of Commerce, the Oneida Historical Society, and of the Church of the Reconciliation. He was one of the first directors of the Consolidated Retail Booksellers. Mr. Smith leaves a wife, but no other near relatives. The business will be continued under the old firm name, John L. Grant remaining in charge of the book and stationery department, and Fred. W. Luker in charge of the wholesale and retail wall-paper departments.

A CABLE despatch of August 25 announces the death of Norman Warne, the youngest of the three sons of Frederick Warne, who since the father's death have conducted the business of Frederick Warne & Co., of London. Since 1879 the firm of Frederick Warne & Co. has been under the control of the Warne family exclusively. The elder Mr. Warne retired in 1895, since which time the affairs have been in the hands of the three sons of the founder, who died in 1901. The remaining brothers are the Messrs. Harold and Fruing.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Atlantic Monthly for September contains an article on "The Problem of Federal Printing," by W. S. Rossiter, of the Census Bureau, a statistical account of the enormous development and great cost of this branch of the Government's activity.

A MAGAZINE for "irrepressibles" is to be the outcome of the recent severing of Oscar Lovell Triggs's connection with To-morrow, a Chicago publication. His newest venture will be called Triggs's Magazine, and will be "for people who cannot be outfaced by irrational things," the editor says.

THE September Arena has among its many bold discussions of present-day political and economic problems and conditions an extended book study on J. H. Hyslop's "Science and the Future Life"; an editorial on "Centres of Life and Leading," by the editor, O. B. Flower, and a critical study of "The Theatre of Edmond Rostand," by Professor Archibald Henderson.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD has finally named her new novel, which is to begin in the November Century, "Fenwick's Career." In the September magazine announcement is made of this story under the title "Fenwick's Ambitions," but a cable message from Mrs. Ward announces the change. The story is of an artist who leaves his young wife and child in the country and goes up to London, on borrowed money, to seek his fortune.

THE September issue of The Printing Art, published by the University Press, Cambridge, Mass., contains a suggestive article on "Symbolism of Form," by Henry Turner Bailey, defining the significance of borders and devices used in printing, with a number of illustrations. Other features of this number are representative inserts in colors and typographic displays of current styles. The Printing Art is very properly described as the "fashionplate of printerdom."

THE September issue of The Burlington Magazine, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, contains an interesting brief note of the portrait of Aretino, by Titian, which was recently sold in London for an enormous sum, with a reproduction of the picture; a paper on Dalow, one of the most accomplished of modern French sculptors, with plates; a continuation of Mr. Clouston's studies of the minor English furniture makers of the 18th century, and other articles of interest. The frontispiece is a photogravure after a charming example of Romney, his study for the "Egremont Family Piece," at Petworth.

THE first number of a new art magazine will be issued this month, bearing the imprint of Moffat, Yard & Company, of New York City, as publishers. The magazine will be called The Scrip, and each number will be illustrated with a duograph, photogravure or colored frontispiece and with line prints. In addition to articles on art subjects of permanent importance, each number will contain a list of the current art exhibitions for the month. The Scrip will devote considerable attention to the arts and crafts movement It will also contain reviews of books on the various forms of art. The new magazine will be edited by Miss Elizabeth Luther Cary, well and favorably known in connection with her contributions to Scribner's, the New York Times Review, and her books on Tennyson, Browning, the Rossettis and William Morris, published through G. P. Putnam's Sons.

The Bookseller and Stationer, of Montreal, in its "Coming of Age Number," dated August, gives a survey of "Book Publishing in Canada," by Arthur Conrad, illustrated with portraits of the leading representatives of the Canadian book trade. Other articles of interest, illustrated with portraits, are "Montreal's Wholesale and Retail Book Trade, Past and Present," "The Retail Book and Stationery Trade of Winnipeg," by F. R. Munro; "The Story of Twenty-one Years," an account of The Bookseller and Stationer, since it was founded, in 1884, by J. J. Dyas, to the present under the management of the Maclean Publishing Company; "Canada's Wholesale Stationery Interests"; "The Montreal Stationery Market;" "Canada's Oldest Book Traveller—W. C. Bell," and other items of interest. The Bookseller and Stationer is one of the ablest-edited book-trade journals in America, and deserves the generous support of all interested in Canadian book trade affairs. On behalf of the book trade of the United States we congratulate it upon its anniversary, and trust it will enjoy many more years in prosperity.

BUSINESS NOTES.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE NEW WAY PUBLISHING COMPANY, Washington, D. C., have just issued a third edition of Henry Frank's "Shrine of Silence," first published by The Abbey Press.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have disposed of seven editions of Parrish's remarkable story of the Civil War—"My Lady of the North"—and are now putting the eighth edition through the press.

THE HOME PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish on the 15th instant "The Adventures of Dr. Burton," by Archibald Clavering Gunter, describing the experiences of a philanthropic criminologist in New York.

W. A. WILDE & Co. will inaugurate the new Uncle Sam's Old Time Stories series with a book by Mary Hazleton Wade, to be entitled "The Coming of the White Men," and to be illustrated by Sears Gallagher.

ALBERT BRANDT, Trenton, N. J., will bring out this fall Joaquin Miller's "The Building of the City Beautiful," a suggestive social vision by the typical American poet who was honored by a special day at the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE, New York, have secured control of two valuable Teachers' Reading Circle books, viz., Findley's "The Teacher and His Work," and Blackmar's "The Story of Human Progress," formerly published by the authors.

T. WERNER LAURIE, London, has just brought out a new story by Fergus Hume, entitled "Lady Jim of Curzon Street." While this is a smart society novel in place of his more familiar detective work, Mr. Hume gives his readers plenty of mystery and excitement.

EDWARD R. HERRICK, who is well known in the trade, has made arrangements with Frederick J. Drake & Co., Chicago, to represent their line of publications in the Eastern market. A full line of samples can be seen at 18 East 17th Street, New York City, in the office of F. M. Buckles & Co.

BRENTANO'S will publish about Sept. 15 a new edition of Oscar Wilde's "Intentions," with a fine photogravure portrait of the author after a picture by Sarony. An appreciative essay on Wilde's literary work by Mr. Pollard forms the introduction to a very handsomely manufactured book.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in preparation "Sunday Talks for Boys and Girls," by Barbara Yechton, author of "A Lovable Crank," etc.; "One Thousand and One Modern Anecdotes," illustrations, incidents, episodes, etc., by Alfred H. Miles, author of "One Thousand and One Anecdotes;" also, "Day by Day Duty," a volume of sermons for the Christian Seasons, by H. J. Wilmot Buxton.

THE LANGUAGES PRINTING COMPANY, 15 West Eighteenth Street, New York City, call attention to their extensive assortment of picture post-cards. Among these the most attractive are the Charles Dana Gibson Post-Cards, ten different kinds; the Life Post-Cards, two sets of ten different cards each; the Buster Brown Post-Cards, ten different kinds; also, cards with New York City views, foreign scenery, portraits of well-known actors and actresses, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation a special edition of George Cavendish's "Life and Death of Cardinal Wolsey." This book was first printed in 1641, about eighty years after the death of the author, who was gentleman usher to the Cardinal, and died in obscurity in 1561. The book will be bound in green boards and buckram, with the Wolsey arms blazoned in gold, and will be illustrated with eleven full-page photogravures, reproduced in sepia and red chalk from Holbein portraits.

A THIRD edition of Professor R. K. Duncan's remarkable book, "The New Knowledge," has been ordered from A. S. Barnes & Co. by the English publishers. In spite of the fact that a second large American edition was ordered on press at an apparently early date it has been a difficult matter to supply the demand for this "American Huxley's" book. Several of the volumes in Messrs. Barnes's successful Trail Makers series of original history and exploration are appearing in England under the general title of Great American Explorers.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a book on "Old Provence," by Theodore Andrea Cook, author of "Old Touraine," etc. It will contain the history of this beautiful section of France, together with some legends about it and its people and descriptions of its scenery. It will be, like "Old Touraine," in two volumes, and profusely illustrated. They have nearly ready "The City, the Hope of Democracy," a study of municipal problems, by Frederic C. Howe, of Cleveland, author of "Taxation and Taxes in the United States under the Internal Revenue System, 1791-1895," etc.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once "Teja," by Sudermann, whose "Magda" has been admired in nearly every civilized country. "Teja" is a unique little tragedy which pictures the last acts and state of mind of a Goth maiden face to face with death. They have also nearly ready a classroom edition of René Bazin's novelette, "Les Oberle," a picture of the lingering effects of war in Alsace, thirty years later, edited by Professor Cabeen, of Syracuse University; also, a collection of representative English essays from Bacon to Stevenson, edited by Professor W. C. Bronson, of Brown University.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish at once "A Handbook of Physiology," by Dr. Austin Flint, which is said to represent the essentials of human physiology as it exists to-day, illustrated with more than fifty original histological plates taken directly from objects by three-color photographic process; "The Italian Lakes, Painted by Ella Du Cane, Described by Richard Baghot," with seventy-five full-page illustrations in color; the revised and enlarged edition of Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's "Reminiscences of Peace and War;" also, "How to Collect Books," by J. H. Slater, who has included in this manual much information on the points which the beginner or the amateur needs to understand.

THE PARRISH PIVOTED TYPE CO., 5 East Forty-second Street, New York City, has published an interesting and instructive pamphlet for teachers and parents, entitled "Forty Exercises in Training the Minds of Children," by William George Jordan, author of "Mental Training by Analysis, Law and Analogy," "The Kingship of Self-Control," etc., and editor-in-chief of The Search-Light. These simple exercises have been arranged to be used in connection with the Parrish Pivoted Type System, which consists of a box of large type letters pivoted so that they penetrate a specially prepared cork tablet. The exercises have been planned to quicken the mind of the child in various directions—to teach spelling, mental arithmetic and the use of words, etc. There is an element of game in the system which makes it attractive to a single child as well as to a group of children.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish shortly a volume of Tom Masson's best humor, elaborately illustrated and with a cover from a drawing of Charles Dana Gibson. Mr. Masson has been associated with Life for the last twelve years as literary and managing editor, and his extraordinary versatility has been constantly in evidence. Last year he published a volume of humorous and society verse that met with a large vogue, especially among the younger generation of readers. The new book is largely prose, but contains a few of his best and latest things in verse. They have also nearly ready Jessie Willcox Smith's new series of child pictures in color. It will be entitled "First Steps in a Child's Life," and will include five pictures exquisitely reproduced by lithography. These pictures are genuine little comedies of childhood, and are, in a human sense, more interesting than anything Miss Smith has heretofore done.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish on the 27th inst. a book of jolly nonsense and many pictures that will appeal alike to girls and boys and grown-up children, entitled "Queen Zixi of Ix," by L. Frank Baum, the author of "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," and the originator of the famous Wogglebug; also, "Captain Myles Standish," by Tudor Jenks, intended to make young readers better acquainted with American history through intimacy with individual characters—the life of Captain Myles Standish and the history of the Plymouth colony being closely interwoven. One of the early fall juveniles announced by the Century Company is from the pen of Captain Harold Hammond, a West Point graduate and instructor. The book deals with the adventures of "Pinkey Perkins: Just a Boy," and is written with such sympathetic understanding of the youthful point of view, it is said, that it might be the record of the writer's own boyhood.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish on the 15th inst. Norman Duncan's new book, "The Mother," a keen analysis of the elements of the human heart, which will also be brought out in a limited edition de luxe, with special decorations. Early in October they will publish Dr. J. M. Ludlow's new novel, "Sir Raoul," which has as its background the fall of Constantinople and the dawn of modern history. They have in press a volume entitled "A World-Wide Revival," by George T. B. Davis, describing the personality and work of Dr. R. A. Torrey, the evangelist, and of Charles M. Alexander, the singer, who accompanied Dr. Torrey in his revival meetings during the last four years; also, the long-promised volume from W. J. Dawson, "Makers of Fiction," the third in the trio that Dr. Dawson has prepared in the realm of literary criticism, the two previous volumes covering, one Prose and the other Poetry, said to be remarkable for the sanity, accuracy and clearness with which it presents the course of the rising tide of fiction.

THE application of Grant Richards, the London publisher, for an order of discharge in bankruptcy came before Registrar Brougham on Aug. 4, and was disposed of by an order suspending the discharge for two years from July 14. The estimated liabilities, according to the official receiver's report, were £36,495, but it was stated that these might be increased to as much as £48,995 in certain contingencies. Of the assets £10,300 had been realized, and the value of the unrealized assets was estimated at £10,075. The official receiver's report regarding the bankrupt's conduct of his business and his manner of living was very unfavorable. In explanation of the private expenditure it was stated that Mr. Richards had spent considerable sums in entertaining authors, booksellers, and other persons who might have assisted him in business. The registrar, in giving judgment, remarked that this was an unfortunate case, as the bankrupt had a large business, which, so late as November, 1904, was valued at £50,000. According to the London Academy, Mrs. Grant Richards, wife of the bankrupt, has started a publishing business of her own.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation "The Yellow Journalist," by Miriam Michelson, of which the scene is San Francisco and the heroine Rhoda Massey, who leads a life of gay adventure; "Duke of Devil May Care," by Harris Dickson; "The Giants," by Mrs. Fremont Older, a story attacking the much-discussed oil trusts; "At the Emperor's Wish," by Oscar King Davis, very timely, as it is a Japanese war novel; also "The Carlyles," a new romance by the ever successful Mrs. Burton Harrison. This firm is to be congratulated on the success of their undertaking in bringing out "Adolescence: its Psychology and its Relations to Physiology, Anthropology, Sociology, Sex, Crime, Religion and Education;" G. Stanley Hall's fine work in two volumes, which is already selling in the thousands. Robert W. Chambers's "Iole" has also entered its third thousand. In new fiction they are receiving large advance orders for "The Reckoning," by Robert W. Chambers; "Outside the Law," by James Barnes; and "Reptiles," by H. W. McVicar. Among their juvenile announcements are "Four in Camp," by Ralph Henry Barbour; "The Outcast Warrior," by Kirk Monroe; and "Forest Land," by Robert W. Chambers, the latter a picture-book, handsomely illustrated in colors. For the holidays they are preparing de luxe editions of Kipling's "Seven Seas," and of Gilbert Parker's "The Seats of the Mighty."

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY, The Bodley Head, has just brought out an interesting book by Gilbert K. Chesterton, entitled "Heretics." The author does not altogether approve of the heretic who thinks he is a heretic, and he has some things to say on the measure of such men as Rudyard Kipling, Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, Whistler, and others. Speaking of Mr. Kipling's interest in militarism, the author says, he is as wrong as his critics, that Mr. Kipling is not attracted by the element of courage, but the element of discipline. The modern army is a miracle of organization, and that is the truly Kiplingite idea. So far from having preached that a soldier cleaning his sidearm is to be adored because he is military, Kipling, says Mr. Chesterton, preaches that the baker baking loaves and the tailor cutting coats is as military as anybody. Bernard Shaw is set down as appearing to be eccentric because of his devotion to the strict truth. Mr. Chesterton writes of H. G. Wells and The Giants, Omar and the Sacred Vine, the Mildness of the Yellow Press, Smart Novelists and the Smart Set, of the wit of Whistler and other topics, which he handles in his usual characteristic style. They announce that "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne," by William J. Locke, is now being put to press for the fifth impression, and arrangements are now under way for the dramazation of this novel.

Dodd, Mead & Co. will issue this fall "The Declaration of Independence: its History," a very important work in two volumes, by J. H. Hazelton, which tells of the history of this great document beginning with 1774, following with the initial steps taken by the various colonies; Jefferson's share in the drafting; the help of John Adams; the position of Hancock; and an account of how, when and where each member signed the document. Then comes a graphic description of the effect of the Declaration on this country and England, followed by a chapter on the present resting place of the original document. They will also bring out "The Minutes of the Committee of Safety of the County of Tryon from the first meeting in the Palatine District, Aug. 27, 1774, to Nov. 24, 1775," edited and annotated and illustrated with portraits, views, and facsimiles. The Tryon County of Revolutionary days included very much more than the present limits, and the work is a very important and interesting Revolutionary historical narrative relating to Central New York. Later in the season they will bring out two juveniles sure of warm reception—"The Wild Flower Fairy Book," by Esther Singleton, whose "Golden Rod Fairy Book" was so popular, and who has now made selections from the folk trees of all nations. Her book will be illustrated and decorated in fine holiday style. The other juvenile is a book for boys and girls by Barbara Yechton, who always presents healthy-minded youngsters who think and do things as real children think and do them.

Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish on the 7th inst. "The Colonel's Dream," by Charles W. Chesnutt; also, "A Southern Girl in '61," by Mrs. B. Giraud Wright, and "Paintings of the Louvre," by Dr. Arthur Mahler. On Oct. 5 they will have ready a "Book of New Games and Amusements," by Meredith Nugent and Victor J. Smedley. This contains all their wonderful soap-bubble tricks which attracted such general attention throughout the country, as well as the recipe used by them for producing giant bubbles lasting from five to ten minutes. It tells how to sail yacht races in the clouds, how to make sunshine engines, how to have a circus on a kite string, how to make toys for the seashore, how to make locomotives, automobiles, tops, merry-go-rounds, egg-shell clowns, and ever so many things fully as a novel. The book is profusely illustrated with effective and practical drawings made by the inventors themselves. The publishers have postponed the issue of H. Rider Haggard's "Ayesha" until October. "Claims and Counter-claims," by Mrs. Maud Wilder Goodwin, published by this firm, has been recommended for purchase in all American libraries by the American Library Association. It contains a clever little episode of the dedication of a "Carnegie Library" in a little Western town. The publishers also announce that Dixon's "The Clansman" has been translated into Japanese, and has been adopted for presentation in the Japanese store at Portsmouth. Mrs. Gene Stratton Porter's "Freckles" has also reached a third edition, and a Western employer has just ordered 150 copies of the book for distribution among his employees.

The John C. Winston Company has issued during the past week the New Deerfoot Series, by Edward S. Ellis, with illustrations in color and black by J. Steeple Davis. This series comprises three volumes entitled "Deerfoot in the Forest," "Deerfoot on the Prairies," and "Deerfoot in the Mountains." The author prepared this series in response to numerous letters received from the readers of his first Deerfoot Series, asking him for more stories with the character of Deerfoot, the Shawnee, as the hero. These works are juvenile historical romances, for in them is woven the history of the "Lewis and Clark Expedition" and the "Winning of the West." They have also just issued "Helps and Hints in Nursing," by J. Q. Griffith, M.D., written in popular language, intended for family and reference use; and "The History of Old Pine Street Church," one of the Revolutionary churches of Philadelphia, which contains seventy-two historical illustrations, and was edited by the eighth pastor of the church, Hughes Oliphant Gibbons. To the International Series of Bibles has been added the new "Christian Worker's Bible," which has been announced to the trade from time to time. The first edition of this work is now ready for delivery. Almost the entire edition has been sold on advance orders, and a new edition is now in process and will be ready for delivery in October. A "Self-Pronouncing India Paper Bible" has also been added to the line. The paper used in the preparation of this Bible is unusually bright and opaque. The publishers have been making many experiments with India Bible paper during the past three years, and consider this new edition and subsequent editions, which will be issued on the same paper next month, to be satisfactory in every respect, and expect to complete negotiations for using the entire product of this India Bible paper that can be produced in the mill in which it was made.

FEW, if any, of the recent poets have attracted so much attention as Edmund Vance Cooke. "His poems," says the New York Sun, "are full of cleverness." "He has the poet's faculty of entering into the various phases of life," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and the Baltimore Sun adds: "His work contains real literary merit." The Daily Mail-Tribune gets enthusiastic and states: "Mr. Cooke is little less than a wonder. In humor and pathos he is equally strong." In Utica, the Observer prints: "Mr. Cooke is a poet of no mean genius. He has written some splendid verse, portraying pathos and humor that are true to life." The Free Press says: "There is in him something of Riley, something of Field, nor is there lacking the keenness of Twain, yet, unlike them all, he is the original Cooke, the cordial and genial poet."

E. F. BENSON'S

Image in the Sand

12mo, cloth, $1.50

What the Critics Say

"'The Image in the Sand' is a love romance, but it is in part love of a very weird sort. Spiritualism, hypnotism, demoniac possession, white and black magic, oriental theosophy—all are found among the component parts of this tale."—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

"The quiet, intense conviction of Mr. Benson's pages cannot fail entirely of a certain impressiveness."—Times Saturday Review, New York City.

"Mr. Benson's work is well-nigh flawless—masterful in its artistic unity and in its complete saturation with the actuality of what it portrays."—Pittsburgh Gazette.

"The works of this stimulating writer are always luminous with the latest fad of the groping fashionable world. Any book bearing the name of the author of 'Dodo' and 'The Challoners' is certain of a welcome, whether the scenes be laid in the drawing rooms of London's nobility or in the haunts of Egypt's mysterious sorcerers."—Herald, Boston.

"'The Image in the Sand' is certainly good reading. Its occultation is too modern to evoke the old-time 'creeps,' but it has all the advantages of the semi-scientific speculations and researches of the day. Its normal part is done with skill and insight, and there are some delightfully wholesome English people in its pages."—Evening Mail, New York City.

SUCCESSES NEW AND OLD

John Philip Sousa's
PIPETOWN SANDY

The march king, who marched his way into popular fiction with his delightful romance, "The Fifth String," again shows that his skill with the pen is equal to his skill with the baton.

"Pipetown Sandy" is a tale of Mr. Sousa's own city of Washington in the sixties—a tale combining adventure, humor, the tenderness of boyhood and the interest of a novel love plot.

With the exception of "Huckleberry Finn" there has probably been no book in a century of American literature so permeated with the sparkle and bubble of real boy as is "Pipetown Sandy."

Twelve pictures by C. L. Hinton. 12*mo, cloth,* $1.50.

David Graham Phillips's

A New Novel by the Author of

"THE MASQUERADER"

Presenting the Most Unusual and Captivating Heroine of the Year

From "The Gambler"

The Gambler

By

KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON

MRS. THURSTON again gives the world a novel of striking and original achievement. In "The Gambler" she has portrayed a heroine as superbly fascinating as she is unusual in fiction. Clodagh Asshlin is a beautiful Irish girl—impetuous, eager for gayety, the soul of honor—but inheriting from her father the taint of his passion for gambling.

It is a story of life in fashionable English circles, where Clodagh finds herself the centre of attraction and attention. Love at last awakes to meet a noble response in Sir Walter Gore, but debts, intrigues, and difficulties have so closed in upon her butterfly whirl of pleasure that her romance threatens to prove her ruin.

Mrs. Thurston has worked it out superbly. It is a powerful story, as magical in its charm and as compelling in its interest as was "The Masquerader." The love-tale is most appealing, so vividly has the author portrayed her heroine, intensely human and lovable in her strength and weakness alike.

FALL ISSUES

NORMAN DUNCAN
Author of Dr. Luke, etc.

THE MOTHER

Decorated Cloth, $1.25

A novellette of New York life that shows what a master can do at depicting a single great human emotion. Although the theme of the story is simplicity itself, one is held under the peculiar spell of a man who knows how to depict the honest truth of a human heart, the tears next the smiles.

JAMES M. LUDLOW
Author of Deborah, etc.

SIR RAOUL

Illustrated Cloth, $1.50

Dr. Ludlow's novel is a drama of inner conscience, as well as a thrilling story of outward adventure, and is a worthy companion to his early success, "The Captain of the Janizaries," and his later achievement, "Deborah."

ROBERT E. KNOWLES

ST. CUTHBERT'S

Illustrated Cloth, $1.50

A novel that does for life in a Canadian parish what Ian Maclaren did for his Scotch church folk. Humor is so mingled with pathos that one feels it is all true, while hard common sense and the spirit of the poet and seer combine on the same page with indescribable effectiveness.

ISABELLA R. HESS

SAINT CECILIA OF THE COURT

Illustrated Cloth, $1.25

A striking successor to "The Bishop's Shadow," by a new writer. The pathos and humor are natural, the story showing many sides of life in the great city, the tenements, the hospitals, and the good that lives there and will not die. Readers will enjoy exceedingly the good character drawing.

ADELINE M. TESKEY

The VILLAGE ARTIST

Frontispiece Cloth, $1.00

Sketches of life in the village about her. The artists' pictures ring with sweetest optimism, and are scented with her garden and the sweet fragrance of her cleverly planned ways of speaking happiness. It certainly reminds one of "Mrs. Wiggs," yet the artist is by no means an imitation. The radiance of a peerless faith in the good of humanity is spread over every page.

MARIAN KEITH

DUNCAN POLITE

Cloth, $1.50

"The story has a deep undercurrent of pathos, relieved by much real humor, a nice bit of balancing, which proves Miss Keith's sure artistic grasp. Moreover, both humor and pathos are refreshingly unique, and the little Canadian parish of Glenoro has a life and character distinctly its own."—Boston Transcript.

CHARLES M. SHELDON

The HEART OF THE WORLD

Cloth, $1.25
Paper, net, 35c.

"The principles and aims of Christian Socialism are here presented with dramatic effect in the form of a story. The best thing about the book is the thing now most needed—the irenic, evangelic spirit of human sympathy that it aims to generate between the churches and 'labor'."—Outlook.

Catchwords of Cheer

Second Series

Mrs. Hubbard's first collection of "cheerful thoughts for every day in the year" was so popular that a new series has been prepared, with an entirely new binding and form. It consists of a collection of optimistic epigrams upon life and living, arranged in calendar or birthday-book form. Like the first series (which was published three years ago in cloth, at 80 cents), this book is especially desirable for small gifts for birthdays, anniversaries, and general occasions.

This second series ought to reach a good sale, for it is showy and attractive, and is a useful kind of book for every bookseller, large or small, to have displayed conspicuously on his counters.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on the 15th inst. "The Wild Irishman," a new book by T. W. H. Crosland, the author of "The Unspeakable Scot," which created quite a sensation at the time of its publication three years ago. Robert Chambers's new book, "The Reckoning," will be brought out on the 22d inst., the advance demand for the book having delayed its publication. They will publish shortly "Baby Bullet," by Lloyd Osbourne, a humorous tale of an orphan automobile; also, "He and Hecuba," a new story by the Baroness von Hutten.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. publish to-day "A Southern Girl in '61," by Mrs. D. Giraud Wright, daughter of Senator Wigfall, of Texas, which throws much new light on the social history of the Confederacy. The book is very fully illustrated with portraits. They have also just ready Dr. Arthur Mahler's book on the Italian and Spanish "Paintings of the Louvre." Dr. Mahler was assisted by Carlos Blacker and William A. Slater, and the three have produced what may practically be considered the only accurate up-to-date list in existence of all the Spanish and Italian pictures in the Louvre.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "Mrs. Radigan," Nelson Lloyd's genial satire on society; "McAllister and His Double," an amusing book of fiction, by Arthur Train, with illustrations by F. C. Yohn; "The Study of the History of Music, with an Annotated Guide to Music Literature," by Professor Edward Dickinson, of Oberlin College, a book designed both for the student of the history of music and for the general reader; also, the third volume of "Philosophia Ultima, or, Science of Sciences," by Dr. Charles Woodruff Shields, the concluding volume of a series which deals with the relation between religion and science, taking up the scientific problem of religion and the Christian evidences of the physical and psychical sciences.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just ready a story by Mrs. Ruth Kimball Gardiner, entitled "The Heart of a Girl," with illustrations by Charles L. Hinton, which is described as "the inner story of an American girl's life, written with the fulness of personal expression which comes occasionally to lay a firm hold upon readers;" also, Arthur Henry's "Lodgings in Town," the third of the trilogy, which includes "An Island Cabin" and "The House in the Woods," which, like its predecessors, is a distinctly human document, illustrating the friendly philosophies which always characterize Mr. Henry's stories, and giving vivid glimpses of the inner and outer life of New York City. They will publish later in the month Holman F. Day's story of New England life, entitled "Squire Phin."

HARPER & BROTHERS publish this week "The Trident and the Net," a novel by the author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress," etc. The scene is laid in New York, in Paris and in Brittany—but a Brittany wholly new to the American reader—and the story of the contest between the good and evil in the nature of a man born to high rank and fortune, and of the influences by which that nature is alternately swayed is vibrant with life and emotion. They have also just ready "Little Mother and Georgie," a new book for little children, by Gertrude Smith, author of "The Stories of Peter and Ellen" and many other books, all of them well known to little folk; "A Proposal Under Difficulties," by John Kendrick Bangs, issued in the popular Black and White series, to make it more available for parlor theatricals—a use to which the merry little farce is well adapted; and "Her Memory Book," arranged by Helen Hayes.

The author has brought together in one connected presentation the chief results of his investigations concerning the factors of organic evolution. Portions of his theory of divergence which were published in the Linnean Society's Journal are reproduced in the appendix, with careful revision: but the fullest exposition of the fact that all evolution, as we now observe it, is divergent, and that other factors besides natural selection are absolutely necessary both for the origin and the continuance of this divergence, is given in the new chapters constituting the body of the volume. These chapters were written while the author was considering the most recent biological investigations bearing on the general theory of segregation.

The hero "Freckles," comes into the story as a tramp seeking work in a western lumber camp. He is little more than a boy, with a pathetic face and an equally pathetic story, both of which appeal strongly to Mr. McLean, an educated Scotchman the field manager of the Grand Rapids Lumber Company. He employs "Freckles" to help watch the valuable timber his men are cutting down. "Freckles'" mental development in contact with the wild nature of his environment is graphically told. His love story is romantic, and his final quest for his real name and family crowned with success.

The title of the book stands for a quaint old house, suggestive in its appearance of a "Jack o' Lantern," which a New York newspaper man inherits from a queer old uncle whom he had never seen, and who though dead, impresses his individuality upon the whole story. He, the newspaper man, takes his bride to his new home at the end of their honeymoon, to make its acquaintance, and the most remarkable and amusing sequence of events follow. Money is found in books and secret drawers, diamonds in old mattresses; an uncanny cat and a ghostly looking servant maid add to the variety of things; numerous relatives of the dead man appear upon the scene and declare their intention of spending the summer; before the climax is reached, life for the bride seems scarcely worth livng. The fun keeps up to the very end.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

APROPOS of the present investigation of the Government Printing Office by the Keep Commission, is the article entitled "The Problem of Federal Printing," in the September number of The Atlantic Monthly, by William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the U. S. Census Bureau and expert and special agent for printing and publishing the Twelfth Census. Mr. Rossiter's is a quiet, mostly statistical, account of the enormous development and great cost of this branch of government activity—the greatest printing plant in the world, being in capacity and output five or six times as large as the Imprimerie Nationale.

"The necessity for federal printing," according to Mr. Rossiter, "began with the First Congress, which assembled in New York in 1789. Proposals were then invited by joint resolution for the printing of six hundred copies of the Acts of Congress, and seven hundred copies of the journal. The early requirements in New York and Philadelphia, and later in Washington, to which place the government was removed in 1800, were, however, very insignificant.

"The statutes relating to federal printing have been completely made over or amended in important particulars five times during the past century. By the joint resolution of 1819 a scale of prices was established, and each body balloted for its printer. With minor changes this method continued for twenty-seven years. Under the law of 1846 the clerks of the Senate and House were directed to secure bids annually for the printing needed. These bids were to be opened in the presence of the Vice-President and Speaker. This plan remained in operation for six years. It was expensive and unsatisfactory to the government, and ruinous to the contractors.

"In 1852 the contract system was abolished and the office of Superintendent of Public Printing was created, to be filled through appointment by the President. The superintendent was to take charge of all public printing and advertise annually for bids for paper, but Congress returned to the custom of establishing a fixed scale of compensation and electing a printer for each body. By this time the limited facilities of Washington began to be severely felt. No one office was sufficient to handle the entire volume of federal printing, and dissatisfaction and inconvenience were general. Moreover, the scale system proved very expensive.

"The next and inevitable change came in 1860, when Congress, by joint resolution, authorized the purchase of the principal plant in the city, building and all, for $135,000. This building still forms part of the old Government Printing Office and adjoins the new building. When purchased in 1860 it contained twenty-three Adams presses, three rotary presses, and about twenty tons of type. The job department was stated to consist of eighty-two cases of job type and nineteen 'spittoons.'

"Operation of the plant thus acquired began in the following March, but although new type and machinery were added at frequent intervals it was necessary for the Congressional printer to invoke the assistance of private concerns until 1866.

"The Government Printing Office as now operated is therefore the result of years of slow and continuous growth. It is doubtful whether the present building and contents could be duplicated for less than $10,000,000. The principal building in which this great office is housed was completed two years ago at a cost of $2,500,000. It is 408 feet long by 175 feet wide, and is seven stories high. . . . The entire plant, including the old building, contains nearly sixteen acres of floor space. The equipment includes 300 tons of type, 60 typesetting machines, nearly 150 printing presses of all sizes, 600 individual electric motors, and ruling, folding and binding machinery of bewildering variety and vast capacity. Connected with the establishment is an electrotype foundry said to have no equal in size in the world. It is capable of turning out 2000 electrotypes daily. Under the sidewalk is located a large storage vault for plates, with a capacity for 2 000,000 electrotypes.

"The total number of persons employed in the Government Printing Office varies from 4000 to 4500, and the fortnightly disbursement for wages now amounts to nearly $100,000. The compositors alone number about 1200; they are divided into eight divisions, each of which by itself would be considered a large composing force. . . .

"The job work of the office requires a separate department employing about 150 compositors and including nearly 40 presses. Attached to the printing office are seven branch offices located in the government departments. Each branch is fully equipped with type and presses. In two of these branches there are also complete binderies.

"The immense quantity of material of all kinds consumed by the Government Printing Office in the course of a year is indicated by a few of the larger items. During the last fiscal year there were purchased 6,366,955 pounds of machine book paper, costing $216,486.43; approximately 41,000 reams of supercalendered paper of varying sizes and 5000 reams of coated or "cut" paper, together costing about $150,000; 57,660 reams of writing and ledger paper, costing approximately $106,000; 39,270 pounds of printing ink, costing $23,008.68; 216,161 feet of leather, and 9423 dozen skins, costing $97,904.99; 8015 pieces of book cloth, costing $46,683.41; 5975 packs and rolls of gold leaf, costing $33,689.93; 1,393,350 pounds of binder's board, costing $42,086.17; while the lithographs, engravings and cuts purchased by the public printer from private contractors, for use in publications printed and bound in the government plant, cost $272,243.06."

In 1790, according to Mr. Rossiter's figures, the total cost of Federal printing was $8,785; in 1904, $7,080,906—the expenditure from 1890 to 1899, inclusive, being 243 times as great as that for the corresponding decade one hundred years earlier. Mr. Rossiter estimates that the cost of government printing in the decade 1900-1909 will exceed $60,000,000—or more than had been spent on it from 1790 to 1880. It is not surprising that alarm has been taken at this making of many books in the Government Printing Office and that President Roosevelt has called for retrenchment, and has appointed a committee to inquire into the matter, whose report, it is expected, will be made public shortly. On all sides it seems to be agreed that the public printing has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished; but while every one is willing that his neighbor's work should remain unprinted, no one is willing that his own work should be committed to oblivion. By Mr. Rossiter's tables it appears that printing done by the various States has become approximately as extravagant as has that done by the Federal government; indeed, as Mr. Rossiter says, "the use of printing is a habit, and varies greatly in different communities. This is illustrated by the great disparity in the amount of printing which the different States regard as necessary. Tennessee, for example, required printing costing a little over $8,000 in 1900, while New York required printing costing in excess of $650,000; therefore the proportion of printing to population was twenty times as great in New York as in Tennessee."

Undeniably, the Government Printing Office has turned out much good and needed work, but that should not be made a pretext for waste; and that the Federal printing concern is conducted in a flagrantly extravagant manner Mr. Rossiter's showing leaves no one—not even the most uncompromising partisan—in any possible doubt. The cost of printing at the Government Printing Office according to Mr. Rossiter is "decidedly higher than the charge for similar commercial work." Indeed, asserts Mr. Rossiter, if this government plant, doing a business of $7,000,000 a year, were transformed into a private concern, the owners would discover that the charges for product, although they do not include the usual and important items of rent, interest and profit, are nevertheless from one and one-half to ten times as high as the prices charged for similar work by printers who include the omitted items.

"It is practically impossible," continues Mr. Rossiter, "to secure from government employees the work—clerical or manual—that is expected and exacted from employees of private concerns. Many factors contribute to this result; it is quite apart from administration and politics, and probably never will be eradicated. The climate of Washington and the lack of commercial excitement—of the rush and bustle which key up the workers in the great industrial centres—contribute also to lessened product and thus to proportionately increased expense. This statement applies to every government office, but obviously for most of them there is no exact standard of comparison with commercial cost of production for similar work, such as exists for the printing office. . . .

"The waste in federal printing may be summed up as comprised in two general classes—that occurring from various causes in the conduct of the printing plant itself; that resulting from the publication of pamphlets and volumes either really not needed at all, or, if needed, issued too expensively or in too large numbers. Of these two classes of waste, that existing in the plant is purely a business matter, and can be remedied to some extent by following more closely the best commercial methods. That occurring in connection with the character and amount of product can probably be met permanently only by some form of supervision dealing especially with the three questions which should be considered with every proposed publication—the question of publishing at all, the question of economy in mechanical presentation, and the question of restricting the size of the edition so as not to exceed the number of copies required by a wise distribution. Distribution, indeed, forms a perplexing problem by itself. The commercial publisher catering to a definite demand avoids dead stock by reprinting. With federal publications the tendency is toward only one edition and that a liberal one. Herein is the possibility of serious waste; people are always to be found who will accept any kind of a book if it costs nothing. Therefore distribution is limited solely by the number of copies Congress or government officials are willing to issue. The object of most federal publications could be attained at a very small part of the present cost if they were sent free only to libraries and public institutions, and certain important newspapers which agree to review them, and were sold for a nominal sum to all others. Such a policy would be a radical departure from present procedure, especially in the case of Congress, for little by little Senators and Representatives have become distributing centres and official book agents for literature on all subjects."

Mr. Rossiter does not seem very hopeful of either immediate or thorough reform. On the contrary, he expects, after the report of the Keep Commission is disposed of, that "retrenchment is likely to take the form of horizontal cutting, certain to cause inconvenience, and that, after a period of interruption and agitation, the upward movement will be resumed." That this must be the case unless the Government Printing Office is put under the control of a competent Public Printer, and removed from the meddling of politicians—in short, unless a miracle is wrought—no one who is but remotely acquainted with the affairs of that institution is likely to doubt.

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY SUES ESS ESS PUB. CO.

A SUIT for $25,000, involving the dramatic rights in "A Corner in Coffee," a novelette, has been brought in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, N. Y., by the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, the author, against the Ess Ess Publishing Company, publishers of The Smart Set Magazine. Papers in the action were filed on August 31.

Dr. Brady says that in 1903 he sold the serial rights to the story to the defendant company for $500, and that it appeared in The Smart Set. Later, when Dr. Brady decided to dramatize the story, he learned that the Ess Ess Company was planning to do the same thing. He says he warned the company that this would be an infringement upon his rights.

In February of this year, he says, he learned that the company had had "A Corner in Coffee" dramatized by Owen Davis and had contracted for its production. The company asserted that when it acquired the serial rights to the story it also bought the right to dramatize it.

On Dr. Brady's application Justice Burr ordered that all royalties from the play be deposited with a trust company pending a settlement of the suit.

"LITERARY GHOSTS" IN FRANCE.

NEEDLESS to say, the literary "ghost" is as well known in France as elsewhere. "In this connection," says the editor of T. P.'s Weekly, London, "a pleasing anecdote is being related in Paris, which will probably be new to most of my readers, as to myself. A certain well-known 'feuilletonist' was engaged to write a serial story for a Paris newspaper. Being a very busy man, he sub-let the contract—if that be the proper term to use—to a 'ghost,' who may be called A., giving him for his work half the sum paid by the newspaper.

"Everything went well until, one day, A was suddenly taken ill, and died in a few hours. Much perturbed, his employer obtained the back numbers of the paper, read up the story—of which he, of course, knew nothing—finished it as briefly as possible, and carried his work at once to the office.

"The editor was much surprised to learn his errand. 'But you have already sent us the rest of the story,' he remonstrated, 'and it ends quite differently.' Deeply puzzled, the novelist went away, to learn subsequently that A had in his turn sub-let the writing of the serial to another 'ghost,' B retaining a profit for himself on the transaction. B, of course, had finished his work without regard to his immediate employer's death.

THE following communication will answer the complaints we have received regarding a supposed omission of four pages in the catalogue of the John C. Winston Company as bound up in "The Publishers' Trade List Annual" for 1905:

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In reply to your favor of the 31st will say there is no omission in our catalogue comprised in "The Publishers' Trade List Annual" for 1905. The four pages which appear to have been omitted you will find in front of the book catalogue. They describe our editions of illustrated photogravure books. We wished to make a better display of the illustrated photogravure books and therefore made new plates, which we placed in front of the catalogue instead of using the smaller plates as covered in the four folios which appear to be omitted.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO.,
C. F. KINDT.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DAVID F. DAVIDS, president of The Thaddeus Davids Co., and eldest son of the founder, died at New Rochelle, N. Y., August 26, aged seventy-three. Mr. Davids was born in New York City, on William Street, in 1832, and, with the exception of service in the U. S. Navy during the war between the States, was connected with his father's firm, and much of its success was due to him.

WILHELM ONCKEN, the famous historian of Greece, died on August 11, at Giessen, in the Duchy of Hesse. Dr. Oncken was born at Heidelberg, December 19, 1836, and studied history, philosophy and classic philology at Heidelberg, Göttingen and Berlin. In 1870 he was called to the chair of History at Giessen, where he remained until his death. His more important works are "Isocrates and Athens," "Athens and Hellas," and "Aristotle's Science of Politics." Others of his works are "The Age of Frederick the Great," "The Period of Emperor William I.," etc.

ALEXANDER MAHAN, at one time a well-known bookseller in Central New York, died last week in Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Mahan was born in Virgil, N. Y., in 1840, and in early manhood became a dealer in produce. In 1868 he went to Cortland and started in the book and stationery business in the Taylor Hall Block. Later his brother-in-law, D. F. Wallace, joined him in business, and a department of music, musical instruments, etc., was added. In 1875 the business grew to such proportions that it was thought advisable to separate it, Mr. Wallace retaining the book and stationery department and Mr. Mahan the music department.

HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH, author and journalist, died at Warren, R. I., on September 5. Mr. Butterworth was born at Warren, December 22, 1839. He received a common school education and then prepared for college, but ill health obliged him to forego a college education, and instead he travelled in Europe, Cuba, Canada and in the United States. Returning, he took special courses of study to round out his education. His tastes led him to undertake newspaper work, and he became a contributor to The Independent, The Congregationalist and The Youth's Companion. For a time he edited a country newspaper. In 1870 he became assistant editor of The Youth's Companion, for which most of his later work was done. He published twelve volumes of "Zigzag Journeys," the circulation of which reached nearly half a million; two volumes of poetry, "Poems for Christmas, Easter and New Year" and "Songs of History," and many juvenile works. He won a gold medal by his "Story of the Hymns," written for the American Tract Society. Mr. Butterworth was also a lecturer on literature, travel, hymnology and child training. One of his later works was "The Log Schoolhouse on the Columbia," giving a vivid picture of frontier life in Oregon.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS MYRA KELLY, whose sketches of child life on the East Side of New York City have won great praise for her, and Allan Macnaughtan, of Teaneck, N. J., were married on August 27. Mr. Macnaughtan is manager of the Standard Coach and Horse Company, and a former director of the Wool Exchange. He was associated with his brother, James Macnaughtan, in the management of the wrecked Tradesmen's National Bank. He lives at Teaneck on the William Walter Phelps estate, comprising some two hundred acres of the finest land in New Jersey. Miss Kelly is an Irish girl, born in Dublin. Her father is a practicing physician on the upper East Side. She taught school for some years on the East Side, and there, by keen observation, gathered the details for the East Side stories which have made her famous.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will publish on the 23d inst. a volume on "Home Life in France," by Matilda Betham-Edwards.

FRANK SQUIER, well known to the trade through his thirty-eight years' connection with the Perkins Goodwin Company, manufacturers of paper, is about to retire from active business.

ADAM & CHARLES BLACK, Edinburgh and London, have in press a new edition of the poet laureate's prose book, "The Garden that I Love," with colored illustrations by George S. Elgood.

THE COLE BOOK COMPANY, of Atlanta, Ga., will bring out during the fall "Perdita," a volume of poems by Charles J. Bayne, a few of which have appeared in The Atlantic, The Century and other magazines.

CHARLES C. SHOEMAKER, manager of the Penn Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is in New York looking after the trade in the city and neighborhood. Mr. Shoemaker's headquarters are at the St. Denis.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish this fall Theodore Watts-Dunton's new novel, "Carniola," the scene of which is partly laid in Venice and partly in Hungary. Although, like "Aylwin," it is a love story, it is said to be much more various in its pictures of life than that very popular work.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have just added to their very attractive New Century Library the first volume of Shakespeare's works, to be completed in six volumes. This, like the other issues of this series, is printed in Nelson's India paper and bound in cloth and limp leather.

THE RIDGWAY-THAYER COMPANY, Union Square, New York City, will publish on the 15th inst. "Frenzied Finance: the Crime of Amalgamated," by Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, which contains Lawson's epoch-making story up to and including the instalment entitled "The Crime of the Amalgamated."

ROHDE & HASKINS, 16 Cortlandt Street, New York City, report a large fall demand for their "Toasts and Tributes," a book of 1200 toasts. They are well into their third edition and expect to go to press again for the holidays. The book has been listed by the New York State Library as one of the 1000 best books.

EATON & MAINS, (Methodist Book Concern,) have in preparation a biography of Bishop John Fletcher Hurst, by Albert Osborn, who had a long personal acquaintance with his subject; also, a work on "Christianity and Socialism," by Washington Gladden, who is striving to bring Christianity and socialism into more intelligible and friendly relations.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish shortly "The Vortex," by Thomas McKean, a love story with an Italian background, which has to do with the battle of two personalities; "The Household of Peter," by Rosa Nouchette Carey, a story that will appeal to young women; also, "The Wife of the Secretary of State," a story of mystery, intrigue and love in Washington, by Ella Middleton Tybout, author of "Poketown People."

THE Western representative of the Penn Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, Frank

W. Shoemaker, has been at the Passavant Hospital in Pittsburg, Pa., where, on his way home, he was taken with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. He has since been able to return to Philadelphia, but is still confined to his bed. This will explain why he has failed to visit a number of his customers in the West who were apprised of his coming.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY warn the trade against two "Foxy Grandpa" books that are represented to be new publications. The fact is that these books were published in 1900 and 1901 under different titles and do not contain a single new picture. The only new "Foxy Grandpa" books published since 1902 are "The New Adventures of Foxy Grandpa," (1903,) "Foxy Grandpa Up-to-Date," (1904,) and the new volume for 1905, "Foxy Grandpa's Surprises," to be published this fall by Frederick A. Stokes Company.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have published a useful little volume entitled "A Descriptive Index to Shakespeare's Characters in Shakespeare's Words," by Walter Jerrold. The volume indexes not only all the characters that appear in Shakespeare's plays, but also those who do not actually appear, but who are the subject of comment on the part of those who do. In addition to the names and a brief description, every scene is indicated in which the characters named appear, or the scenes in which any of the characters are mentioned.

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, have just ready a work on "Thought Transference," by Professor Northcote W. Thomas, who deals critically and sympathetically with the evidence on the subject collected during its twenty-three years' existence by the Society for Psychical Research, and shows what any reasonable man without bias in either direction may regard as proved. Another book that will appeal to those interested in occultism is "Crystal Gazing; its history and practice, with a discussion of the evidence of telepathic scrying," also by Professor Thomas, with an introduction by Professor Andrew Lang.

THOMPSON & THOMAS, 338 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, have published a volume of interest to commercial travellers, entitled "Tales of the Road," with illustrations by J. J. Gould, several chapters of which when they appeared in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post received great praise; "Merciful Unto Me, a Sinner," by Elinor Dawson, a Christian Science novel of realistic and dramatic power; also, "An American in New York," by Opie Read, a satirical comment on the sordid, unnatural and un-American conditions that obtain among a certain class of rich people in New York City, with illustrations by Emlen McConnell and Howard Heath.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish this fall "The Professor's Legacy," by Anna H Sidgwick, the legacy in the case being an unfinished book on corals and a daughter, both left to a German professor's young English assistant; "Losers' Luck," a spirited story of American filibusters, who fight in Guatemala to restore Donna Dolores to her rights. For the young folk they will publish in October "The Peter Newell Mother's Goose," being the old rhymes illustrated by Mr. Newell and accompanied by a veracious history by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey; also, "The Wizards of Ryetown," by Constance Smedley and L. A. Talbot, a grotesque fairy tale, interspersed with nonsense verses and numerous quaint illustrations by Augustine MacGregor.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY, Philadelphia, have just brought out a volume entitled "Picturesque English Cottages and Their Doorway Gardens," by P. H. Ditchfield, with a prefatory note by Ralph Adams Cram. The volume gives information concerning the methods of construction, of roofs and chimneys, and of the cottage garden and the flower of the garden. There are, besides, chapters on the evolution of the cottage; strange survivals, geology and variations in style; foreign influence on English cottage architecture; windows and folklore; and shops, inns and historic cottages. The book, which is fully illustrated, is a charming study of the English cottage and the quaint beauty which abounds in British byways.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. are putting through the press a new book of Italian studies and sketches by Maud Howe, (Mrs. John Elliott,) entitled "Two in Italy," which is said to be written in a vein similar to her popular "Roma Beata" of last year; "The Florence of Landor," by Lilian Whiting, who has just returned from that city, which in her forthcoming book she makes live again with the memories of the great writers who have been so closely associated with the beautiful flower town; also, a new book of humorous fiction by Anne Warner, (Mrs. Charles Ellis French,) the creator of "Susan Clegg," to be entitled "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." "Susan Clegg and Her Friend Mrs. Lathrop" has recently been brought out in England, and one of the leading critics there has termed Susan Clegg the "female Dooley."

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish at once a new book by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "Forest Land;" "The Hundred Days," by Max Pemberton, a story of Napoleon's unparalleled campaign; "The Yellow Cat," by Grace V. R. Dwight; and the following books for young people: "Four in Camp," a book for boys, by Ralph Henry Barbour; "The Outcast Warrior," by Kirk Munroe; "The Boy Lincoln," by W. O. Stoddard; "The Young McKinley," by Hezekiah Butterworth; "Little Miss Cricket," "Little Miss Sunshine," "The Colburn Prize," "Big Jack" and "Little Comrade," all by Gabrielle E. Jackson; also, "Fifty-two Stories for Girls" and "Fifty-two Stories for Boys," both edited by Alfred H. Miles. The publication of "The Reckoning," by Robert W. Chambers, and of "The Giants," by Mrs. Fremont Older, has been delayed until the end of the month. "The Young Man and the World," by Albert J. Beveridge, United States Senator from Indiana, will also be brought out on the 29th inst. They will probably publish at the same time "The Staircase of Surprise," by Frances A. Mathews, an exciting story of the Russo-Japanese war.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish during the fall and winter the following textbooks: "Selections from the Lincoln-Douglas Debates," edited by Professor A. L. Bouton; "English Essays," edited and collected by Walter C. Bronson; "Narrative Writing," by Miss Gertrude Buck, author of "Argumentative Writing;" "Specimens of Discourse," edited by A. L. Andrews; "The Midsummer Night's Dream," in the illustrated Temple School Shakespeare; "Selections from Lessing's Laokoon," edited by W. G. Howard; Wildenbruch's "Das Edle Blut," edited by A. K. Hardy; Heyse's "Die Blinden," edited by W. H. Carruth and E. F. Engel, of the University of Kansas; Hebbel's "Herodes and Marianne," edited by Edward Stockton Meyer; Saar's "Die Steinklopfer," edited by Charles H. Handschin and Edwin C. Roeder; "An Introduction to Scientific German," by F. W. Meisnest; "A German Primer," by Professor Lewis Addison Rhoades and Miss Schneider; "A French Reader for Beginners," by Dr. A. Rambeau; Pailleron's "L'Etincelle," a little comedy, edited by Professor O. G. Guerlac; and Theuriet's "L'Abbé Daniel," edited by Professor Robert L. Taylor, of Dartmouth College.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 16th inst. Kate Douglas Wiggin's new story, "Rose o' the River," the background of which is Maine village life very similar to that in Rebecca, illustrated with colored plates after drawings by George Wright; the complete works of Byron in the Cambridge edition, edited by Paul Elmer More, with a portrait and a view of Newstead Abbey; "Mount Desert: a History," by Dr. George E. Street, for many years minister of the Congregational Church in Exeter, N. H., and a prominent summer resident of Mount Desert, edited by Samuel A. Eliot, with a memorial introduction by Wilbert L. Anderson, an interesting contribution to early American history; "Kristy's Surprise Party," by Olive Thorne Miller, a collection of stories told to Kristy on her birthday by the friends she had surprised, as told in the author's "Kristy's Queer Christmas," but who surprise her now by each telling her a story and giving her a story book, the whole being illustrated, in colors, by Ethel N. Farnsworth; "The Liquor Problem: a summary of investigations conducted by the Committee of Fifty, 1893-1903," in which Dr. John S. Billings, Charles W. Eliot, Henry W. Farnum, Jacob L. Greene and Francis G. Peabody sum up and complete the twelve years' work of Committee of Fifty, giving the results of their thorough researches into the physiological, legislative, economic and ethical aspects of the Drink Question; a new edition of "The Song of the Ancient People," by Edna Dean Proctor, with an introduction and notes by John Fiske, a commentary, eleven colored illustrations by Julian Scott, and bound in leather from designs by Mrs. Henry Whitman; a Holiday edition of Hawthorne's "Wonder-Book for Girls and Boys," with illustrations in color by Walter Crane, and other decorations; a new Library edition and a new Household edition of Whittier's poetical works, printed from new plates and fully illustrated; also, a new revised edition of Judge Thomas M. Cooley's history of Michigan, with a supplementary chapter covering the most important events in the history of the State during the last part of the nineteenth century, and setting forth the conditions that prevail at the opening of the twentieth century.

A. S. BARNES & Co.'s preliminary fall announcements include "The Works of Edgar Allan Poe," an India paper edition in four volumes, containing tales, poems, etc., in about 2000 pages, with illustrations, introductions, recollections of Poe by Richard Henry Stoddard, other special prefaces and notes, bound in leather and also in limp cloth; "The Shakespeare Story Book," approved by Sidney Lee, written by Mary Macleod, with an introduction by Sidney Lee and many illustrations by Gordon Browne; "Squire Phin," a story of Down East, Holman F. Day's first novel, illustrated by John Rae; "The Cherry Ribband," a novel by S. R. Crockett, illustrated by Claude Shepperson; "The Mountain of Fears," by Henry C. Rowland, author of "The Wanderers," with frontispiece; "Life in the Eighteenth Century," by George Cary Eggleston, completing the author's Little History of Colonial Life series, with many illustrations, and a complete summary of contemporary world events by Professor Herman V. Ames; "In the Days of Milton," by Tudor Jenks, and "In the Days of Scott," new volumes in the Lives of Great Writers series, illustrated; "The Business of Life Insurance," by Miles Menander Dawson, consulting actuary, a practical and comprehensive book for purchasers of life insurance, agents and officers; in the Trail Makers series "The Journeys of La Salle and His Companions, 1668-1687," as related by himself and his followers, the story of the explorer of the Mississippi, presenting the original narratives edited and introduced by Professor Isaac J. Cox, of the University of Cincinnati, with illustrations and a map, in two volumes; "The Voyages and Explorations of Samuel De Champlain, Narrated by Himself," newly translated by Annie Nettleton Bourne, and edited with an introduction by Edward Gaylord Bourne, Professor of History in Yale University, in two volumes, illustrated; also, "The Spanish Explorers," a uniform edition in four volumes of the first great explorations of the interior of our continent, giving the original narratives of De Soto, Coronado and Cabeza de Vaca, selected from the Trail Makers. Among books for younger readers are "Uncle Sam and His Children," by Judson Wade Shaw, secretary of the Young Citizens' Loyal League; "The Winning Run; or, the Baseball Boys of Lakeport," illustrated, a new volume in Captain Ralph Bonehill's Outdoor Series, uniform with his "Island Camp," and a new edition of "On Tybee Knoll," a story for boys, by James B. Connolly, illustrated by Charlotte Weber-Ditzler.

Two Books of Intense Interest

SINCE the foundation of the Society for Psychical Research more than twenty-three years ago, a great mass of more or less well-evidenced material has been published upon subjects such as THOUGHT-TRANSFERENCE, CRYSTAL GAZING, GHOSTS, MEDIUMSHIP, PHYSICAL PHENOMENA and other so-called "occult" manifestations. There have—notwithstanding the unquestioned great public interest in these subjects—been but few attempts to sum up the evidence and make it available for the ordinary citizen who cannot find time to read the whole of the thirty volumes published by the Society. Even in the Society's own publications there is, as a rule, no periodical summing up of the evidence for the various phenomena and hypotheses.

Thought Transference

NORTHCOTE W. THOMAS

This new book by Professor Thomas—"Thought Transference"—deals critically and sympathetically with the evidence and shows what any reasonable man without bias in either direction may regard as proved.

Introduction by ANDREW LANG

"Crystal Gazing: Its history and practice, with a discussion of the evidence of Telepathic Scrying," is the title of the first volume in this series by Professor Thomas, with an introduction by Andrew Lang, M.A., LL.D. Professor Lang gives his experiences with Crystal Gazing in a most interesting introduction and Professor Thomas critically examines the evidence of a long series of experiments.

As showing what has been tested and proven in Psychical Research these two books are of great value as well as of fascinating interest. Every thoughtful man and woman should read them.

A Romance of Old Bennington

By THEODORA PECK

$1.50

"Most of all to be praised for its atmosphere of truth, an atmosphere which envelops the substance of the narrative as though with the light and air and color of old Bennington in its most picturesque and exciting days."—New York Tribune.

"The spirit of the time has been very cleverly caught and sustained, and, to select one instance from many, the chapter describing the battle of Bennington is a most vivid piece of writing. The book will be read by all Vermonters, young and old, and many for whom the State itself has no special attractions will find the story irresistible from its innate truth and naturalness."—Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.

"A spirited and wholesome story of love and war in Vermont during the Revolution. Miss Peck has treated her theme with womanly feeling, grace, and dramatic art of a high order. The whole story abounds in the Green Mountain atmosphere."—Army and Navy Journal.

FOX, DUFFIELD & COMPANY

Publishers 36 East 21st Street, New York

Mother's Year," containing selections from a wide range of authors who have touched on the subject of motherhood, from Charles Dickens to Whitcomb Riley and President Roosevelt, compiled by Helen Russ Stough and illustrated and decorated by Sarah K. Smith.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day new editions of Louisa M. Alcott's "Under the Lilacs" and "Jack and Jill," with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens and Harriet Roosevelt Richards, respectively, completing their set of the Illustrated Little Women Series; the Pasadena edition of "Ramona," by Helen Hunt Jackson, with photogravure portrait of the author and sixteen full-page plates, etc., by Henry Sandham; also, a new edition of "Pericles and Aspasia," by Walter Savage Landor, with photogravure frontispiece and title. They have also just ready a series of holiday art sets, including masterpieces of literature and choicely illustrated works in sets of two volumes, handy in size, moderate in price, artistically bound in cloth and neatly boxed, as follows: "Poems of Dante Gabriel Rossetti," "Famous Actors and Actresses and Their Homes," by Gustav Kobbé; "Little Masterpieces," by Alphonse Daudet; "Old Colonial Scenes and Homes," illustrated by Edmund H. Garrett; "Quo Vadis," by Henryk Sienkiewicz; "Elizabethan and Victorian Songs," illustrated by Edmund H. Garrett; and "French Painters and Paintings," by Philip Gilbert Hamerton.

H. R. ALLENSON, 1 Ivy Lane, Paternoster Row, London, has just published a reprint of "The History of the Rev. Doctor John Tauler of Strasbourg, with Twenty-five of his Sermons, translated from the German, with additional notices of Tauler's life and times, by Susanna Winkworth, and a preface by Charles Kingsley." Tauler was a German Dominican monk, born in Strasbourg some time between 1290 and 1300, who took sides with the Emperor Frederick, and for some time was intimately associated with the Gottesfreunde, (Friends of God.) He was in Strasbourg in 1348, when that city was devastated by the Black Death, encouraging its citizens by sermons and personal visitations. Tauler's theology represents the purest and highest type of German mysticism, and by insisting upon personal relationship to God, freedom from the thralldom of authority, and the worthlessness of mere good works without the renewal of the inward life, represents a tendency in theology which found full expression in the Reformation of the sixteenth century. Tauler's sermons are among the noblest in the German language, and touch on all sides the deeper problems of the moral and spiritual life.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will publish this fall about thirty titles, covering a wider range than their offerings of any previous season. Conspicuous in the list will be "Ben Blair," a rugged and forceful story of the West, by Will Lillibridge, and "A Sword of the Old Frontier," a new story by Randall Parrish, both of which have already been described by us. Besides these they announce a handsomely made book entitled "Shelley in Italy," by Mrs. McMahon, which will be a companion volume to her successful "Florence in the Poetry of the Brownings" of last year; "The Land of the Strenuous Life," a translation of Abbé Felix Klein's "Au Pays de la Vie Intense," in which the French scholar's impressions of America are entertainingly presented; "Far Eastern Impressions," by Ernest F. G. Hatch, some interesting and pertinent notes by a business man on Japan, Corea and China; "Arts and Crafts of Old Japan," a popular introduction to the study of a branch of Japanese genius which has led the world for centuries; and the fifth revised edition of Mr. Clements's "Handbook of Modern Japan." They have also in preparation a number of promising "juveniles," including a new fairy book by Mrs. Carter Harrison, "The Moon Princess," with illustrations by Lucy Fitch Perkins, and also a new Holiday edition of that famous classic, "Widow O'Callaghan's Boys," illustrated in color by Florence Scovel Shinn; several beautiful gift books which are likely to be very popular.

JOHN W. LUCE & COMPANY announce for fall publication "The Foolish Almanac," uniform in size and style with the "Foolish Dictionary," containing original and humorous information regarding astronomical phenomena, chronological data, weather, tides, etc., together with hints on farming, beauty, health, exercise, household affairs, etc.; "Intimate Letters of the Presidents," a volume containing an epistle by each President of the United States from Washington up to and including Roosevelt, each being selected with a view to showing the personal side of the man, compiled by Lewis Perry, assistant professor of English literature at Williams College; "The Plays of Oscar Wilde," in two volumes, consisting of "The Importance of Being Earnest," "A Woman of No Importance," "An Ideal Husband," and Lady Windermere's Fan;" "George Bernard Shaw: His Plays," entertainingly describing all of the Shaw plays, their plots and themes, their characters, with side lights on the much-discussed Shaw purpose in each play and character, written by Henry L. Mencken, dramatic critic of the Baltimore Herald; also, "All by Wire," a telegraphic explanation of a telepathic union of hearts, intended as a holiday novelty gift book, by Frank P. Sibley. Although the "Foolish Dictionary" is in its second fall season, it is reported to be exceeding its last year's remarkable record in matter of popularity. "Foolish Finance," by the same author, Gideon Wurdz, which was issued the past summer, has already gone into the third edition.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, Cleveland, announce a limited edition, of 350 copies, of "Magellan's Voyage Around the World," by Antonio Pigafetta. The translation was made by James A. Robertson, of the editorial staff of "The Jesuit Relations," and co-editor of "The Philippine Islands, 1493-1898," direct from the Italian manuscript of the sixteenth century, belonging to the Ambrosian library at Milan. Pigafetta accompanied Magellan on his famous voyage and kept a faithful record of his observations on the geography, climate and resources of the strange countries visited or described to him. An edition of this work in French was first published about 1525. An Italian edition appeared in Milan, in 1800, another French edition, translated by Dr. Amoretti, the editor of the Italian edition of 1800, appeared in Paris a year later; in 1874 the Hakluyt Society brought out an English translation with notes by Lord Stanley of Alderly, and another English version appeared in the eleventh volume of Pinkerton's voyages. The Amoretti and the Stanley editions are said to be made from a defective French manuscript of later date, and omit many passages of importance. As the present translation, made in person by Mr. Robertson at Milan, is from what is supposed to be a correct version of text, it is claimed that the work for the first time appears in English in complete form. Mr. Robertson has annotated the work comprehensively, and gives a rare map and the numerous original charts in careful reproductions.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in preparation a work on "Trades Unions in America," edited, with an introductory chapter, by Professor J. H. Hollander, of Johns Hopkins, including original investigations concerning printers, cigar makers, iron moulders, machinists, employers' associations, building trades, railways, the Knights of Labor, and the American Federation of Labor, by graduate students and officers of that university; a book on the negro in American politics, treating of the negro question from the beginning of the slave trade to the Tuskegee school, by George S. Merriam, author of "Samuel Bowles," etc., which originally attracted wide and favorable attention as it appeared in instalments in the Springfield Republican; "Extinct Animals," by the well-known authority, Professor E. Ray Lankester, of the British Museum, based on the author's popular lectures, and fully illustrated; "Animal Snapshots and How Made," by Silas A. Lottridge, being some very remarkable photographs accompanied by simple papers on the raccoon, opossum, woodchuck, squirrels, fox, bluebird, robin, owls, hawks, etc., with suggestions for photographing animals; a "popular" book on hygiene, by Dr. Edward Curtis; the second volume, "Geologic History," of Chamberlin and Salisbury's monumental "Geology;" the first volume of Stopford Brooke's "Lectures on Shakespeare," covering "The Midsummer Night's Dream," "Winter's Tale," "The Merchant of Venice," "As You Like It," "Richard II.," "Richard III.," "Macbeth," "The Tempest," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Coriolanus."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press a volume entitled "The Secret of the Totem," by Andrew Lang, who attempts to establish the origin and trace the evolution of Totemism in primitive society; "The Poor and the Land," the report on the Salvation Army Colonies in America and at Hadleigh, in Essex, Eng., recently made by H. Rider Haggard to the Colonial Office in his capacity as commissioner; "Lectures on Medieval English History," by Bishop William Stubbs, edited by Arthur Hassall; also, "Everyday Life Among the Headhunters," by Dorothy Cator, who has travelled where no other white woman has ever been, and who has lived among practically unknown tribes in Borneo and in Africa. They will publish at once a volume on "Wild Fowl," by L. H. de Visme Shaw, with chapters on shooting the duck and the goose, by W. H. Pope, and on cookery, by Alexander Innes Shand, with illustrations; "Medieval and Modern History," by Professor Henry E. Bourne, of the Western Reserve University; "Principles of Economics, with special reference to American conditions," by Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University; also, "St. John and the Close of the Apostolic Age," by the Abbé Constant Fouard, the final volume in the series of The Beginnings of the Church. They will bring out next month a new volume by Stanley J. Weyman, entitled "Starvecrow Farm," the scene of which is laid in northern England, in 1819, when the working classes, impoverished through the long conflict with Napoleon, were in a state bordering on rebellion; also, "The Red Book of Romance," edited by Andrew Lang, with illustrations in color and in black and white.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly a work on "Tibet and Turkestan," by Oscar Terry Crosby, which receives added interest through the resignation of Lord Curzon, because Mr. Crosby discusses in no uncertain, though non-partisan, terms what he refers to as "the British attack on Tibet;" "The Romance of the French Abbeys," by Mrs. Elizabeth Williams Champney, with illustrations by the author's late husband, J. Wells Champney, who made France his second home and who planned the four books, including the present, thus far brought out by Mrs. Champney; "Louis XIV. and la Grande Mademoiselle," by Arvede Barine, whose former work, "The Youth of la Grande Mademoiselle," has had an unusual success; a "life" of Hermann von Helmholz, prepared by Dr. Hermann Knapp, the distinguished New York oculist and medical editor, based largely on the biography by the Geheimrath Königsberger, which is now running as a serial in the Archives of Ophthalmology; "In Thamesland," by Henry Wellington Wack, author of "The Story of the Congo Free State," etc., which gives a gossipy account of the author's numerous rambles and voyages along the river Thames; also, a new edition of Professor Charles Francis Richardson's well-known manual, "The Choice of Books," which will contain a supplement entitled "Suggestions for Libraries," giving selected lists of books of reference, history, biography and literature, with the best current editions, notes and prices. They are bringing out the Federal edition of "The Writings of Abraham Lincoln," edited by Arthur Brooks Lapsley, which includes the full text of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, together with the Essay on Lincoln, by Carl Schurz; the Address on Lincoln, by Joseph H. Choate, and the Life of Lincoln, by Noah Brooks. The edition is limited to 1000 signed and numbered sets. It will be issued in a set of about eight volumes. The editor is a Harvard man of scholarly historical knowledge. He will supply brief footnotes throughout the text. The works are to be illustrated with upwards of 100 photogravure and other illustrations, chiefly important portraits of Lincoln, and contemporary portraits of Lincoln's generals, cabinet members and associations in public and private life. Facsimiles of important letters and documents will make the work notable among the books devoted to great Americans.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a volume on "Normandy," with forty pictures of scenes in that romantic country, reproduced in colors from paintings made by Nico Jungman, and text by Miss G. E. Mitton, who was one of Sir Walter Besant's collaborators in his great work on London; "Heart's Desire," by Emerson Hough, a novel the action of which takes place in a little mountain town in New Mexico, in the days when that country was a "Land Before the Law;" "A Self-Supporting Home," by Mrs. Kate V. Saint Maur, in which the author tells her readers how she established such a home, without capital, on a small farm, and gives all the details of the care of poultry and pet stock and other creatures, together with many new wrinkles in the successful and easy cultivation of a vegetable garden. They also announce a one-volume edition of "The Memoir of Alfred Tennyson, by His Son," and new and cheaper editions in one volume of Marion Crawford's "Southern Italy and Sicily and the Rulers of the South" and "Ave Roma Immortalis," both of which are profusely illustrated. The first volume of the new edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin," edited by Professor Albert H. Smith, of Philadelphia, will be brought out in the first week of October. They have in preparation a text-book on the "History of Education," by Professor Paul Monroe, of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, whose aim is to emphasize the great typical educational movements in thought and practice, and to afford very definite conceptions of comparatively few leaders; "Character of Renaissance Architecture," by Charles Herbert Moore, professor of art at Harvard, which consists in a discussion of the structural and artistic character of Renaissance architecture, with a brief preliminary consideration of the meaning of the Renaissance movement, (1420-1600,) and a comparison of its animating motives with those which had given form to the arts of the Middle Ages, illustrated from photographs, drawings and diagrams; a limited large-paper edition of the works of Maurice Hewlett, in ten volumes, uniform with the edition de luxe of the works of Walter Pater, the first volume of which, "Richard Yea-and-Nay," will be brought out in October; also, the following new novels: "Coniston," by Winston Churchill; "Fair Margaret: a Portrait," by F. Marion Crawford; "Yolanda," by Charles Major; "The Road Builders," by Samuel Merwin; "Helianthus," by "Ouida;" "The Jungle," by Upton Sinclair; and "Lady Baltimore," by Owen Wister.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE WOMAN OF TO-MORROW. By Helen M. Winslow. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents)
A readable, sensible, serious, humorous bit of writing. Its optimism is infectious and holds the attention both of men and women.

WOMEN OF WIT AND BEAUTY OF THE TIME OF GEORGE IV. By John Fyvie. Illustrated. $3.00 net. (Postage 12 cents.)
Mr. Fyvie has written frankly, though circumspectly, of such women as Nelson's "Lady Hamilton," the unacknowledged wife of George IV., and the "Hon. Mrs. Norton." Reliable information about these women, whose lives are more like romance than truth, has never before been printed.

ASPECTS OF BALZAC. By W. H. Helm. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents.)
Mr. Helm's comprehensive review of the work of the great Frenchman should do more than anything hitherto published to make appreciation of Balzac universal. There is a simplicity of treatment that commends the book. And the list of "Aspects" include such subjects as Balzac's method, his men, his women, his humor.

RUSSIA UNDER The GREAT SHADOW. By Luigi Villari. 8vo, cloth, 85 illustrations, $3.50 net. (Postage 18 cents.)
This book is considered the strongest piece of work that Villari has yet given us. Its treatment of Nihilism in its relation to the future of the Czar's people is intimate and thrilling.

THE ESSENTIALS OF SPIRITUALITY. By Felix Adler. $1.00 net. (Postage 8c.)
This book crystallizes Dr. Adler's teaching throughout his long service as an apostle of Ethical Culture. Dr. Adler has produced comparatively few books, and none of recent years to which he has given such minute preparation.

MAKERS OF MODERN HISTORY. Napoleon III, Cavour, Bismarck. By the Hon. Edward Cadogan. $2.25 net. (Postage 12 cents.)
Mr. Cadogan choose the three because their illustrious names are more than any associated with the great struggle between conservative principles and the revolutionary forces of constitutional or national liberty in which lies the chief interest of European history in the Nineteenth Century.

THE JAPANESE SPIRIT. By Okakura-Yoshisaburo. With an Introduction by George Meredith. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents.)
Mr. Okakura tells in brief résumé what he considers the essentials to an understanding of modern Japan, its political, religious and social qualities of basic importance.

A BIG SUCCESS

The Christmas Stocking Series

Six beautifully made books designed especially for little children. The greatest pains have been taken to make these books attractive. For the cover of each an appropriate panel was painted by a clever artist. These panels, which all have a background of holly leaves and berries, are reproduced in full color, and are very bright and gay. Genuine English Vellum Cloth is used for the binding. Each volume contains from fifteen to twenty-seven full-page pictures in colors, besides from twenty to forty black-and-white illustrations. The type is large and clear and the paper of fine quality. All the books have fancy end-sheets with emblematic design, and each volume has a specially drawn pictorial title-page in colors. Size 4 x 3 inches. 128 pages.

For the series MR. L. FRANK BAUM, the children's favorite author, has written a charming introduction (printed in each volume) in which he tells of the origin of the Christmas Stocking.

The books selected for THE CHRISTMAS STOCKING SERIES may well be called Children's Classics. They are:

The Night Before Christmas
Cinderella, and the Sleeping Beauty
A Child's Visit to the Zoo
Little Black Sambo
Fairy Tales from Andersen
Fairy Tales from Grimm

The six volumes of THE CHRISTMAS STOCKING SERIES put up in miniature book cases made of Japanese wood veneer, with practicable doors glazed with transparent celluloid, through which the books are seen within. (See illustration above.) Each a perfect little book case 5¼ inches high; 5 inches wide; 3⅛ inches deep. Beautifully finished, dainty and unique. Sure to delight all children. The six books in case, $2.00.

THE CHRISTMAS STOCKING SERIES, boxed in two volume sets as follows:

The Night Before Christmas
Little Black Sambo
Fairy Tales form Andersen
Fairy Tales from Grimm
Cinderella and the Sleeping Beauty

Put up in fancy boxes with emblematic labels, 75 cents per set.
Single volumes, as selected, 35 cents per volume.

A HIT! The Fate of a Crown by Schuyler Staunton — A MOST ENGROSSING NOVEL OF LOVE and ADVENTURE — 11th Thousand

Since its publication on July 10th the sales of THE FATE OF A CROWN have steadily increased. During the last two weeks in August it was among the six books most called for in the New York and Philadelphia public libraries.

ANTHONY HOPE'S big, clever, interesting NEW NOVEL

In one week "A Servant of the Public" has taken its place among the successful novels of the year. Critics and readers agree that the author never has drawn a more bewildering, more fascinating character than Ora Pinsent.

COPYRIGHT BY DAVIS & SANFORD

"Strong, thoughtful, witty."—San Francisco Call.

"One of his best, if not his best novel."—CHICAGO EVENING POST.

"Filled with social philosophy of the acutest sort."—Boston Transcript.

"Marked by a lightness and charming comedy touch which is almost faultless."—BOSTON HERALD.

"Of more than ordinary acuteness and brilliancy, even in an Anthony Hope novel, are the characterizations and colloquies that sparkle along the course of the narrative."—Philadelphia North American.

"It is easy to be enthusiastic about the story. Imagine much that is best in Meredith or James, and all that is best in Anthony Hope, and you have a fair idea of 'A Servant of the Public.'"—THE GLOBE, NEW YORK.

"One seldom meets in fiction a character drawn with such sympathy, such insight, such delicate and decisive art. * * * It is to be hoped that a novel of such human insight and of such fine literary fibre will not be soon buried beneath 'the great ruck of modern fiction.'"—New York Times Saturday Review.

Illustrated. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY, Publishers

THIS is a picture of BEN BLAIR, the hero of a new story of the plains that is likely to create a sensation when it is published next month.

The sketch typifies perfectly the strength and courage of this young Lochinvar from the ranch, whose career is hampered by the greatest handicap a man can have.

BEN BLAIR

It is a long time since any modern story has described so game a struggle against tremendous odds, and certainly a more dramatic example of the survival of the fittest than the outcome of Ben Blair's love-story cannot readily be recalled.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready "The Household of Peter," a book for young women by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "Notes from My South Sea Log," a series of sketches of life on shipboard and on the South Sea Islands by Louis Becke; "Primitive Art in Egypt by Jean Capart, of the University of Liege, a translation from the revised and augmented original edition by A. S. Griffith; also, a work on "Smoke Abatement," by William Nicholson, which includes chapters on general and local legislation against the smoke nuisance, smoke prevention and fuel savers, chimneys, etc.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on October 5 a sumptuous edition of "Rip Van Winkle;" also, a book of "New Games and Amusements," by Meredith Nugent, both of which have already been fully described by us. On the 10th of October they will bring out "Ayesha," by H. Rider Haggard, the conclusion of the author's most successful book, "She." They will also publish next month two books for young people—"Child's Rainy Day Book," by Mary White Talbot, full of devices for the indoor amusement of children; and "Myths Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton W. Mabie, in which such myths as "The Three Golden Apples," "The Chimera," "The Gorgon's Head" and others are explained.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready "The Resurrection of Miss Cynthia," by Florence Morse Kingsley, the heroine of which revolts against her rigorous upbringing and a New England conscience, which for a time constrain her to live a life that is painfully narrow and unpleasant; "Cecilia's Lovers," a new novel of modern New York by Amelia E. Barr; "Wagner and His Isolde," a translation of the correspondence between the great composer and Mathilde Wesendonk, with an introduction and descriptive text to connect the letters where necessary by Gustav Kobbé, author of "Wagner's Life and Works," etc.; "The Poems of John Keats," edited, with an introduction and notes, by E. De Selincourt, a handsomely printed volume, with a photogravure frontispiece; also, "A Little Girl in Old San Francisco," by Amanda M. Douglas, which tells the adventures of a little girl who accompanied her father to San Francisco in the exciting period just after the outbreak of the gold fever.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have brought out this week "The Fair Maid of Graystones," by Miss Beulah Marie Dix; new editions of Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's "Reminiscences of Peace and War," "Alfred Lord Tennyson: a memoir by His Son," a new edition of the biography in one volume; and F. Marion Crawford's "Southren Italy and Sicily and the Rulers of the South;" "Heimweh, and Other Stories," by John Luther Long; "Restrictive Railway Legislation," by Henry S. Haines; "The Polariscope in the Chemical Laboratory," by George William Rolfe; the second volume of Dr. Edward E. Gibbons's work on "The Eye, its Refraction and Diseases;" "A Text-book in the History of Education," by Professor Paul Monroe; also, "The Government of Michigan," by Webster Cook, Ph.D. "The Road-Builders" is to be the title of Samuel Merwin's forthcoming Texas story, and not "A Link in the Girdle," as was at first announced. The Macmillan Company, which promises Mr. Merwin's story for issue October 4, speak of it as a spirited, dashing and thrilling tale of the construction of a railroad in the far Southwest, against great natural difficulties, and also against all the difficulties that the rival road were able to bring to bear.

Dan Monroe, the drummer boy, and his companion, Nat Harrington, the fifer, are in all the leading events from the Concord fight, and enjoy themselves immensely. It is full of lights and shadows, being both amusing and pathetic. She becomes innocently involved in the attempted elopement of her school chum, Sidney, a girl of sixteen, with a worthless fellow, and again has a dramatic experience with a girl who is a kleptomaniac. Other experiences equally stirring are embraced in her description of her school and her teachers and schoolmates. She is not without a love affair of her own.

She marries her father's friend, a rich man older than her father, because he pays her father's debts. Her husband takes her to Italy, where she learns something of life and develops into a woman; she is thrown into the society of a fast English set, and is tempted to play cards. Her elderly husband's sudden death, her intense love for another and a younger man, and her financial difficulties, bring the story to a startling climax.

The doctor of the village is an opium eater, very cruel to his wife who turns out to be a relation of the Virginian. All persons of note are of the opinion that nothing can be done to save the woman from her husband's brutality. Finally the Virginian cousin interferes, advocates divorce and overcomes the "ancient landmark" of prejudice in the community. What is yet to happen is only hinted when the story closes.

One is a young widow, who is pursued by an Austrian prince, also the owner of an automobile. The whole party tour through France and Italy. There is a good deal of love making and pairing off at the end, with some surprises.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 23, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

PUBLISHING IMPRINT A TRADE-MARK.

A VERY wholesome decision has been made by Justice Dowling, in Special Term, Part 2, of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, sitting in this city, in a case of unusual character. A music publisher, Carl Fischer, found that a piece of music copyrighted by him and published with his imprint, a song called "Hearts and Flowers," was being widely sold without his authority, but with his imprint, and he caused the arrest of Garrett J. Couchois and Louis F. Eggers, who were found to be the pirates, for a criminal violation of trade-mark rights, under Section 364 of the Penal Code of the State of New York, intended to protect the public as well as merchants against fraudulent sale of articles of merchandise. A writ of habeas corpus was asked for from Justice Dowling by the counsel of Couchois, and the decision is made in connection with the return of this writ, as printed elsewhere.

The Justice held that the writ must be denied because the defendant had committed a fraudulent act in selling an article of merchandise with a false imprint, sheet music being properly "an article of merchandise." The fraud consisted in putting on the sheet of music the imprint of Fischer, which indicated that Fischer had printed and published it.

The question has nothing to do with the present copyright law, and would not have come up had the printers omitted the imprint of the original publisher. The decision, which is scarcely likely to be questioned, establishes the principle that a publisher's imprint is properly a trade-mark, and that no other person has a right to use such imprint without committing fraud. The incident, however, is new proof of the necessity for a revision of the copyright laws such as is now under way.

VIOLATING A TRADEMARK IN SONGS.

JUSTICE DOWLING, in the New York Supreme Court, on September 15, held that sheet music is merchandise under the law, and that to pirate the trademark in such property is a violation of section 364 of the Penal Code of the State of New York. The decision was handed down in the case of Garrett J. Couchois, who was brought into the Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus, his counsel contending that he had been illegally committed to the Tombs by Magistrate Breen.

Couchois was arrested with Louis F. Eggers on a charge of publishing and selling sheet music copies of a composition entitled "Hearts and Flowers," the copyright of which is owned by Carl Fischer. The charge was made that while Couchois and Eggers did not pretend to own the copyright they used Fischer's trademark on the music.

Couchois's counsel contended that sheet music could not be considered as merchandise, and that if there had been any violation of law it was a violation of the United States copyright laws.

Counsel for Fischer claimed that the United States copyright laws did not provide any punishment for the offense charged against Couchois, and Assistant District Attorney Johnstone contended that sheet music was merchandise under the law, and that Magistrate Breen did right in committing Couchois to the Tombs for examination.

Justice Dowling said he did not see how the defendant could claim any right to use Fischer's imprint, and in his decision dismissing the writ said:

"There is no question in this case of any violation of the copyright law. The prisoner is charged with knowingly selling articles of merchandise, (sheet music,) to which a false and fraudulent trademark was affixed. The trademark was clearly imitated. The fraud is apparent. The Fischer trademark is not disputed. Clearly then, if sheet music is an article of merchandise which can lawfully be kept or offered for sale, an imitation of a trademark is punishable. Entirely apart from the property production itself, secured to the author by copyright, there is the protection afforded to any trademark used by the publisher or seller of copies for public use. If no trademark were used by the publisher no crime could be charged herein for merely pirating a copyrighted musical composition, but the offense charged is clearly a crime within the meaning of the Penal Code."

The prosecution of the case is backed up by a number of music publishers who have suffered severely at the hands of piratical publishers. It is claimed that the operations of Couchois alone had profited him over $25,000 in the last year or so. Much of this pirated music is exported to South America and the British Colonies, where it is sold at about half the price of the authorized editions.

A PUBLISHERS' BOWLING LEAGUE.

THE following circular has been issued by William Krause, president of the Oxford Bowling Club, of the Oxford University Press, 91 Fifth Avenue, New York, to whom communications on the subject should be addressed:

SIR: We would like to find out if it is possible to form a Publishers' Bowling League of say eight or ten teams, the members of the same to be employees of publishing houses only. Such leagues now exist among jewellers, bank-clerks, and others, and there seems no good reason why the book trade which employs so many young men should not have one also.

Last season our club had a set of games with the men working for Messrs. Ginn & Co., and the pleasure derived from it, and the friendships which resulted make us feel that it would be feasible to have a great many more of such meetings with the entire trade. The contests would serve to get the men better acquainted with those of other houses and a great deal of sport would certainly result.

Will you not help us to the extent of pushing this matter among your fellow employees and letting us know at an early date what the possibilities are of your house being represented. We hope to hold a meeting in the near future composed of one man from each house to form the league and we sincerely hope your men will be able to have a representative there.

FIGHTING THE PRICE-CUTTERS.

F. H. JOHNSON, 15 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who by indomitable industry and enterprise has for ten years maintained himself in the book business against some very sharp and unfair competition, is evidently unterrified by the tactics of his underselling rivals, as the following circular to his constituents shows:

To Brooklyn book-buyers:

It is an interesting commentary upon the methods and statements of department stores, that both of the largest two stores of that kind in Brooklyn have recently endeavored to buy of me large quantities of the new books, to sell to you; because of my well-established trade connection and purchasing power.

One store would buy $1800 worth of books and pay me ten per cent. profit on them; and the other store would buy of me $5000 worth at the same price at which I will sell to you, as indicated below. Further comment is needless.

Excepting net books which are sold at a uniform price by all reputable booksellers, I will sell you the new books at a reduction of 28 per cent. from the publishers' price. Thus a new $1.50 novel will cost you $1.08 at my store, and other books to correspond.

This price is for a perfect book; not one that has been defaced by a rubber-stamp advertisement upon some of the printed pages, after the department store method.

For the last ten years I have supplied the best books published, to the people of the best social position in Brooklyn, and am proud to have gained their confidence.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JAMES A. ROYS, the founder of the firm of J. A. Roys & Co., booksellers and stationers, died in Detroit, Mich, September 4. Mr. Roys was born in Sheffield, Mass., December 31, 1821. He taught school for several years, and then went to Detroit on November 2, 1845, where he opened a book and stationery store, in which he continued actively until April, 1898. In 1902 he celebrated his golden wedding anniversary, having celebrated his golden anniversary as a bookseller four years before. Mrs. Roys died in April, 1904. They leave four children, three daughters and a son.

GEORGE MACDONALD, LL.D., poet and novelist, died in London on September 18. Dr. Macdonald was born at Huntley, Aberdeenshire, in 1824. He was educated at King's College and University at Aberdeen and after taking his degree became a student for the ministry at the Independent College in London. He was for a time an Independent minister, but soon retired, became a lay member of the Church of England and settled in London to pursue a literary career. His first work was "Within and Without," a dramatic poem published in 1856. This was followed by upwards of fifty other volumes of poems, fiction, theological works, etc., of which his "Robert Falconer," "Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood," "Lilith" and "Paul Faber, Surgeon," are probably best known in this country. For some years past Dr. Macdonald lived chiefly at Brodighera, but paid annual visits to England.

FREDERICK LAWRENCE KNOWLES, the poet, died on September 20, at the home of his father, the Rev. Daniel Clark Knowles, at Roxbury, Mass., of typhoid fever, after an illness of about three weeks. Mr. Knowles was born at Lawrence, Mass., September 8, 1869, and was graduated from Wesleyan University in 1894. Two years later he received a B.A. from Harvard. He was connected with the editorial department of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. in 1898, then taking the position of literary adviser to L. C. Page & Co., whom he left in 1900 to take a more responsible position with Dana Estes & Co., where he was until his sudden and lamented death. Mr. Knowles was best known for his two volumes of verse entitled "On Life's Stairway," published in 1900, and "Love Triumphant," published a year ago. The verses won for the author eulogies from many American critics. He had a charming personality and won for himself a host of well-wishers and admirers.

GINN & Co. have just brought out a new volume by William J. Long, entitled "Northern Trails," a collection of entirely new stories dealing with animal life in the far North.

JAMES LEACH, the well-known stationer, of 86 Nassau Street, New York, at the primary held on the evening of September 12, was unanimously nominated for mayor of Park Ridge, N. J.

WEBB PUBLISHING COMPANY, 47 East Fourth Street, St. Paul, Minn., will publish early in November a book on "Evergreens," and how to grow them, by C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., a handbook that will be of service to the general farmer quite as much as to the amateur.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once "The Country Day by Day," by E. Kay Robinson, a nature calendar in which each day with its seasonal accompaniment has been given in the form of a note about the life of birds, animals, insects, or some distinctive aspect of nature.

REILLY & BRITTON announce that they are hard pressed to keep up with the demand for "The Fate of a Crown," by Schuyler Staunton. Reviewers credit this novel with being the most exciting romance of the day, favorably comparing it with "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Soldiers of Fortune."

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published the "Report of the Church Congress," recently held at Brooklyn, N. Y. The proceedings of this session were specially interesting, by reason of the timeliness of the topics discussed. Among others there were "The Institutional Church," "The Bible as History," "The Church and Public Brigandage," "Theological Movements in the Nineteenth Century."

THE SHAKESPEARE PRESS, Westfield, N. J., has in preparation "The Bankside-Restoration Shakespeare," in nine volumes, uniform with the New York Shakespeare Society's Bankside edition of Shakespeare's works. The forthcoming issue will contain such Shakespeare plays as were produced at the Duke's Theatre, in London, circa 1664-1669, in the versions of D'Avenant, Dryden and others. The edition will be limited to 250 copies.

THE OLIVER DITSON CO., Boston, have added to their excellent Musicians' Library "Fifty Piano Compositions," by Robert Schumann, edited, with a capital introduction, by Xaver Scharwenka, which has been translated by Frederick Field Bullard. A bibliography and a fine portrait of Schumann are also included. The volume, in substantial cloth binding or in paper covers, so far as typography, printing and general get up are concerned, is perfect in every detail.

THE EVERETT PRESS COMPANY, 74 India Street, Boston, will publish on the 25th inst. "Letters to Beany and the Love Letters of Plupy Shute," by Judge Henry A. Shute, author of "The Diary of a Real Boy," etc. These confidential outpourings of "Plupy's" heart-beats, given in his original and inimitable style, are calculated, it is said, "to make the grown-ups live over again their own early hopes and fears, while the youngsters of to-day will delight in these revelations of youthful exuberance and passion."

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, have in press for immediate publication

a very interesting series of books on art, issued to satisfy the demand for popular-priced editions containing thoroughly good reproductions of the great masters. The illustrations will be in photogravure and the text by well-known authorities on art. The first four books announced are: "Reynolds," "Turner," "Burne-Jones" and "Rembrandt." "Rimes to be Read," by Edmund Vance Cooke, will be issued this month. It will contain nearly all of Mr. Cooke's miscellaneous verses, many of which have been published in the leading magazines.

FRANCIS D. TANDY COMPANY, 38 East Twenty-first Street, New York, will publish by subscription, under arrangement with the Century Company, and through them with the present owner of the copyright, "The Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln," edited by John G. Nicolay and John Hay. Mr. Tandy has been engaged in the subscription book business for a number of years and was head of the Tandy-Wheeler Publishing Company of Denver and San Francisco, and before that was manager of the Burton Society, which published the facsimile reprint of Sir Richard Burton's translation of "Arabian Nights" several years ago.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will add this fall to their attractive Thumbnail Series Dickens's "The Chimes," with a frontispiece by Relyea and a cover designed by Blanche McManus Mansfield; also, a volume entitled simply "Washington," which contains most of the principal state papers of Washington, his farewell address to the people of the United States, his address to his officers, March, 1783, his circular letter to the governors of all the States on disbanding the army; his farewell orders to the armies of the United States, and his inaugural address to both houses of Congress, with, as introduction, the chapters on "The Character of Washington" from W. E. H. Lecky's "A History of England in the Eighteenth Century."

MUCH curiosity has been expressed regarding the scene of Harry Leon Wilson's new and successful novel, "The Boss of Little Arcady." Mr. Wilson states in reply to questions that "Little Arcady," so far as it has an existence, is his birthplace, the attractive town of Oregon in the northern part of Illinois, and about one hundred miles west of Chicago. Mr. Wilson's father published a paper in this town for many years, and his keenly observing son had a rare opportunity to gather a fund of knowledge of droll happenings, of which he has made such effective use, although in a kindly way and connected with entirely fictitious characters. The name "Arcady" should be pronounced with the accent on the first syllable.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish presently a new book by B. L. Putnam Weale, entitled "Amageddon, or, the re-shaping of the Far East," in which the author treats of the Russo-Japanese war and its results in the trade, commerce and every-day life in Manchuria and the neighboring countries; a work on "The Chemistry of the Proteids," by Dr. Gustav Mann, of the Physiological Laboratory at Oxford, based on Dr. Conheim's work, which, however, was entirely remodelled from the first edition; also, "The Religion of Numa," and other essays on the religion of ancient Rome, by Jesse Benedict Carter. In response to repeated demands they will bring out a paper-bound edition, at 25 cents net, of Edgar Gardner Murphy's "Problems of the Present South."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have brought out this week "Kipps, the Story of a Simple Soul," by H. G. Wells, the story of the attempt, pitiful, humorous, dramatic and always wonderfully vivid and entertaining, of a youth of the people to adjust himself to suddenly-inherited wealth; "Jungle Trails and Jungle People," by Caspar Whitney, thrilling adventures in hunting and travelling in the Far East, with much interesting and valuable observations of the natives, accompanied with many remarkable illustrations; also, a holiday edition of Henry Van Dyke's "Fisherman's Luck," with illustrations in color, by F. Walter Taylor, and a new and cheaper edition of the late Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge's classic for children, "Hans Brinker, or, the Silver Skates."

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. publish this week "Plunkitt of Tammany Hall," the series of characteristic speeches delivered by George Washington Plunkitt, the recently-defeated leader of the Fifteenth Tammany District, from his rostrum, the boot-black stand at the County Court House, edited by W. L. Riordan, and furnished with an introduction by Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall. They have also brought out this week "My Friend the Chauffeur," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson; "The Ancient Landmark," by Elizabeth Cherry Waltz; "Back Home," by Eugene Wood; "Justice," by Charles Wagner; and "A Commercial Traveller in South America," by Frank Wiborg, which were announced for the 16th inst., but publication of which was delayed.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish at once "The Universal Elements of the Christian Religion," under which rather formidable title Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall presents a new conception of the world position of Christianity; "The Egyptian Sudan," by Dr. J. R. Giffin, who went to the Sudan to live just a year after the battle of Omdurman, and who gives an interesting picture of a land and people so dramatic and grotesque that it seems almost unreal; also, a juvenile, entitled "St. Cecilia of the Court," by Isabella R. Hess, the heroine of which is a little red-headed girl, whose temper is hardly in accord with her name, and "the Court' of which is in downtown New York where she lives, the story showing many sides of life among the poor but happy in a great city, the tenements, the saloons, the hospitals.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish this week "The School House in the Woods," by A. G Plympton, author of "Dear Daughter Dorothy," etc., an entertaining story in which the lessons of universal kindness are inculcated:

"Shipwrecked in Greenland," by Arthur R. Thompson, author of "Gold Seeking on the Dalton Trail," with twelve full-page illustrations from photographs; "Heroes of Iceland," adapted from Dasent's translation of "The Story of Burnt Njal," the great Icelandic saga, by Allen French, author of "The Story of Rolf," etc.; also, a new edition of "A Daughter of the Rich," the story of a New York girl's visit to a Vermont family, by M. E. Waller, author of "The Wood-Carver of 'Lympus." Anne Warner's new book, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," will be published by Little, Brown & Co. on October 2.

JOHN LANE COMPANY has published from the Bodley Head this week "The Duke of Reichstadt," by Edward De Wertheimer, and a novel, "The Ford," by Arthur E. J. Legge, author of "The Mutineers," "Both Great and Small," etc. In the New Pocket Library appears Fitzgerald's "Euphranor," with an introduction by Frederick Chapman, who places this dialogue upon youth beside Cicero's treatise on old age. Euphranor is very little known, and had even little mention until its inclusion, in 1889, by Aldis Wright, in the "Letters and Literary Remains." The dialogue was printed anonymously in 1851, the first of the author's work to appear in print. The dialogue is Platonic in model, with a little narrative introducing, running through and closing it. The discussion opens on that fine passage in Digby's "Godefridus," in which he explains the true meaning of chivalry.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY have in preparation "A Little Garden Calendar," compiled by Albert Bigelow Paine, and made very attractive by forty-six illustrations, of which Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin says: "A sweeter or lovelier book within and without it would be impossible to find, or one more suggestive and useful to children, parents and teachers." New books by authors of established reputation will be added to Altemus' Boys and Girls Booklovers Series, among which will appear Gertrude Smith's "Robbie's Bible Stories; "M. R. Housekeeper's "Face the Lions;" Julie M. L. Lippmann's "Del's Debt;" Ellen Douglas Deland's "The Middleton Bowl;" and Marian Ames Taggart's "The Little Women Club." For the more world-hardened reader there will be two arraignments by Minna Thomas Antrim of up-to-date society in the form of fiction, one entitled "Sweethearts and Beaux," the other "At the Sign of the Golden Calf."

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have in preparation a Christy book to be entitled "Drawings in Black and White," to contain seventeen drawing by Howard Chandler Christy that have never before been published, besides many others; "A Corner in Women and Other Follies," by Tom Masson, managing editor of Life, containing upward of a hundred stories, lampoons, skits, dialogues, verses, etc., with illustrations by Gibson, Gilbert and others; "In Vanity Fair: the Makers and the Seekers of Fashion," by Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd, who tells the "inside story" of the origin and exploitation of the fashions, etc., with illustrations from photographs; "Æsop's Fables," (Modern edition,) with an introduction by Elisabeth Luther Cary, and illustrations, in color and line, by J. M. Conde; also, "Stork's Nest," by J. Breckinridge Ellis, a novel of sentiment, humor, mystery and remarkable characterization, with illustrations by Elisabeth Ingham.

THE REILLY & BRITTON CO., Chicago, will publish this fall two novelties designed by W. M. Rhoads, designer of "The Stein Toast Book." One of these is entitled "My Artist Friends," shaped like an artist's palette, with cover in colors to represent a paint-daubed palette, with a number of leaves on which spaces are left blank for autographs or for drawings of objects or characters, or for illustrations of well-known nursery rhymes as specified under each date. This clever novelty may be used either as an autograph or birthday book. The other is entitled "Roasts," representing a bunch of half-opened ears of Indian corn, reproduced in natural colors. The body of the book contains "roasts" of places and peoples, and of the fads and foibles of mankind. They have just brought out a third edition of "Recipes: my friends' and my own," by Louis Perrett, a book of blank leaves on which the recipes may be written under fourteen headings drawn for the book by Miss Perrett.

CARL A. STERN, 45 East Forty-second Street, New York, has just brought out the first volume of the new series of Americana-Germanica, monographs devoted to the comparative study of the literary, linguistic and other cultural relations of Germany and America, edited by Professor Marion Dexter, of the University of Pennsylvania. The present volume is entitled "Translations of German Poetry in American Magazines, together with translations of other Teutonic poetry and original poems referring to the German countries," compiled by Edward Ziegler Davis, of the University of Pennsylvania. The prose and poetic pieces include, besides the English versions of original German compositions, translations also of German versions of Swiss or French poems, Norwegian, Danish, Dutch and Icelandic poetry. In appendices are given lists of magazines examined by Mr. Davis, and of the translations of German prose and original articles on the German countries.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready a devotional work entitled "The Inner Chamber of the Inner Life," by Dr. Andrew Murray, which suggests thoughts of the utmost importance as to the daily need of retirement and kindred subjects; also, a permanent edition of William George Jordan's little essays on "The Kingship of Self-Control" and "The Majesty of Calmness," in one volume under the title of "Self-Control, Its Kingship and Majesty." They announce an entertaining book for younger readers, entitled "With Tommy Tompkins in Korea," by Mrs. L. H. Underwood, the wife of a well-known missionary in Korea, who writes a most amusing and at times pathetic description of the boy who is born among the heathen and grows up in the surroundings of the mission life in Seoul; also, "When Joy Begins," by Clara E. Laughlin, a sequel to her earlier book, "The Evolution of a Girl's Ideal," which carries out the story of the earlier tale and serves as a basis for the gentle womanly philosophizing on woman's feelings that have made Miss Laughlin's writings so widely popular.

D. Appleton & Co. will publish next week "The Reckoning," by Robert W. Chambers, the fourth novel, chronologically, in his historical series, of which "Cardigan" and "The Maid-at-Arms," were the first two; "The Giants," a story of the "Oil Trust," by Mrs. Fremont Older, the wife of the editor of the San Francisco Bulletin; "Baby Bullet," the story of a double romance in an automobile, by Lloyd Osbourne; also, "Duke of Devil-May-Care," by Harris Dickson, an exciting story which contains a mystery which is not solved till the end of the book. They are pushing forward as fast as possible the publication of "The Young Man and the World," by Senator Albert J. Beveridge. The author maintains in his book that "good health is good business," and that one should "at all costs keep his capacity for human sympathy." The book will appeal especially to young men. It has been serialized in the Saturday Evening Post. The publication of "He and Hecuba," by Baroness von Hutten, has been postponed to September 29, because of the size of the advance sales, which were even larger than the publishers anticipated.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have just ready "The Ancient Grudge," by Arthur Stanwood Pier, author of "The Triumph," etc., the story of two young men one of whom slowly disintegrates while the other grows and mellows; "An Only Child," by Eliza Orne White, describing the joys and sorrows of an only child, with illustrations by Miss Katherine Pyle; a volume of "Poems," by John Vance Cheney; "The Valerian Persecution," by Dr. Patrick J. Healy, of the Catholic University of America, dealing with the early Christians and their sufferings during the first three centuries; "The Wizard's Daughter, and Other Stories," by Margaret Collier Graham, six stories of California; "Cicero in Maine, and Other Essays," by Martha Baker Dunn, many of which have to do with the humor and sentiment of old-time days at a fresh-water academy in Maine; "The Words of Garrison: a Centennial Selection, 1805-1905," with a sketch of Mr. Garrison's life and a fine photogravure portrait; also, a sumptuous reprint of "The Life and Death of Cardinal Wolsey," by George Cavendish, with eleven full-page photogravures in sepia and red chalk tints from portraits by Holbein and others.

Harper & Brothers have just ready "The Passport," a new novel by Richard Bagot, which treats of the difficulties, the result of caste prejudice and tradition, which confront a nobly born Italian girl and her lover, the son of a Roman senator, and the scene of which is laid partly in Rome and partly in the mediæval castle of the Acorari in the Sabine Hills; "The Island of Enchantment," a romance of mediæval Italy, by Justin Miles Forman, with illustrations in color by Howard Pyle; "Hernando Cortés, Conqueror of Mexico," by Frederick A. Ober, the story of the progress of the intrepid, light-hearted and unscrupulous adventurer, Cortés, with his little band of untrained soldiers and sailors, against the forces allied against him; also, "Rebecca Mary," by Annie Hamilton Donnell, eight stories describing episodes in the life of a little girl of ten or eleven years brought up by an aunt, a stern though kindly woman, who has been rigorously brought up and believes in applying the same system to her niece, which will appeal to all who love and study children. In anticipation of the holiday demand the Harpers are getting out a new edition of Richard Le Gallienne's "An Old Country House." The story of the old country house that the two young dreamers, Perdita and her husband, found and transformed into a delightful home is one of the prettiest of love stories. The new edition will be similar in general make-up to former editions, but it will have a more durable and attractive binding. They have been obliged to postpone the publication of "Editorial Wild Oats," the humorous stories of Mark Twain's journalistic experiences.

Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. have in preparation a collection of pictures and comments from Life on the auto craze, entitled "Auto Fun," which is calculated to please "motor" devotees and their friends; a new and cheaper edition of the famous "Rollo Books," with all the original illustrations; "The Personality of God," by Dr. Lyman Abbott, the authentic draft of the sermon that caused considerable discussion at the time of its delivery before the students of Harvard, but which has never before been quoted fully; "The Prophets and the Promise," by Willis Judson Beecher, a series of lectures analyzing the teachings of the Old Testament with respect to the Messiah; "Famous American Authors," by Sarah K. Bolton, short chatty sketches of Emerson, Holmes, Lowell, Longfellow, Hawthorne and Whittier, with illustrations printed in tint; "The Inward Light," by Amory H. Bradford, a series of talks on present-day theology, the power of conscience and individual opinion; "Vital Questions," by Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin, a discussion of the questions of life as they appeal to the individual, the family and to society at large by a physician of wide experience; "Business Philosophy," by Benjamin F. Cobb, a practical book which treats of the important features of business life—buying, selling, credit, letter-writing, and the like; "The Life That Counts," by Samuel V. Cole, a practical and earnest presentation of the virtues necessary to effective and satisfactory living; also, "The Latin Poets," by Nathan Haskell Dole, an anthology of the greater Latin poets, with sketches of their lives and examples of their work in the best English translations.

The American Unitarian Association, Boston, Mass., have in preparation for the fall "Augustus Conant, Illinois Pioneer and Preacher," by Robert Collyer, the second volume of the series on True American Types, setting forth the simple but significant life of a true New Englander who went West in his early days to become a pioneer, later entering the ministry and finally the Federal army, where he met his death in the war between the States; "Daughters of the Puritans," by Seth C. Beach, unconventional biographical sketches of Catherine Maria Sedgwick, Mary Lovell Ware, Lydia Maria Child, Sarah Margaret Fuller Ossoli, Louisa May Alcott, Mrs. Beecher Stowe and Dorothy Lynde Dix; "Eutychus and His Relations," by Brooke Herford, charmingly humorous comments of a keen observer of the relationship between pastor and people, written from a layman's point of view, but not out of sympathy with that of the minister; "James Martineau—Theologian and Teacher," by J. Estlin Carpenter, a comprehensive study of the life and thought of the greatest of British Unitarians, written by one of the foremost of present Unitarian scholars in England, an old pupil of Martineau's and for many years a co-worker with him at Manchester College; "Tides of the Spirit," a volume of selections of the religious and devotional writings of James Martineau, edited, with an introduction, by Albert Lazenby; "Anchors of the Soul," a volume of sermons by Brooke Herford, with a biographical sketch by Philip Wicksteed, with a portrait; "Discourses and Essays," selections from the works of William Ellery Channing, with a brief biographical sketch by W. Copland Bowie; "Prophets of the Liberal Faith," biographical sketches of Unitarian clergymen no longer living, edited by Samuel Eliot, in two volumes, entitled, respectively, "The Pioneers" and "The Preachers;" "From Servitude to Service," the history and work of Southern institutions for the education of the negro, to which Professor Kelby Miller, President William G. Frost, Professor W. E. B. Du Bois and others have furnished contributions; also, "Agnosticism and Theism in the Nineteenth Century," by Richard A. Armstrong.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY has just issued the New Deerfoot Series of three volumes, including "Deerfoot in the Forest," "Deerfoot on the Prairies" and "Deerfoot in the Mountains," by Edward S. Ellis, the well-known writer of juvenile books, illustrated by J. Steeple Davis with color frontispieces and numerous half-tone engravings. The hero of the stories is the well-known "Deerfoot," who appeared in twelve of the preceding books by Ellis. They still maintain their fascination for boys on account of their adventures in the West, and they lend a charm to the history of the period known as the Lewis and Clark Expedition of the Northwest. They will publish on October 2 a book entitled "Nature Cure, or, Home Treatment Without Medicine," by Dr. Wilhelmina H. Kuepper, of Philadelphia, a book of some interest at the present time on account of the discussion of the cure of consumption. They will also publish next month a new edition of "The Life of General Meade," by R. Meade Bache, with a new preface and an additional chapter throwing light upon the controversy between General Meade and General Grant; and two new books by Rev. Madison C. Peters, D.D., "The Jews in America," a short story of their part in the making of the republic and commemorating the 250th anniversary of their settlement, illustrated by portraits of famous American Jews, and "Will the Coming Man Marry?" which treats an interesting subject in an attractive manner. They had just received a manuscript for a new book from Hezekiah C. Butterworth, who died on September 5. This book treats of the girlhood days of the mother of Abraham Lincoln, and is a very fascinating story of a character too little known, but who certainly influenced the life of the great American President. They have also two other manuscripts by the same author, "The Boys of Panama," adventures in the new country acquired by the United States, written after the style of the famous "Zigzag Journeys," and "The Dog of Cotopaxi," a vivid account of the adventures of two boys in the wilds of South America. These three volumes are the last from the pen of the famous and popular author of boys' books. They will be included in the well-known Winston Series of Juveniles and will be published the first of the year.

THE W. B. CONKEY COMPANY, of Hammond, Ind., are this year issuing a uniform edition of the poetical works of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, bound in green silk cloth, for one dollar a volume. To the Ajax Padded edition and to the Avalon Poets several notable books of fiction have been added, giving to these lines a wider value. Additions have been made to all the fiction lines. The Columbia Series is a new line of some three hundred volumes. The new Oxford Series is a line of gilt top 12mos. The Cameo and Abbey Series are too well known to require more than a mention. The Varsity Series for boys and the Rosalind Series for girls have been extended by several desirable titles and a greater number of illustrations are now used in many of the books. Some good additions have been made to the Young Folks Standard Classics, and in the Young People's Cloth Library appear "Granny's Wonderful Chair," "Jackanapes," "Adventures of a Brownie" and "Life of Napoleon Bonaparte." These are all fully illustrated. The same books appear also in the Childhood's Classics—a more ambitious publication. The Rollo books have ten half-tone illustrations each. Their 16mos are made half an inch taller, making a more desirable trade book. The Amaranth Series appears in a new binding, the Ivory Series and the Dainty Books in padded leather binding are about as last year. The Half Leather Classics are desirable in title. A new series appears as the Padded White Vellum Series, a new idea in binding beautifully carried out. The Burnt Leather 12mos and 16mos are handsomely made and hand painted. The Copyright Series of Humorous Publications have been reduced from one dollar a copy to fifty cents, and at the popular price should gain a new lease of life. There are thirty-one separate sets of five-volume sets. "The Little Pixies Abroad" and "The Goose Family Tales" are by Fannie E. Ostrander, a practiced hand at juvenile writing. In the department of juveniles they have an attractive book entitled "A Trip to Fairyland," by Mr. Conkey's ten-year-old daughter. The Fairy Gift Series is a line of twelve of the old-time classics, bound in half white vellum with gold stamping. They are fully illustrated and should find favor at the holiday season. They are cheaper than the average Christmas card and look big for the price. The juvenile publications in board covers are particularly handsome. The old conventional square covers have been abandoned, and in their stead are ovals and diagonal patterns and side panelled title books of surpassing beauty and elegance.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have just published an "American Standard Revised New Testament," in 24mo minion type, and the 24mo Sunday-school Scholar's edition, with new practical helps, especially prepared for this book, and twenty-four full colored illustrations of scenes in the Holy Land. The Pulpit edition, now being ready, this version may be had in minion 24mo, fourteen styles; same, in Sunday-school Scholar's edition, four styles; bourgeois 8vo, Reference edition, thirteen styles; bourgeois 8vo, Reference and Concordance edition, four styles; and Teacher's edition, with complete helps and concordance, eleven styles; also, long primer 4to Reference edition, in twelve styles. The Reference edition can also be had interleaved. The Concordance used in this edition has been specially prepared for the American Standard and is said to be the only Revised Bible Concordance in the market. The Old Testament is also made in two styles, and the Pulpit edition, English 4to, in three styles. The "Concise Bible Dictionary" and "Combined Concordance to the American Standard Revised Bible" can be supplied separately. The 32mo minion "American Standard Revised New Testament" is made in ten bindings without the Psalms, and in nine, with. The "Psalms" are also to be had separate in three bindings. The "Selected Responsive Readings," from this version, is specially prepared for church use. They also have the King James version in over four hundred styles, and have added a "Red Letter Testament" in four bindings. The Nelson's "Sunday-school Scholar's Bibles," with practical helps and a new "Bible Catechism," especially prepared for young people is a very attractive and useful volume. Their Prayer-Books and Hymnals are put up in a very large variety of styles and bindings and are printed on both white and Nelson's India paper. The Oblong edition is particularly attractive and convenient to carry. They have a full line of church books, such as Carter's "Treasury of Devotion," "Steps to the Altar," "Private Prayer Book," "Proper Lessons" and "Church Services." In books for altar use they have "Altar Services" and "Fald-Stool Book." Among miscellaneous books, the New Century Library of standard authors has been augmented with a Shakespeare in six volumes, bound in red cloth and red limp leather, gilt top and gilt back. The type is long primer bold face. The pocket dictionaries, known as the "E. F. G. Series," are very complete and compact, being but 2¾x4 inches, and are extensively used by the best trade. Their line of Toy Books has been very much enlarged this year, and they can supply anything from a 5-cent toy to one at $1.50 in cloth, all beautifully printed in colors.

THE MOTHER

A Novelette of New York Life

"A short novel that shows what a master can do at depicting a single great human emotion. It is the story of a self-supporting young widow, naturally rather vulgar, who is beatified with the possession of a love for her little boy, a love so large that no man could have greater, for she is willing to give her life for him. To some it will be a good story and to some a masterpiece."

Handsomely Decorated Pages, Cloth, $1.25

St. Cuthbert's

In his first novel Mr. Knowles tells the romance of his own parish on this side the Atlantic, placing it for affectionate vision alongside of Thrums and Drumtochty. He knows how to tell a driving good story, and is a great souled man, with the eye to see the humor, the poetry and pathos of his own life work, and has the skill to portray it in a fascinating manner.

Cloth, $1.50

The Village Artist

The Village Artist is a new force in character-making and in story-telling. She is a quaint, unselfish, home-loving type. In the ordinary, uninteresting folks around her, she sees "possibilities," and she paints what she sees. It is a fair prophecy that more than one reader will try a hand at such painting.

Illustrated, Cloth, $1.00

ISABELLA R. HESS

Saint Cecilia of the Court

"The Saint" is a little untamed red-haired girl in one of the downtown "courts" of New York. Every line of the story rings true to life, and the reader will hesitate constantly between laughter and tears, so searching is the quaint intensity of the Saint.

James M. Ludlow's New Novel

SIR RAOUL

A Story of the Theft of an Empire

Dr. Ludlow's novel is a dream of inner conscience, as well as a thrilling story of outward adventure, and is a worthy companion to his successes, "The Captain of the Janizaries" and "Deborah."

The great plot of Sir Raoul and the romance of the Lady Renée, are based upon the historical facts concerning the miscarriage of that crusade of the XIIIth century which was diverted from conquering the Moslems to the capture of the Christian city of Constantinople. The love story that runs through the whole gives a picture of a woman whom one can never forget.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE FALL OUTLOOK.

IT seems to be the opinion of the men whose business makes them close students of financial and economic conditions that the outlook for a prosperous fall and winter was never brighter than this year. In every direction there has been greater activity this year than ever before, and the harvest for 1905 promises to be a record breaker—all of which means firm prices and a continuance of good times.

The season just ending has not been quite so profitable to the trade in the larger cities of the Eastern States as those of the past three years, owing to the fact that the intense heat and the continued rainy weather drove their inhabitants out of town earlier, and kept them away longer, than ever before. In the West and South the conditions were slightly more favorable, and in time the balance will no doubt be restored.

With these facts in mind the publishing trade has again made ample provision for the fall. We might say that the announcements of books thus far received are almost monumental, the individual titles reaching fairly two thousand. While the trade press and the literary journals will reap a goodly harvest in bringing this multitude of books to the attention of their constituents we frankly sympathize with the retail bookstrade, which must find an outlet for all this printed matter. Fortunately, as we have pointed out before, many of the books announced will, for one reason or another, be laid over for another season; but there will be enough left in all conscience to keep the bookseller wide awake all the time during the next three months.

An investment that grows more and more safe year by year is new editions of standard literature. The editing and the manufacturing of the books that may find a market throughout the world is every year trusted to more experienced and expert heads and hands, and this year the publishers have provided unusually beautiful settings for many of the works of true literature, which will make them profitable stock for the holiday trade.

During the year war, rumors of possible wars and the details of peace treaties have taught the people throughout the land how uncertain is their knowledge of the ever-changing geography, history and political problems that are making future history, and the works announced in this department, therefore, will supply a distinct want. The books announced on Russia and the Far East, and those on the interests of all the civilized world in the present causes of possible future wars, are a literature in themselves and many of them should prove good sellers.

Education, economics and the practical sciences and arts are more intelligently studied year by year, and the newest the experts are saying on these subjects must be bought by practical workers, always driven by ever fiercer competition in their fields of work.

When it comes to new works of pure literature and works of reference the bookseller's task of selection for his locality becomes more difficult. A knowledge of the interests of his neighbors and of their tastes and means becomes a necessity when buying books in this field, and the keynote of success in making this class of literature find a market rests mainly in personality on both sides.

In numbers fiction keeps its steady lead. All the well-known authors have a new story, but there are also many unknown names attached to curiosity-provoking titles. In choosing novels of unknown authors for his shelves the publisher's name, as a rule, is the safest touchstone of possibilities of good investment.

To market the output of the fall's publishing season means hard work for all concerned, but the material provided for this fall season seems of excellent quality and full of hopeful possibilities.

HOW WHYTE INCREASED HIS BUSINESS.

JOHN C. KIRKWOOD recently contributed to the Toronto Bookseller and Stationer the following sketch showing how one enterprising bookseller increased his business:

Young Whyte believed in having a first-class store—that meant a first-class stock. He sold books, stationery, sporting and fancy goods. He displayed these to the best advantage, was thoroughly attentive to his customers, and was always on the alert for new things that would sell in his town. People said of him: "Whyte is a hustler!"

But Whyte had ambitions. He was not content with his prosperity. He dreamed bigger things. To be just an ordinary, everyday bookseller and stationer, even though he was doing nicely, was not enough for him. For one thing, he wanted to do a bigger business in a bigger way. For another, he was young, and youth, we all know, acknowledges no lord, no limitations, no impossible mountains. This thing of waiting for people to come to him fretted him. He wanted to compel business. He argued that people had the money to spend, were spending it, were willing to spend. All that was wanted was the right temptation. So his great concern was how to divert the expenditures of the public in his direction.

There was his booktrade, for example. It was an indifferent source of revenue; the turnover was comparatively small, and while the reading habit of his community was pronounced yet people didn't buy much—they depended upon the newspapers, magazines and the public library for their literature. All this didn't make much money for Whyte. He believed that people ought to have books, to own books, and that he ought to sell them. How could he develop a book trade that would be steady and profitable? This was a question that could not be answered off-hand; but one thing Whyte did, he wrote to several publishers and jobbers and said: "I want to put on sale in May a line of miscellaneous books. which I can retail at 25 cents. What can you furnish for this purpose?" The result was that Whyte was able to offer on a given date about 500 books of all sorts—juvenile, religious, art, fiction, poetry. These books sold originally for from 50 cents to $1.50 retail, and were first-class value at his advertised price—25 cents. They were displayed in his window for a week, from Monday to Friday, with a big card, stating:

ON SALE

SATURDAY

Come early

He also advertised the sale in the local paper, giving a few titles, and emphasizing the unusual chance afforded to add to one's library, or to provide good summer reading. He suggested, too, that among the books were many suitable for birthday gifts, and hinted that it might be a good thing for some to anticipate the needs of next Christmas.

The sale was successful. His 500 books had cost him 12½ cents each, or $62.50. He had sold by noon 312 books, which at 25 cents amounted to $78. Thus he had not only recovered his outlay of $62.50, but had made a profit by 12 o'clock of $15.50, and had 188 books to the good. By night there were only 73 books left, so that his day's book sale figured out after this manner.

Sold:
427 books at 25 cents	$106.75
Bought:
75 books on hand. Profit	$44.25

In June another sale was held, and the 73 odd books were mixed in with the fresh lot. The sale was not so brisk as the former one, but was very profitable notwithstanding Then a week later all the unsold books were offered at 10 cents per volume, and were grabbed up in short order.

Of course, Whyte's ordinary book trade suffered because of these bargain sales, but when everything was added up the sales in the book department of his business had been handsomely increased, and the profits had been highly satisfactory.

Whyte learned who were the bookbuyers of his community through these sales, and made a note of their names and addresses for future use. It surprised him to find out the host of people ready to buy bargain books. He determined to make good use of his newfound knowledge for future bookselling, and the subsequent history of his book trade goes to show that he succeeded beyond his hopes.

Kennedy, Chairman National Executive Committee, 312 North Broadway, St. Louis, please give the matter immediate attention, as it is absolutely necessary that Committee know at the earliest possible moment for how many they are expected to provide. The responses to date indicate a very large attendance and a successful convention.

Requests for hotel accommodations should be made to Geo. M. Spalding, Chairman Hotel Committee, 320 Olive St., St. Louis, at the same time as acceptance is made to Mr. Kennedy.

This needs immediate attention.

CHARLES A. STEVENS, Secretary.

The trade from New York will leave Grand Central Station, by the N. Y. C. and H. R. R R., on October 7, at 2.04 P.M. Application for space in special car must be made at once to G. W. Higgins, 149 Broadway, New York The fare for round trip, with stop-over privilege at Niagara Falls for ten days, is $32.10

EXTRA DUTY ON CANADIAN PULP ABOLISHED.

JAMES B. REYNOLDS, Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury, has advised Collector Stranahan that the United States has concluded to drop its contention that an additional or countervailing duty should be levied on wood pulp, the product of pulp wood cut from crown and private lands in the Province of Quebec.

The case is of considerable interest to manufacturers of wood pulp and paper, and has been in litigation for several years, the American Government insisting that it had the right to collect a countervailing duty on all wood pulp irrespective of whether the product came from wood cut on Crown or private lands. This contention was recently declared illegal by the United States Circuit Court for the Northern District of New York. The court affirmed an earlier decision of the Board of Appraisers, and held that the United States can only exact a countervailing duty on wood pulp produced from wood cut from Crown lands.

The Treasury Department has maintained that Canada pays a bounty on all wood pulp sent to this country, and that the merchandise thereby became liable to the extra duty on importation into the United States. While the test case has been under consideration many cases have arisen and been placed on the suspended files of the Board of Appraisers pending the outcome of the court proceedings. These will now be decided and large refunds made to importers.

OBITUARY NOTES.

E. A. SHEPLER, manager of the Western News Company, died in Chicago, on September 24, aged forty-six. Mr. Shepler, though a Pennsylvanian by birth, was raised in the Western News Company, where his industry, efficiency and enterprise soon attracted attention. In 1884 he was appointed manager of the Colorado News Company, and, seven years later, upon the retirement of John R. Walsh, he was called again to Chicago to take charge of the establishment in which he first made his mark. He was elected a director of the American News Company this year, and great hopes were entertained of his future.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HALL CAINE, the novelist, who arrived here on September 23, is reported to have informed a Times interviewer that he means to confer with his publishers, the Appletons, bringing before them a new system of book distribution. This he is certain will revolutionize the publication business here. He said that he could not discuss this until after the meeting with publishers. He expressed himself, however, confident of its success.

MISS EDITH ALLONBY, a Lancaster school teacher, recently committed suicide at Cartinel, Eng., because, it is supposed, a novel of hers was returned by the publishers with a request either to modify or omit altogether matter which in a letter written before her lamentable death she describes as either "truth or page upon page of blasphemy." Miss Allonby wrote and published anonymously two stories, "Marigold" and "The Jewel Sowers," which were highly praised. Her rejected novel, "The Fulfilment," is to be published by her family after it has been carefully edited.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Fortnightly Review for September, (Leonard Scott Publication Company,) contains a long criticism by Dr. J. Beattie Crozier of "A Modern Utopia," under the title "Mr. Wells as a Sociologist;" a criticism of "The Letters of Ernest Renan," by Edward Wright; and an essay on "Christopher Marlowe," by W. L. Courtney.

A LEGAL attorney on September 22 advertised in the New York daily papers that he would "prosecute to the fullest extent of the law any person or persons buying, selling, offering for sale or reading" the October issue of Everybody's Magazine, in which Thomas W. Lawson "bitterly and brutally attacks one of [Mr. Smith's] clients" in an "attempt to expose financial blackmail." The warning seems to have had no other effect than to increase the sale of the magazine on the newsstands; nor have we, up to the time of going to press, heard of any wholesale arrests of readers of the magazine.

The Reader for October contains a variety of interesting reading matter, among which the following appeal directly to literary people: "What London Offers to American Writers," by James L. Ford, who takes a less favorable view of the subject than that taken by most of his contemporaries; "The Writing of History, with special reference to some recent American histories," by H. Addington Bruce; "Leading Characteristics of American Literature," by Will D. Howe; a poem on John Hay, by Florence Earle Coates; a sonnet on "A Book-Buyer," by Richard Kirk; and a number of notes on the leading writers and dramatists of to-day in the department of "Our Own Times." The magazine is ably edited and takes a place in the front rank of journalistic literature.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready the third volume of "Auction Prices of Books," by Luther S. Livingston. The volume of 580 pages covers the subject from Lapham to Richards, treating the matter with the same precision and scholarship that distinguished the work of the preceding volumes. As the work grows its interest—not to mention its usefulness and value—becomes apparent to all who even scan the volume now ready. Auction prices, while not always conclusive, certainly afford good reading to those who are curious enough to watch the fluctuations of the market. Those who have this curiosity will be amply paid by the perusal of this particular volume. As we pointed out in our notice of the first volume, if consulted for an impression of book values, always with a degree of caution and personal judgment, the work cannot fail to be of immeasurable service to the bookseller, librarian and book collector. Another volume will complete the work.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PHOTOCHROM COMPANY, Ltd., 35 Hoosier Lane, Snow Hill, London, have brought out a "Multiple View Card," patented here and abroad. The post card holds its subject in a frame the picture of which may be pulled down, when a number of smaller views of whatever place the larger card represents are displayed.

THOMAS WHITTAKER is about to publish a volume entitled "One Thousand and One Modern Anecdotes," by Alfred H. Miles, author of "One Thousand and One Anecdotes." Like its predecessor, the forthcoming volume will consist largely of humorous and pointed stories, useful as illustrations for all classes of platform speakers.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish shortly "The Bible Beautiful," by Estelle M. Hurll, author of "The Madonna in Art," etc. Each chapter has an especially drawn initial and tail piece—charming bits of detail which harmonize perfectly with the spirit of the book. The cover design is Persian in effect, with a border in rich colors stamped on a delicate background and with the lettering in gold.

HURST & COMPANY, New York, call the attention of the trade to their immense new list of popular publications at popular prices. To every one of their many lines new titles have been added, and every line has been improved in some particular. It would be impossible to describe these in detail, hence we advise the trade to secure a copy of their fall catalogue, or, if possible, inspect the line personally.

HARRISON HALE SCHAFF, of John W. Luce & Co., Boston, is in London making arrangements for a London branch of this house. Some of the books from this company in its brief history have been received with exceptional favor on the other side, notably "The Foolish Dictionary," by Gideon Wurdz, and "Epigrams and Aphorisms," by Oscar Wilde. While in Paris Mr. Schaff secured for John W. Luce & Co. a line of children's books from a well-known Parisian publisher for reproduction in this country.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING CO., Akron, O., announce a gift book entitled "Sweeter Still Than This," by Adah Louise Sutton, made up of love poems, illustrated in colors by Carl B. Williams; also, "Palmistry," a little handbook by Mrs. Symes, containing complete instructions how to tell the disposition, peculiar traits of character, etc., from the lines in the palm and the general shape of the hand. They have also in preparation "Immortality," the poem Joseph Jefferson wrote not long before his death, with decorative illustrations by H. H. Bennett.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have decided to bring out Opie Read's book, "Old Lim Jucklin," on October 19, instead of holding it for the spring, as heretofore announced. Old Lim is a cross between David Harum and Old Gorgon Graham. He abounds in original anecdotes and shrewd and homely observations. There are remarks and epigrams on politics, gambling, horse racing, women reformers, first love, rebels, Yankees, cock fights, etc. They will publish shortly "The International Cook Book," by Alexander Philippini, who was for many years chéf at Delmonico's; and the fifth part of "The Dog Book," by James Watson, which will be devoted to collies, English sheep dogs and bulldogs.

FOX, DUFFIELD & COMPANY'S calendars for 1906 include "The Wagner Calendar," designs in two colors, illustrative of the Wagnerian operas, and showing the motif of each, by Marion C. Bridgman; "The Canterbury Calendar," pictures in color, by Walter Appleton Clark; "The Toyland Calendar," an echo of "Babes in Toyland," by Ethel Franklin Betts; "The Poets' Calendar," selections from the English poets, set in decorative designs by Harry Smith; "A Girl's Calendar," in color-tint, by Thomas Mitchell Peirce; "The St. Francis Calendar," selections from the writings of St. Francis, set up in mediæval designs, by Marion C. Bridgman; "The Omar Calendar," a selection of the Rubáiyát, set in designs of a Persian character by Austin Smith.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish shortly "The Preparation of Manuscripts for the Printer," by Frank H. Vizetelly, associate editor of the Standard Dictionary. Besides giving directions to authors on how to prepare copy and correct proofs, Mr. Vizetelly's work points out how authors can effectively reduce the cost of corrections in type and tells them when, where and how to make them. Mr. Vizetelly comes from a family of printers and publishers who migrated from Venice to England in the days of "Good Queen Bess," and was himself a printer, serving his time in his father's establishment, coming to New York only when the business was forced into liquidation through prosecutions which led to the suppression of Zola's works in English.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out a new novel by W. N. Harben, the author of "Abner Daniel," etc., entitled "Pole Baker," in which the tactful old meddler, one of the characters of "Abner Daniel" and "The Georgians," plays the principal part; "The Line of Love," by James Branch Cabell, a young Southern writer who has recently come into considerable prominence, the theme of which is love and romance set amid picturesque scenes of France and England in the Middle Ages; "With Flashlight and Rifle," a translation of "Mit Blitzlicht und Büchse," by C. G. Schilling, who with upwards of one hundred assistants spent eighteen months in tropical Africa, accumulating the material for his volume, the illustrations being exact reproductions of the original photographs; also, Mark Twain's new volume, "Editorial Wild Oats."

DODD, MEAD & Co. have brought out this week a book of travel which will doubtless attract considerable attention, entitled "The Silken East, a record of life and travel in Burma," by V. C. Scott O'Connor, comptroller of Assam. The volume sums up the results of the author's observations during a great many years of active service there. The book is at the same time scientific and popular. It is both an exhaustive and authoritative work on the natural features of the country and the condition of the people, and also by reason of its excellent description and lively narrative, a book of interest to the general reader. The book is fully illustrated. They have also just ready a juvenile story by Barbara Yechton, author of "A Lovable Crank" and "We Ten," entitled "Some Adventures of Jack and Jill," illustrated in colors.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just brought out a volume on "The Principles of the Administrative Law of the United States," by Professor Frank J. Goodman, of Columbia University, who sets forth the principles of law, as found in the Constitution, the statutes of the Legislature, and the decisions of the courts which govern the organizations and actions of authorities having the duty of executing the law, and provide remedies for the individual when such officers have violated his rights; also, a new story for boys by Herbert Strang, entitled "The Adventures of Harry Rochester, a tale of the days of Marlborough and Eugene." They will publish shortly the first volume of "The Life of Goethe," by the late Albert Bielschowsky, translated by William Cooper, which covers the period from the poet's birth to his return from Italy—1749 to 1788.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have published this week "Lynette and the Congressman," an engaging love story, with its scene laid in Washington, by Mary Farley Sanborn, author of "Sweet and Twenty," etc.; "The Indian Dispossessed," an account of the Government's dealings with the Reservation Indians, by Seth K. Humphrey; "The Boy Captive in Canada," another Colonial story for young people, by Mary P. Wells Smith, author of The Young Puritans Series, etc.; "Boys Who Became Famous," consisting of stories of the childhood of poets, artists and musicians, by Harriet Pearl Skinner; "With Spurs of Gold," entertaining and instructive stories of famous knights, by Frances N. Greene and Dolly Williams Kirk; and "The Reform of Shaun," two sympathetic dog stories, by Allen French, author of "The Story of Rolf and the Viking's Bow," etc. On October 2 they will publish Anne Warner's new book, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." On October 7, the same firm will publish "The Ballingtons," a powerful novel of modern social relations, by Frances Squire, a new Western writer.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, Cleveland, O., have recently published an important volume on early American history, "Early Western Travels in Illinois: 1818-1821." This comprises four contemporary accounts of the exploration and settlement of the Illinois country, written by Thomas Hulme, Richard Flower and John Woods. These travellers were keen observers of conditions in the Middle West, and contain valuable observations on the face of the country, prospects of new towns, early pioneers and prices and wages.

The work has been edited, with notes and introductions, by Dr. Reuben Gold Thwaites. They have also just issued an important volume on early American history, "Early Western Journals: 1742-1765." This volume presents the best and rarest contemporary accounts of the most interesting period of early Pennsylvania history, giving the journals of Conrad Weiser and George Croghan, Indian agents from 1748-1765, and of Post, the Moravian missionary. These journals form the very best contemporary material for the history of the last French war and Pontiac's conspiracy, and are also edited by Dr. Thwaites.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have brought out this week a large paper edition in six volumes, limited to 150 numbered copies, of "The English Works of George Herbert," newly arranged and annotated, and considered in relation to his life, by George Herbert Palmer—the result of the labor of a lifetime, a labor of love, and perhaps the most thoroughly edited edition of an English poet in existence; "Two Bird-Lovers in Mexico," by C. William Beebe, a readable narrative of the journey of an ornithologist and his wife across Mexico from Vera Cruz to the Pacific and back, with more than 100 illustrations; "The Counsels of a Worldly Godmother," by Persis Mather, a series of letters dealing with the daily round of modern society; "The Green Shay," by George S. Wasson, a story depicting the present conditions in a corner of Maine, where the inhabitants, fine old American stock, have somewhat degenerated; "Lonely O'Malley," by Arthur Stringer, a humorous story that strongly suggests both "Tom Sawyer" and "The Story of a Bad Boy," with illustrations by Frank T. Merrill; "The Star Jewels, and Other Wonders," a collection of fairy stories for children by Abbie Farwell Brown, with pictures by Ethel C. Brown; "The Immanence of God," by Professor Borden P. Browne, of the Boston University, whose aim is to correct the popular confusion in regard to the natural and supernatural; also, a Riverside Press edition of "The Love Poems of John Donne," edited by Charles Eliot Norton, of which only 500 copies are for sale.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out the following books: "Rational Living: some practical inferences from modern psychology," by Professor Henry Churchill King; "An Island in the Air," by Ernest Ingersoll; "The Industrial History of the United States," by Professor Katharine Coman; the Globe edition of "The Diary of Samuel Pepys;" "Alcestis, and Other Poems," by Sara King Wiley; "The Economics of Agriculture," by Henry C. Taylor; and "The Elements of Sociology," by Frank W. Blackmar, in the Citizens' Library of Economics, Politics and Sociology; "Representative Essays on the Theory of Style," by Professor William T. Brewster; "Civics: Studies in American Citizenship," by Waldo H. Sherman; "Surgical Aspects of Digestive Disorders," by Dr. James G. Mumford and Dr. Arthur K. Stone; a new edition of "The Structure and Development of the Mosses and Ferns," by Professor Douglas H. Campbell; and Shakespeare's "Henry V.," edited by Ralph Hartt Bowles, in Macmillan's Pocket Classics. They announce that "Fair Margaret: a Portrait" is the correct title of F. Marion Crawford's forthcoming novel. In some unaccountable way the statement got into the press that the title of Mr. Crawford's new novel was to be "The Soprano," and this piece of misinformation has been copied from paper to paper all over the country. The novel will appear this fall, with illustrations by H. T. Carpenter, well known to the book-trade through his connection with H. S. Stone, the Cosmopolitan, etc.

THE PETER NEWELL MOTHER GOOSE

The old Rhymes reproduced in connection with their veracious history

By Carolyn Sherwin Bailey. With twenty-two illustrations and a cover design by Peter Newell. $1.50.

Mr. Newell, the well known artist, has actually put new spirit into the familiar Mother Goose characters, and Miss Bailey, while retaining the familiar rhymes, has put the same characters through a most amusing lot of adventures sure to appeal to any child, and probably to old folks, too.

THE WIZARDS OF RYETOWN

By A. Constance Smedley and L. A. Talbot. Illustrated, $1.50.

A fairy story with a touch of drollery and some clever nonsense verses. The plot is a clever variation of the good old story, with its little girl in fairy land, its lively and malicious witch, its lovely prince, and its happily ever after. The inhabitants of Ryetown and Barleytown, the fairy cities of the story, are all original and captivating. The characters, the plot, the conversations, and the incidents are of the sort which children like best.

LOSER'S LUCK

By Charles Tenney Jackson. 12mo, $1.50.

The unusual romance, by a new Californian author, of Dolores Delgado, the last of a royal native race in Central America, a yachtsman, and others who were loyal to her, including the "American legion" that left San Francisco a gang of roughs, and ended a band of heroes. Dryden's words "All for Love, or the world well lost" give the spirit of this novel, in which love and peril dominate, even though humor abounds. "Comic opera revolution" though it may be in which these people engage, the "Dagoes" they encounter are no cowards, and the result is, the publishers' readers say, "some fighting that can hold its own with any in fiction."

ANIMAL SNAPSHOTS

By Silas A. Lottridge. Illustrated, $1.75 net.

Extraordinary pictures of some of our familiar wild animals and birds in their native environment, from photographs taken in the field by the author. Accompanying the pictures are papers on the life and habits of the subjects. These papers are charmingly and simply written and show an intimate acquaintance with the little creatures they describe.

EXTINCT ANIMALS

By Professor E. Kay Lankester. Illustrated, 8vo, $1.75 net.

An interesting book by one of the highest authorities, based on the author's successful course of popular lectures. The narrative is well unified and developed, and the style so simple that children may enjoy the work.

Our Fall List of Fiction

My Friend the Chauffeur

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor" and "The Princess Passes"

Sunny romance is the key-note of this delightful automobile story which is the outcome of the following newspaper advertisement: WANTED, Ladies to Conduct. An amateur automobilist (English, titled) who drives his own motor car accomodating five persons, offers to conduct two or three ladies, Americans preferred, to any picturesque centres in Europe which they may desire to visit," etc. The outcome of this act is a love story, a story of adventure, and a volume of European travel all in one.

Cloth, 12mo, six illustrations, $1.50.

The Ancient Landmark

By ELIZABETH CHERRY WALTZ

Author of "Pa Gladden"

A stirring "Blue Grass" novel presenting a dramatic love story and a delightful picture of a Kentucky town with all its characteristic surroundings. Mrs. Waltz has drawn with remarkable skill the characters who appear in this charming problem novel, wherein the heroine is not permitted to divorce her maniac husband because tradition says "No." But a distant cousin, by his nobility of conduct and character, proves his right to her and conquers the "ancient landmark" of prejudice.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.

The Work of Our Hands

By H. A. MITCHELL KEAYS

Author of "He That Eateth Bread With Me"

A powerful story of a woman's struggle against the shams of religion and the selfishness of wealth. The heroine, who has been brought up in somewhat straightened circumstances and in a religious atmosphere, marries the millionaire son of a great mill-owner, and the story of her fight to alleviate the misery and suffering among the poor, downtrodden mill hands by using her husband's millions, is dramatic, indeed, and beyond the ordinary run of pleasant, accomplished story-telling.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.

THE PANG-YANGER

By ELMA A. TRAVIS, M.D.

A strong, striking novel of American life by a new and promising writer. The scene is laid in the picturesque and rugged Catskills, and the hero, Abijah Beade, is a true son of the soil, vigorous, primitive and passionate, who seeks revenge upon a woman really his wife, who has taken advantage of the lack of witnesses to their union to desert Abijah and his son, and make what she supposes as a richer marriage. The story of his relations to the two women who divide with him the interest of the book involves a situation of original conception and extraordinary interest.

Our Fall List of Fiction

Back Home

By EUGENE WOOD

Watching the horse race.

BACK HOME! Back to the good old country village where you passed your childhood! As the author says: "Here is your transportation all made out in your hands." It is a volume of most delightful reveries over the old swimming pool, the little red school-house, the singing school, the county fair, circus day, fireman's tournament, etc., and throughout all these humorous recollections you are shaken up with the most grateful kind of laughter.

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated by A. B. Frost, $1.50.

I. N. R. I

A Prisoner's Story of the Cross

By PETER ROSEGGER

The conception of this book is original, almost daring. It is supposed to be written by a carpenter of socialistic tendencies sentenced to be hanged for a crime of which he is legally, but not morally, guilty. As he sits in his cell waiting for the day of his death, the desire for some sort of spiritual comfort grows within him, and presently he finds himself writing what seems to him the real story of Jesus Christ. The author approaches the sacred subject with all reverence, and makes an uplifting and inspiring story.

Cloth, 12mo, eight illustrations in four colors, $1.50.

By JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS

It is a generation since the first Uncle Remus stories appeared to delight the young folks. Here is a sheaf of new ones to bring joy to the children of those children, and no parent can afford to miss the opportunity of introducing his children to the wonderland of Br'er Rabbit, Mr. Fox, Sis Cow, Sis Hen, et. al., through this new volume. There is also a pleasure in the process for the parent that he should not overlook. The book is richly and profusely illustrated with sixty pictures by Frost, Verbeck and Conde.

Cloth, $2.00.

The Fortunes of the Landrays

By VAUGHAN KESTER

A big, romantic story of American life, panoramic and epic in its handling. The author seems to have aimed to give in story form a picture of the most striking events in our country's history during the larger portion of this century. He weaves his story around the fortunes of the house of the Landrays, and no less than four generations of the family appear. In turn he pictures a little Ohio village of the time when Ohio was still the frontier, the California gold excitement, the crossing of the Indian-infested plains by the gold seekers, the Civil War period, the boom-town epoch in the Middle West, all these come into his story, and are treated with remarkable understanding and forcefulness.

Cloth, 12mo, illustrations by the Kinneys, $1.50.

Charles Wagner

Author of

Justice

Mr. Wagner points out in this little volume that it is not only necessary to live the simple life, but also to live the upright life; and that we must consider justice not only in regard to our fellow man, but also in regard to ourselves, not only in regard to our acts, but in regard to our thoughts. There is a plenitude of plain thinking and a world of philosophy in these comforting pages. Uniform with other Wagner books.

Postpaid $1.07; net $1.00.

Gospel of Life

Here Mr. Wagner refers to this volume as the note-book of his life, in which he has jotted down opinions on all questions of conduct and thought that have interested him. He has done it in an interesting and human way, for each line of thought has been suggested to him by some picturesque, or pathetic, or amusing incident, and, therefore, this chatty little volume of his observations and meditations becomes an interesting picture-gallery of all phases of life. Uniform with other Wagner books.

Postpaid $1.07; net $1.00.

Bible History

By Prof. XAVIER KOENIG

This book contains a series of fifty lessons on the Old Testament viewed in the new light of indisputable historical facts that modern research and criticism have unearthed. The matter is so arranged that the book may be used for students of from ten to twelve years upward, and Professor Koenig's purpose is to make the Bible known as it is, or as it must be for us of this generation.

Cloth. Postpaid $1.07; net $1.00.

Wives of Henry VIII.

By MARTIN HUME

Author of "The Courtships of Queen Elizabeth" and "The Love Affairs of Mary, Queen of Scots"

Unusual opportunities to get at little-known documents and a great deal of diligent research coupled with a brilliant historical faculty, have enabled Major Hume in this book to produce a volume of rare interest. Heretofore little has been known concerning the lives of the unfortunate consorts of Henry VIII., and these poor ladies have been viewed only in their relation to King Henry. From pathetic Catharine of Aragon, to strong-willed Katherine Parr, they furnish a very wide romantic interest in themselves; in fact, the entire book reads like a historical novel.

The Mysterious Stranger

And Other Cartoons

By JOHN T. McCUTCHEON

A humorous and satirical record of the history of our country during the last three or four years—that is what we have in the collection of a hundred pictures by America's greatest cartoonist, John T. McCutcheon, the "Dooley of the pencil." Here every important event that has happened and every important personage who has appeared to attract public attention is presented with a distortion of outline so droll, yet with such extraordinary underlying vivacity, that we feel that the artist must have employed some tricky elfish camera for his snapshots. Of course, the President takes first place in this record. Never has he been presented n so many surprising varieties of adventure and with such an infinity of characteristic attitudes and gestures. Here we have, too, the incidents of a presidential campaign, the sights and scenes of the St. Louis Fair, the events of the war, episodes of boy and girl life, of the holidays, etc., etc. History and fiction in pictures for words, that he who runs may read—this is the treat that awaits the purchaser of this delightful book. 162 full-page illustrations.

Portfolio of Bird Portraits

With Notes by W. E. D. SCOTT

The eight pictures of familiar birds which are here exquisitely and truthfully reproduced in twelve colors have all been drawn with the greatest care and skill by Mr Bruce Horsfall who has made the most careful study of these birds in their natural surroundings. Valuable descriptive notes prepared by Professor W. E. D. Scott, Director of the Worthington Society for the Investigation of Bird Life, accompany each picture and give additional value to the beautiful prints. Two Hand-Books of Great Value

Foster's Complete Bridge

By R. F. FOSTER

The King Leads

Mr. Foster is America's leading Bridge expert and a writer on Whist in all its forms. This book on Bridge, covering every phase of it, is, unquestionably, the most thorough volume on the game yet published. It is for the beginner and for the advanced player as well. The beginner will find the first principles of the game lucidly explained, and the proper leads under ordinary circumstances clearly shown by a very ingenious arrangement of diagrams through which the playing of sample hands is indicated. The experienced player will find very valuable the later chapters, in which the author takes up very thoroughly the fine points of the game. Among other things, the author gives in as complete a form as possible all the rules of the game.

Cloth. Illustrated in color with many diagrams. Postpaid, $1.62; net, $1.50

The Complete Golfer

By HARRY VARDON

The author of this hand-book is, unquestionably, the greatest golf player that the world has ever seen; and has more knowledge of the art, science, and technique of the game than any man alive. He has a rare faculty for imparting his knowledge and offers to even the most experienced golfer a host of helpful hints, the ripe fruit of his own varied and long experience. He takes up the selection of clubs, the proper handling and correct grips for each, and the most profitable methods of practice. He gives directions for the stances for every kind of stroke and illustrates his suggestions with over fifty photographs of himself making the strokes. This book is invaluable to every golf enthusiast and person interested in the game.

Cloth. Fifty illustrations. Postpaid, $3.75 net, $3.50

Books of General Interest

The Torch

By George Edward Woodberry, author of "Makers of Literature," etc. This brilliant and fascinating book will be eagerly read by all those who are interested in the relation between literature and life. The eight chapters of the book were originally delivered as lectures before the Lowell Institute of Boston. Cloth. Postpaid, $1.30; net, $1.20

Swinburne

By George Edward Woodberry. This is a new volume in the Contemporary Men of Letters Series, edited by William A. Bradley, which provides in brief condensed form critical biographies of the writers who have had the greatest influence upon our time.

Postpaid, 83 cents; net, 75 cents

Franklin in History

By William MacDonald. A new picture of Franklin is here presented to the reader in this book. The author has drawn him chiefly as the great diplomat carrying the burden of a new nation upon his shoulders through the courts of Europe, and fighting on foreign soil a crafty campaign for the welfare of a young country. The approaching bi-centenary in 1906 of Franklin's birth gives this book a special interest.

Cloth. Illustrated with portraits. Postpaid, $2.70; net, $2.50

The Horse in America

By John Gilmer Speed. The author has made a very complete handbook that will be of value to every one who possesses a horse, or who is interested in the subject. The history of the horse in America is full of interest and romance, as Mr. Speed's narrative shows. It gives a brief account of the progenitors of the horse, and then takes up every breed for which our country has been noted. Cloth. Sixteen illustrations, two in color. Postpaid, $2.20; net, $2.00

A Modern Symposium

By G. Lowes Dickinson, author of "Letters from a Chinese Official." Here is an intellectual tonic; a brilliant, inspiring and broadening piece of thinking backed by a strong human interest. The author has presented a half-score of typical characters of our time in the act of stripping their mental lives bare and explaining why they are, what they are, and why they hold their ideals.

Cloth. Postpaid, $1.07; net, $1.00

The Cost of Competition

By Sidney A. Reeve. The author demonstrates in this book the great tax laid upon the community by the disproportionate attention and reward given under modern social condition to traders, i.e., business men. Just the act of getting a product to market, he points out, cost us extraordinarily. This need not be, he believes, but is due to the completely commercial trend of our civilization, which results in robbing the producer for the benefit of the trade. A strong book for political thinkers.

Cloth. Illustrated. Postpaid, $2.17; net, $2.00

Plunkitt of Tammany Hall

By William A. Riordon. The candid reflections of a remarkable politician, who has made two millions in "honest" graft because "he seen his opportunities and he took 'em." It is a new political philosophy. The N. Y. Globe says: "The reading public owes a debt of gratitude to Riordon, his discoverer. 'Plunkitt of Tammany Hall' is every bit as entertaining as 'Mr. Dooley.' A 'character' has been added to literature." Cloth. Price, $1.00

A Commercial Traveler in South America

By Frank Wiborg. A delightful book of travel by an American business man; a chatty, informal record of interesting things seen by him during a trip through the chief countries of South America. Business men will find Mr. Wiborg's book suggestive, and will make American manufacturers and traders realize how they are letting golden opportunity escape them in the South American markets. Cloth. Eight illustrations. Postpaid, $1.09; net, $1.00

GIFT BOOKS

By EDMUND VANCE COOKE 8vo, cloth, $1.50 ; leather, $2.

Mr. Cooke needs no introduction to the American public—much of his child-verse, under the title "Chronicles of the Little Tot," appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, and created probably more interest than any other poems that paper has printed. His verses have humor, deep philosophy, and pathos. His child-poems show a deep insight and thorough uuderstanding of child-life and character.

A well-known editor, writing in reference to one of the poems in this book, said :

"I have never reprinted anything during all my public experience that gave me greater satisfaction. I was touched beyond expression by the beauty of the poem. It says with perfect expression, and a proper repression, so that all mere sentimentality is perfectly eliminated—something that, as far as we know, never has been said, but that has certainly been waiting to be said since the first little child to go into the other world went alone on its first journey. I know of nothing better in American literature, and I have never said this before to any writer."

Thought Transference

"Thought Transference" by NORTHCOTE W. THOMAS. 12mo, cloth, $1.25

Since the foundation of the Society for Psychical Research more than twenty-three years ago, a great mass of more or less well-evidenced material has been published upon subjects such as THOUGHT-TRANSFERENCE, CRYSTAL GAZING, GHOSTS, MEDIUMSHIP, PHYSICAL PHENOMENA and other so-called "occult" manifestations. There have—notwithstanding the unquestioned great public interest in these subjects—been but few attempts to sum up the evidence and make it available for the ordinary citizen who cannot find time to read the whole of the thirty volumes published by the Society. Even in the Society's own publications there is, as a rule, no periodical summing up of the evidence for the various phenomena and hypotheses.

This new book by Professor Thomas—"Thought Transference"—deals critically and sympathetically with the evidence and shows what any reasonable man without bias in either direction may regard as proved.

Crystal Gazing

"Crystal Gazing" by NORTHCOTE W. THOMAS 12mo, cloth, $1.25

"Crystal Gazing: Its history and practice, with a discussion of the evidence of Telepathic Scrying," is the title of the first volume in this series by Professor Thomas, with an introduction by Andrew Lang, M.A., LL.D. Professor Lang gives his experiences with Crystal Gazing in a most interesting introduction and Professor Thomas critically examines the evidence of a long series of experiments.

As showing what has been tested and proven in Psychical Research these two books are of great value as well as of fascinating interest. Every thoughtful man and woman should read them.

Autumn J. B. Lippincott Company Announcement

LIPPINCOTT'S NEW GAZETTEER

THE dictionary of universal geography that is now offered to the public is the successor of Lippincott's Pronouncing Gazetteer, which in its various editions has been before the English-speaking world for half a century. It is a new publication, printed from new type from title-page to cover. Only the framework or skeleton of its predecessor has been retained, together with the system of pronunciation introduced by that great master, Dr. Joseph Thomas.

The present publication will be found to present an accurate picture of the globe in its minutest details as it exists in the twentieth century. Each one of its 100,000 notices, varying in length from a single line to thousands of words, speaks for itself.

An important adjunct to the geographic treatment of places is the historic reference, which has been subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as the more purely geographical data, and the student in history will find in this publication a most valuable and reliable guide in the prosecution of his own particular work. The Gazetteer presents, further, the most complete and accurate guide in the pronunciation of place names that has yet appeared in the English language—in this respect holding a distinctive position of its own. Particular attention has been bestowed upon the proper rendering of East European and Oriental names,—Russian, Hungarian, Asiatic, etc. A most valuable feature of the work is the mention of classical names.

As an evidence of its comprehensiveness, it need only be remarked that the present work contains upward of 27,000 titles that do not appear in its predecessor.

By Anthony Hope, author of "Quisante," "Phroso," "The Prisoner of Zenda," etc.

A story of the private life and personal emotions of a famous actress—showing not only how she seemed to the world outside her profession, but also how that profession made her what she was and inevitably ordered her life and actions.

"It is psychologic—but with a difference, the difference being the bright and compelling interest of Mr. Hope's dialogue, and the smiling sanity of his spirit. Imagine much that is best in Meredith or James, and all that is best in Anthony Hope, and you have a fair idea of 'A Servant of the Public.'"—THE GLOBE, New York.

THE SIEGE OF THE SOUTH POLE
By H. R. Mill. Illustrated with numerous half-tones, colored map, etc.

There is no book—other than the cumbersome reports of the various explorations, interesting in themselves but to many unavailable—to which the student or the general reader may refer for a concise, authoritative account of the discoveries in the South Polar Regions.

For many centuries the vast unknown region of sea and ice and storm "at the bottom of the world" has beckoned with alluring hands to the intrepid mariners of the north. But just who has been successful and what has been accomplished in this quest for the South Pole are very little known.

Dr. Mill has collected into this volume, in consecutive form, a vast amount of material—in fact everything from the speculations of the ancients in regard to the Great Southern Ocean to the twentieth-century explorations of Nordenskjold, Bruce, and Scott; a narrative of courage, sacrifice, and adventure that has not been matched by any other written.

THE FAR EAST

By ARCHIBALD LITTLE. Containing chapters on China, The Yellow River, Manchuria, Tibet, Korea, Japan, etc. 8vo, cloth, with 8 colored maps and numerous illustrations, $2.00.

THE ELEMENTS OF RAILWAY ECONOMICS

By W. M. ACWORTH, author of "The Railways of England," "The Railways and the Traders," &c., 8vo, cloth, 70 cents.

"An intelligent man, if he will apply his mind for a few hours to the study of this little book, may have a clearer understanding of the problem of railway rates than is now manifested by most of our public speakers and newspaper editors. Mr. Acworth has explained a difficult problem with such admirable lucidity as to bring it within the popular comprehension, and he would have been censurable had he hid his light under a bushel. While his book may have been intended for his students at the London School of Economics, and while his illustrations and applications are primarily English, the American people stand in especial need of its lessons, and their need has never been so great as it will be during the coming years."—The Evening Post, May 8, 1905.

Another Fall with Only 20 Books

IN the belief that quality is more desirable than quantity, we have again restricted the number of our Fall publications to something like twenty books—our aim being to have fewer and better books with each succeeding year.

Particularly noteworthy this season are "The Missourian" (which in The Bookman for October is listed among the Six Best Selling Books in America); "A Southern Girl in '61," by the daughter of Senator Wigfall, of Texas; "Ayesha, the Return of She," by H. Rider Haggard, author of "She"; and "Concerning Belinda," by Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd; but we may as well complete the list, for they are all noteworthy :

FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS

Phyllis Burton

By
MRS. S. R. GRAHAM CLARK

12mo. Fully Illustrated.

Price, $1.00 net
postpaid, $1.14

This book deals with the life of a common New England village. The center of it is the doctor's home, and the heroine is the daughter, Phyllis, or, Phil, as she was universally called. About her and her sister and cousin the other characters are made to revolve, and they act their parts well. Interesting from beginning to end.

Winning His Degree

By
EVERETT T. TOMLINSON

12mo. Fully Illustrated.

postpaid, $1.10

With this book Mr. Tomlinson concludes the "Winner Series." It deals with the advanced years in college, as "Winning His 'W'" did with those of the freshman and sophomore. In this he enters a field comparatively unmarked by the story-teller. In it, too, he holds to his ideal of a boy "not preternaturally good nor unnaturally bad," and Will Phelps still embodies it.

The Appointed Way

By HOPE DARING

16mo. Illustrated.

Price, $1.25 net

Hope Daring, which is a nom de plume, has given us a graphic description of the characteristic influence and workings of the Seventh Day Advent Church. The apparent fanaticism and the defects of the entire system of Adventism are well set forth. The characters are well drawn, and the literary quality of the book, in its evidence of wide reading and in its expression, is above the average.

The Higher Criticism Cross-Examined

By FRED. D. STOREY

16mo. Price, $1.25 net; postpaid $1.35

The emphatic point in this book is on the value of evidence, and to discuss this Mr. Storey is peculiarly fitted, since for many years he has been connected with the Appellate Department of the Supreme Court of New York. With clearness of statement, with felicity of expression, and with thoroughness of investigation, Mr. Storey considers the various positions of higher criticism and successfully controverts them.

Russia and Its Crisis

By PAUL MILYOUKOV

Formerly Professor of History in the Universities of Moscow and Sofia.

The most authoritative and accurate account of Russian past development and present conditions available in English. The author is a representative of the liberal party known as the "Intellectuals," and his activity in the cause of freedom has already earned him calumny, imprisonment and exile.

The Chicago Evening Post says: "It is invaluable to the reader, who would have an intelligent standpoint for his observation of the course of events in Russia, * * * and is one of the most valuable contributions to the reputable literature of the subject."

A LITTLE GARDEN CALENDAR—For Boys and Girls. KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN says: "A sweeter or lovelier book, within and without, it would be impossible to find, or one more suggestive and useful to children, parents and teachers."

Albert Bigelow Paine
Cloth, Forty-six illustrations, $1.00

ROBBIE'S BIBLE STORIES—It is not easy to bring the stories of the Bible within the comprehension of very little children, but Miss Smith is one of the favored few who understand the art.

Gertrude Smith
With 33 illustrations
Cloth, Fifty Cents

FACE THE LIONS—A book full of action and interest, with the scenes laid in and about London in the latter half of the seventeenth century. It has already reached the ready sale which has always been accorded the author's former works.

M. R. Housekeeper
Illustrated by F. A. Eckman
Cloth, Fifty Cents

DEL'S DEBT—An orphaned girl finds a home in a family where good breeding, taste and wealth are happily mingled. She is the possessor of a voice which eventually richly repays the training lovingly accorded it. The story is told with a direct force that attracts the attention and holds the interest of the reader.

Julie M. Lippmann
Illustrated by Virginia Bennett
Cloth, Fifty Cents

THE MIDDLETON BOWL—Place aux dames. Five elderly gentlewomen, and as lovable a little girl as one could wish to meet. Some boys, of course; and then a treasured heirloom—the Middleton Bowl found most unaccountably broken. Put this material in the hands of a skilled writer like Miss Deland, and the result is inevitable. A story original in setting and rich in local color.

Ellen Douglas Deland
Illustrated by Curtis Wager-Smith
Cloth, Fifty Cents

THE LITTLE WOMEN CLUB—Miss Alcott's immortal story so dominates the minds of four girls that they form a club and assume respectively the characters of "Jo," "Meg," "Beth," and "Amy." Naturally a "Grandfather Lawrence" and "Laurie" are evolved; and the pleasant play is carried to a delightful ending.

Marian Ames Taggart
Illustrated by Eva M. Nagel
Cloth, Fifty Cents

SWEETHEARTS AND BEAUX—"Sweethearts and Beaux" is at once infinitely realistic, bitterly ironical, superbly objective. The book may be called a mocking comedy—a book to accept without asking any questions.

Minna Thomas Antrim
Cloth, 50c.; ooze calf, $1.00

GUMPTION

The Progressions of Newson New

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, Jr.

12mo, cloth, decorative, with illustrations by CHARLES COPELAND. $1.50

This is a tale of Yankee push and progress. It is also a vivid story of modern newspaper life. In following the migrations of an ambitious Cape Cod boy from his native village westward through several New England cities until he finds the field for his life work in a bustling city of the Middle West, the author also gives an interesting picture of the development of modern journalism from the old-fashioned methods of three decades ago to the marvellous activity of to-day. The story is in no way technical: the newspaper life is merely incidental to a remarkably live piece of romance. Mr. Fowler describes conditions and people with a keen directness and felicitous aptness of phrase that will charm all readers by its deep insight and irrepressible humor. Although this is his first essay in fiction, the author has an international reputation as an authority on publicity and business development. His books have had a large sale, and his profession has given him an acquaintance with all phases of American character, which shows itself on every page of his present work.

WHERE COPPER WAS KING

A Tale of the Early Mining Days on Lake Superior

By JAMES NORTH WRIGHT

A novel full of adventurous incident and with a delicate vein of romance, recording vividly a picturesque phase of Western life which is fast disappearing. It is interesting to know that the author was formerly the superintendent of the famous Calumet and Hecla mine, and describes in this volume a life which he has actually seen and of which he has been a part.

A NEW BEACON BIOGRAPHY

JOHN FISKE

By THOMAS SERGEANT PERRY

Pocket size, cloth, with photogravure portrait, net, 75 cents; by post, 80 cents

The Beacon Biographies once more achieve the distinction of presenting the first published life of an eminently great American. Mr. Perry enjoyed intimate personal acquaintance with John Fiske for many years, and he presents a vivid picture of the man and his work, that is surprisingly complete for so brief a work. This little volume will not conflict with the more extended lives of this author which must some day appear, but will have a permanent appeal as an adequate miniature portrait.

A NEW EDITION OF

BLISS CARMAN'S LOW TIDE ON GRAND PRE

TOGETHER WITH

BALLADS OF LOST HAVEN

16mo, Japan boards, net, $1.50; by post, $1.58

Mr. Carman's two earliest books contain much of the work which gained him his most appreciative recognition and many poems worthy to endure with the best verse of his generation. The public will welcome this new edition, which presents in a single volume all of the contents of these two books, together with a fine portrait of the author.

A HANDBOOK OF FIGURE SKATING

Arranged for Use on the Ice

By GEORGE H. BROWNE, A.M.

Pocket size, full limp leather, net, $1.00; by post, $1.06. Copiously illustrated

A thoroughly comprehensive handbook, giving in most compact form a remarkable amount of information as to the theory, history, and practical execution of figure skating, and written with real charm of style. The book contains over 600 diagrams, and illustrations and suggestions for nearly 10,000 figures, together with a supplemental chapter on the International Style in Figure Skating.

BACON CRYPTOGRAMS IN SHAKE-SPEARE, and Other Studies

By ISAAC HULL PLATT

12mo, half cloth, net, $1.00; by post, $1.06

This volume does not claim to prove that Bacon wrote Shakespeare, and has nothing to do with any fanciful theory of Bacon's parentage. It gives a concise account of certain newly found cryptograms (some of which are original discoveries of the author) which seem to indicate that Francis Bacon was in some way concerned in the authorship or publication of the poems and plays known as Shakespeare's. It makes no claim upon the faith of the reader, as all points are fully explained and elucidated.

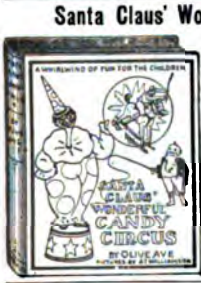
A STORY OF CROSS AND SWORD,

"THE SON OF THE SWORDMAKER"

BY OPIE READ.



From "The Son of the Swordmaker." Copyrighted, 1905, by W. H. Lee

A STRIKING story of the life of a Roman soldier and his stirring adventures among the Gauls, the early Britains, the Franks, and in Palestine, including a vivid picture of life among the Druids, a princess of this race, named Vloden, being the heroine. The cold, hopeless philosophy of the Romans and the revivifying faith of the gentle Nazarine permeate the narrative, holding the reader's attention with a peculiar fascination. As the exciting course of events is followed, the blood is made to stir and the heart to beat with a strange quickening, subsiding only to the peaceful influence of the rejected "King of the Jews," so skillfully and delicately depicted by the author. Several historical characters are brought on the scene—Herod, Pilate, Nicodemus, Barabbas, Joseph of Arimathea, and the centurion who placed the crown of thorns on the Saviour's brow.

The secret thoughts and ambitions, the unbiased observations and reflections of a common soldier of Ceasar's legions, stated with the blunt honesty of a disinterested witness, throws a new light upon the sacred story of the Cross, depicting from the standpoint of a soldier of Rome,

The result of the queries of three generations of readers and correspondents is crystallized in this book. It is indispensable to every family and business man. It deals with matters of interest to everybody. The book contains 50,000 facts, and is much more complete and more exhaustive than anything of the kind which has ever been attempted. It is a book of everyday reference, more useful than an encyclopedia, because you will find what you want in an instant in a more condensed form. Sixty years of experience alone have made it possible for the publishers of the Scientific American to present to the purchasers of this book a remarkable aggregation of information.

EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE

By GEORGE M. HOPKINS

Revised and Greatly Enlarged
2 Octavo Volumes 1,100 Pages
900 Illustrations Cloth, $5.00

"Experimental Science" is so well known that it is hardly necessary now to give a description of this work. Mr. Hopkins decided that it would be necessary to prepare a new edition of this work in order that the many wonderful discoveries of modern times might be fully described in its pages. Since the last edition was published, wonderful developments in wireless telegraphy, for example, have been made. It was necessary, therefore, that a good deal of new matter should be added to the work in order to make it thoroughly up-to-date.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE 1900-1905

Second or Supplementary Volume

The first volume of the new "American Catalogue, 1900–1905" appeared in June last. The second, or supplementary volume, which we announced would be published if a sufficient number of subscriptions were received, will be ready for delivery early in November.

This supplementary volume contains the full title entries, with frequent annotations, given in the "Weekly Record" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY cumulated into an alphabet for each year, that is, in five alphabets, from January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1905. It is planned to answer the demands of librarians, book dealers and others who wish to have this full bibliographic material in available shape.

For the book dealer the second volume is a permanent record of book evaluations. It gives in form for ready reference brief descriptive notices of the important books published during the period mentioned, describing concisely the contents of each work and explaining many titles which, in themselves, mean little or nothing or are misleading. For descriptive cataloguing, a bibliographical work of this kind is almost priceless.

To the librarian it is no less valuable as a definite help to classification. It will be especially useful as a time saver to readers in search of exact information, and, with the first volume, it gives the best needed information about books next to the actual reading of the books themselves.

The edition is limited, the type having been already destroyed, and as three-fourths of the number of copies have already been subscribed, we suggest a prompt order if you wish to complete your file of the "American Catalogue."

Subscribers to the first volume are entitled to receive the second volume at $6 per copy, the regular price being $7.50, or $12 for both.
